Rocky Regards Nixon As GOP Titular Leader

RESIGNS—Sen. Henry Jackson, D.Wash., announced yesterday he will resign his post as Democratic national chairman about Jan. 20, Inauguration Day. Concession Follows Long Talk With Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York said Thursday he does not regard Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the actual leader of the Republican party. He conceded only that Nixon is the titular leader.

Rockefeller made the statements at the White House after a long talk with President Eisenhower who said only Wednesday night that Nixon would be regarded as head of the party for the next four years.

Reminded of Eisenhower's stamp of approval for Nixon as the leader, Rockefeller said: "I wouldn't want to debate with the President on that subject."

Collective leadership is what the party needs, declared Rockefeller, who toyed for a while with the idea of going after the presidential nomination that Nixon won this year.

United Effort Needed

Expanding, he said that if the Republican party is going to grow stronger, then it will need the work of party leaders in all the states. And he said he intends to concentrate on New York.

Rockefeller announced Tuesday for re-election as governor in 1962 but has not said whether he will try again for the presidential nomination in 1964.

The governor was asked Thursday whether he thought that Nixon, because of his close race for the presidency this year against Democrat John F. Kennedy, would be the natural GOP nominee in 1964.

Rockefeller replied only: "Four years seems a long way off."

He did say he would have breakfast with Nixon Friday, and that he intended to cooperate with the vice president in every way to strengthen their party.

Nixon To Join Law Firm

Two days ago Rockefeller told a news conference at Albany that a party without a president in office is without an actual head except perhaps for the chairman of its national committee.

That statement, which Rockefeller repeated Thursday, was followed by Eisenhower's statement to a Republican dinner Wednesday night at the White House that Nixon would be recognized as the party's chief and that he would have the support of Eisenhower and that of everybody else present.

Rockefeller was not at Wednesday night's dinner, but was invited to a similar one Thursday night.

Nixon's campaign manager, Robert Finch, said at Los Angeles Thursday that Nixon will join a Los Angeles law firm after he leaves office next Jan. 20. Finch said Nixon will disclose the name of the firm after the Christmas holidays.

Rifts Remain As Red Summit Meeting Ends

MOSCOW (AP)—A Communist world leaders' summit conference ended Thursday with a communique which indicated little progress in composing major differences on global policy.

The communique devoted only a few terse lines to what went on in secret behind the Kremlin walls for three weeks. Technically, at least, the note it struck was one of harmony.

The Red summit, attended by leaders of Communist parties from 81 countries, is believed to have been punctuated by word battles between Red China and the Soviet leadership on how best to promote communism in the world and upset non-Communist governments.

Until the final communique Thursday, there was no mention of this conference in the Communist press.

There had been no expectation among Western leaders that any final statement would give a hint of differences on global policies or ideology. But there have been many indications in the press of Red China and the Soviet bloc of a sharp divergence of opinion between the Kremlin and Peiping.

The final communique was devoted mostly to listing the Communist parties represented, country by country. The only statement of what went on came in the final two paragraphs. These said:

"The participants in the conference exchanged experiences and acquainted themselves with the views and positions of each other, discussed the current questions of contemporary international developments and the Communist movement, in the interests of the mutual struggle for common aims of peace, democracy, national independence and socialism, and unanimously adopted a statement of the Communist and workers' parties and also an appeal to the peoples of the whole world.

"The discussion of all questions took place in an atmosphere of fraternal friendship resting on the foundation of the immutable principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism."

Boycott Crack Angers Women At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Shoving and kicking women—angered by a crack in their pupil boycott at integrated schools—took out after a university student, a reporter and a minister's dog Thursday.

Six white children attended classes at William Frantz School, center of this week's disturbances, in contrast to the two who attended Wednesday.

Screaming insults, picketing housewives manhandled Sydney Goldfinch, a Tulane University student, saying he led recent downtown sit-in demonstrations. They shoved and kicked him. Police rescued him.

Police ordered reporter Jerry Hopkins of the New Orleans Times-Picayune out of the area. Women demonstrators accused Hopkins of hitting them with a campstool.

Police also forced from the neighborhood two newsmen on leave from Time and Life magazines. The two—Ken Smelson and Greg Shuker—"were causing trouble," police said.

The two men had asked a man "Why do you oppose interracial marriage?"

Several newsmen were kicked or shoved. No one was arrested.

Yelling women thronged around the home of the Rev. Lloyd Foreman, a Methodist minister whose daughter attends William Frantz kindergarten. Police kept them off the minister's lawn.

The minister's dog, a black and white animal, showed up.

"Look," yelled one woman, "he's even got an integrated dog."

Some demonstrators threw stones at the dog.

Foreman provoked the ire of the demonstrators early in the day when he escorted his daughter and two unidentified white youngsters into William Frantz.

Mrs. James Gabrielle, whose daughter also has been attending the integrated school all week, evaded the catcalls and shoving, that previously forced police protection, by showing up early with her child.

A chill wind and 40-degree weather may have kept the number of pickets a bit below the number that demonstrated Wednesday.

In contrast to the tense situation at William Frantz, small groups of pickets stood quietly at the city's other integrated elementary school, McDonogh No. 19. No white child has shown up there for classes all week. None did Thursday.

Peronist Gunmen Bomb Power Depot

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Peronist gunmen struck again Thursday with a daring bomb raid on a suburban power station which cut off commuter traffic for hours.

The Peronists, armed with pistols and submachine guns, broke into the power plant, forced the staff out of the building with their hands high in the air and then bombed the installation and escaped. A grade crossing guard was injured.

Archbishop Of Canterbury To Meet With Pope Today

ROME (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, here for an historic meeting with Pope John XXIII, pleaded Thursday night for a speedy end to the "cold war" between Christian churches.

The archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, prayed that "rival jurisdictions" may coexist in peace, urged that Christian churches cease being competitive, and that, without treading on each others' toes on doctrinal matters, they become cooperative.

The 73-year-old Briton, primate of the Church of England, spoke at Rome's Anglican All Saints church. His sermon, delivered at an evensong service, was the third of a series he has made during a journey that has taken him to encounters with patriarchs of the Orthodox Church in Jerusalem and Istanbul. In those two cities he also made pleas for greater Christian unity throughout the world.

Friday, the archbishop pays what his Lambeth Palace headquarters and the Vatican have described as a courtesy visit to Pope John. When asked what they would discuss, Dr. Fisher said earlier Thursday: "We shall talk about nothing, and about everything. We will talk in terms of Christian friendship and courtesy."

It will be the first meeting of a pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church and a primate of the Church of England since King Henry VIII broke away from papal authority in the 16th century. The meeting has caused some criticism, mostly in England, but in general has been favorably received.

Rocket Debris Fell On Cuba, Officials Say

Newspapers Report "Loud Explosions And Great Alarm"

HAVANA (AP)—A malfunctioning U.S. rocket that was to orbit two space satellites had to be destroyed in flight Wednesday and Cuban officials said parts of it showered debris on an eastern Cuba hillside. Cuban newspapers and broadcasters charged it was "imperialist provocation" and "aggression."

The Cuban News Agency said the debris fell 10 miles from Holguin, Cuba's third largest city, causing "loud explosions and great alarm." A spokesman at military headquarters in Holguin said some of the fragments weighed as much as 40 pounds but caused no damage or casualties.

Range officers at Cape Canaveral, Fla., purposely destroyed the airborne rocket when something went wrong. A Defense Department spokesman said in Washington the possibility that exploded rocket parts fell on Cuba could not be excluded.

"The fall of this rocket on Cuba serves to demonstrate that these Yankees know the risks involved if rockets fall on their own territory and are firing them southward from Cape Canaveral without regard to whether steel and iron fragments fall on Cuba, Panama, Jamaica, Puerto Rico or even Brazil," the semiofficial newspaper Revolucion said.

The Cuban government apparently did not follow up these complaints immediately with any formal diplomatic protest. The U.S. Embassy said it has heard nothing.

Diplomats here say they think it likely that Cuba will protest directly to the United Nations or to the Organization of American States, rather than complain to the United States.

Military authorities in Holguin, 500 miles southeast of Havana, said the rocket fragments fell at about 3 p.m. At 2:50 p.m. a Thor-Able-Star rocket had been launched from Cape Canaveral. The Defense Department waited two hours before announcing that the 80-foot rocket had been destroyed after launching.

AF Concedes Pieces Probably Fell On Cuba

WASHINTON (AP)—The Air Force said Thursday night that "it is likely" that fragments of metal which fell on Cuba were from the unsuccessful satellite fired from Florida Wednesday—as Cuba claims.

This conclusion was reached by the Air Force after comparing serial numbers on the fragments, as reported by the Cuban press, with numbers known to have been on some parts of the Thor booster rocket used in the launching.

However, the Air Force said, "Positive identification can be made only if we have an opportunity to examine the fragments."

There so far has been no indication by the Castro government that this opportunity will be granted.

A Defense Department spokesman, in answer to questions about the brief Air Force statement, said that preliminary information indicates that the booster engine cut off too soon after the launching from Cape Canaveral.

Although the booster cut off, the second stage of the rocket, carrying the twin satellite spheres, had separated from the booster and continued to coast upward and then the second-stage engine ignited.

However, the booster had not given the second stage and payload enough velocity to put it in orbit.

January Draft Quota Lowest Since July

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Thursday issued a call for 6,000 draftees for the Army in January.

The quota was 2,000 less than the 8,000-man December figure. The January call was the lowest since last July — when the figure was the same. Monthly draft calls since mid-year have ranged from 7,000 to 9,000.

Kennedy And Cabinet Appointee

GOP Broadens Election Probe But Hopes Dim

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republicans broadened their election fraud inquiry Thursday but with admittedly not much chance of overturning the election of John F. Kennedy to the presidency.

GOP National Chairman Thruston B. Morton announced formation of a National Recount and Fair Elections Committee to check "on every suspicious state."

He will head it himself, in an announced effort to expose to the public what he called "shocking irregularities and fraud in this election which constitutes a national disgrace."

But, when asked whether there is a good chance of switching the result of the Nov. 8 election so that Vice President Richard M. Nixon might be declared the winner, Mortor replied: "Frankly I don't think, because of the time element involved, there is too much of a chance of that."

Morton called a news conference at Republican national headquarters to discuss the situation and tell of his plans.

The time element he mentioned stems from the fact that the presidential electoral votes are to be counted Dec. 19, and Democrat Kennedy now is credited with 300 electoral votes to 223 for Nixon, with 14 unpledged. It takes 269, or a majority of the 537 electoral votes, to win.

The popular vote stood Kennedy 34,127,336; Nixon 33,960,967, a plurality of 166,369 for Kennedy.

This was on the basis of official returns from 33 states and unofficial returns from the other 17. Only 161 precincts out of 166,064 were uncounted.

Morton cited Illinois, Texas, parts of New Jersey, Nevada and Missouri as places the Republican investigators would be interested in. He especially complained of Cook County, Ill., the Chicago Democratic stronghold. But even if Illinois' 27 electoral votes were switched, Kennedy still would have 273, or four more than enough.

Soviet Union Denies Malinovsky Replaced

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government Thursday took the unusual step of hastily denying Western speculation that Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky had been replaced.

A press spokesman for the government said Malinovsky, a burly Ukrainian like Nikita S. Khrushchev and an old firend of the premier, was simply "resting."

The speculation was touched off by a Radio Moscow broadcast which referred to Deputy Defense Minister Marshal Andrei A. Grechko as "acting defense minister."

Such speculation usually is not even acknowledged by the Soviet government.

Presumably Grechko was filling in for Malinovsky while he was away from his job.

Malinovsky, 62, has been defense minister since the dismissal of Georgi Zhukov in October, 1957. He accompanied Khrushchev to Paris during the abortive summit conference last May.

Darin Borrows Ring, Marries Young Actress

ELIZABETH, N. J. (UPI) — Bobby Darin, a 24-year-old actor-singer borrowed a ring and married 19-year-old actress Sandra Dee early Thursday in the home of a friend.

The ceremony was performed by Magistrate Samuel Lohman at 3 a.m. in the living room of a four-room apartment belonging to Donald Kirschner.

"We just wanted to get it over with," the petite blonde actress said of her unusual wedding hour.

"The time doesn't make any difference," said Darin.

Miss Dee and the Bronx-born Darin, whose real name is Walden Cassoto, met several months ago in Italy where they made a movie.

Jackson Will Quit Demo Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said Thursday he will resign his Democratic party chairmanship at the time President-elect John F. Kennedy takes office next month.

Technically, the Democratic National Committee will name Jackson's successor. In practice, the president's wishes on the top party post are always respected but Kennedy gave no immediate hint of his choice.

Jackson's announcement came after a 20-minute session with the president-elect. The Washington senator, at 48 the Democrats' youngest party chief of modern times, reminded newsmen that when he took the job last July 16 he announced he would serve only until shortly after the election.

Kennedy told reporters "we couldn't possibly have won" the Nov. 8 election without Jackson's leadership. The Massachusetts senator expressed hope the national committee would meet within six weeks to designate a successor to take over at once when Jackson's resignation become effective, either on Jan. 20, inauguration day, or on Jan. 21.

Soviets Orbit Dogs; Khrush Hails New Feat

MOSCOW (AP)—Another big Soviet space ship carrying two dogs was rocketed into orbit Thursday. Premier Khrushchev hailed the feat as "a great victory and a step to man's flight into space."

The Soviet Union may try to return the five-ton vehicle Friday if it follows the pattern of last August, when it put two other dogs into space and brought them back alive after 24 hours aloft.

Khrushchev said he did not know if his scientists will try to return the space ship and its dog-carrying capsule intact, as the scientists said they did on Aug. 20.

"Probably they will,' he told reporters at a reception he gave in the Kremlin for Prince Norodom Sihanouk, visiting Cambodian chief of state. "But scientists know better than I do. I haven't talked to anyone about it."

The launching drew praise from scientists of East and West assembled at the Pugwash conference to discuss disarmament. But two prominent Britons at the meeting expressed strong disapproval because so much money is being spent on space research.

Philip Noel Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize, said it was a great achievement but he would like to see space research restricted until "disarmament and other terrestrial problems have been dealt with."

Sir Robert Watson Watt said the world could afford to wait 100 years for such achievements because "we have such a lot to do here on earth."

Reactions of the two new canine space explorers, Pchelka (little bee) and Mushka (little fly) are being watched by radio-television and telemetering systems—as was the case in the August launching — an official announcement said.

The announcement said the space ship reached a maximum height of 154.6 miles on its orbit and that 116 miles was its closest approach to the earth. The August space ship, weighing a little over five tons, traveled an almost circular orbit 198.8 miles up.

Captain's Wife Taken Off Storm-Buffeted Freighter

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) —The captain's wife was taken off a storm-battered and stranded Liberian freighter Thursday. The skipper and his 12-man crew were left aboard.

Anastisia Trivizas of Corfu, Greece, was removed from the Francisco Morazan by a boarding party from the Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw. She is two months pregnant. She was brought by helicopter to a hospital here.

Her husband's 246-foot ship has been aground on rocks off South Manitou Island in upper Lake Michigan since being driven there by a fierce, snow-laden storm last Tuesday night. Capt. Eduardo Trivizas has a crew of Greek and Spanish seamen.

The Traverse City Coast Guard station, meanwhile, flew a marine engineer and an indemnity investigator to the water-logged ship.

Melvin J. Tublin, representing an insurance firm, and James E. Sweeney, a marine surveyor, conferred with Capt. Trivizas and Coast Guard officials on disposal of the stranded freighter. Both Tublin and Sweeney came here from New York.

The oceangoing Morazan, owned by Moa Naviera of Monrovia, Liberia, carries between 900 and 1,000 tons of general cargo bound via the St. Lawrence Seaway from lower Lake Michigan ports to Rotterdam.

The cargo includes lard, canned goods, hides and packaged goods.

Disposition, Tublin said, depends upon what can be done with the ship, possibly doomed to be ice-locked in the Great Lakes until spring unless she gets speedy repairs and unless seaway locks are kept open until mid-December.

Kennedy Taps Him As HEW Secretary

President-Elect Chooses Williams For African Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—John F. Kennedy started forming his Cabinet Thursday, by tapping Gov. Abraham Ribicoff, an old friend and early Kennedy-for-president rooter, as his secretary of health, education and welfare.

In this job, the 50-year-old Ribicoff would play a key role in some of the programs Kennedy has labeled for priority consideration by the new Congress—aid to education, medical care for the aged and the like.

Standing at Kennedy's side as the announcement was made, Ribicoff declared his philosophy in this general field "is on all fours with the philosophy of President-elect Kennedy."

Several hours earlier, Kennedy made known that he had selected another preconvention supporter—outgoing Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan—to be assistant secretary of state in charge of African affairs.

African Post "Second To None"

Normally, an assistant secretary isn't considered overly important. But Kennedy stressed he regards the African affairs post as "second to none in the new administration" because the dark continent has become a major cold war battleground.

Williams, 49, who ends an unprecedented sixth term as Michigan's governor on Jan. 1, said later he plans a brief tour of Africa between New Year's Day and Kennedy's inauguration on Jan. 20.

In the wake of these appointments, there was a hint the incoming president may announce Friday the man he has picked to head up the Budget Bureau.

His first caller Friday was listed as Prof. David Bell of Harvard, a 41-year-old specialist on public administration. The Boston Globe reported Wednesday that Bell appeared in line for the job of budget director.

Lovett Not Available

Kennedy's one obvious disappointment of the day came when he apparently failed to persuade 65-year-old Robert A. Lovett, a New York investment banker, to accept a place in the Kennedy administration.

After lunching with Lovett, the president-elect told newsmen "it is a great regret to me that he has retired" from further government service.

Lovett, a Republican, was secretary of defense and undersecretary of state in the Democratic administration of President Harry S. Truman. He had been mentioned in speculation as a possible appointee either as secretary of defense or secretary of state under Kennedy.

The darkly handsome Ribicoff, son of Russian immigrants, was the first Jew elected governor of Connecticut. He now is at the midpoint in his second four-year term, and said he will resign after the Senate confirms his Cabinet appointment.

As governor, Ribicoff draws $15,000 a year. As secretary of health, education and welfare he would be paid $25,000 a year.

The H-E-W department has 62,000 employes and each year distributes 3¾ billion dollars to the American people.

Nasser Seizes Belgian Firms

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser Thursday seized all Belgian commerical properties in Egypt, including the Belgian bank and the Cairo street railways.

The seizure was interpreted here as retailiation for the Congo's diplomatic break with the United Arab Republic (Egypt-Syria).

Nasser regards the ruling Congo leadership as pro-Belgian.

Some Belgian property was nationalized, as the Suez Canal was by a Nasser decree in 1956. Some was sequestered--held in suspense pending disposal—as properties of Britain and French firms were after the 1956 British-French invasion of Egypt.

The move came soon after congo President Joseph Kasavubu severed relations with the U.A.R.

Nasser slapped nationalization orders on the bank and on the Belgian-owned Cairo electric railways and the suburban Heliopolis Oasis Co.

Belgian companies under sequestration are the Egyptian Electricity Co. and the Cairo Tramways Utility.

"The fall of this rocket on Cuba serves to demonstrate that these Yankees know the risks involved if rockets fall on their own territory and are firing them southward from Cape Canaveral without regard to whether steel and iron fragments fall on Cuba, Panama, Jamaica, Puerto Rico or even Brazil," the semiofficial newspaper Revolucion said.

The Cuban government apparently did not follow up these complaints immediately with any formal diplomatic protest. The U.S. Embassy said it has heard nothing.

Diplomats here say they think it likely that Cuba will protest directly to the United Nations or to the Organization of American States, rather than complain to the United States.

Military authorities in Holguin, 500 miles southeast of Havana, said the rocket fragments fell at about 3 p.m. At 2:50 p.m. a Thor-Able-Star rocket had been launched from Cape Canaveral. The Defense Department waited two hours before announcing that the 80-foot rocket had been destroyed after launching.

AF Concedes Pieces Probably Fell On Cuba

WASHINTON (AP)—The Air Force said Thursday night that "it is likely" that fragments of metal which fell on Cuba were from the unsuccessful satellite fired from Florida Wednesday—as Cuba claims.

This conclusion was reached by the Air Force after comparing serial numbers on the fragments, as reported by the Cuban press, with numbers known to have been on some parts of the Thor booster rocket used in the launching.

However, the Air Force said, "Positive identification can be made only if we have an opportunity to examine the fragments."

There so far has been no indication by the Castro government that this opportunity will be granted.

A Defense Department spokesman, in answer to questions about the brief Air Force statement, said that preliminary information indicates that the booster engine cut off too soon after the launching from Cape Canaveral.

Although the booster cut off, the second stage of the rocket, carrying the twin satellite spheres, had separated from the booster and continued to coast upward and then the second-stage engine ignited.

However, the booster had not given the second stage and payload enough velocity to put it in orbit.

January Draft Quota Lowest Since July

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Thursday issued a call for 6,000 draftees for the Army in January.

The quota was 2,000 less than the 8,000-man December figure. The January call was the lowest since last July — when the figure was the same. Monthly draft calls since mid-year have ranged from 7,000 to 9,000.

Kennedy And Cabinet Appointee

GOP Broadens Election Probe But Hopes Dim

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republicans broadened their election fraud inquiry Thursday but with admittedly not much chance of overturning the election of John F. Kennedy to the presidency.

GOP National Chairman Thruston B. Morton announced formation of a National Recount and Fair Elections Committee to check "on every suspicious state."

He will head it himself, in an announced effort to expose to the public what he called "shocking irregularities and fraud in this election which constitutes a national disgrace."

But, when asked whether there is a good chance of switching the result of the Nov. 8 election so that Vice President Richard M. Nixon might be declared the winner, Mortor replied: "Frankly I don't think, because of the time element involved, there is too much of a chance of that."

Morton called a news conference at Republican national headquarters to discuss the situation and tell of his plans.

The time element he mentioned stems from the fact that the presidential electoral votes are to be counted Dec. 19, and Democrat Kennedy now is credited with 300 electoral votes to 223 for Nixon, with 14 unpledged. It takes 269, or a majority of the 537 electoral votes, to win.

The popular vote stood Kennedy 34,127,336; Nixon 33,960,967, a plurality of 166,369 for Kennedy.

This was on the basis of official returns from 33 states and unofficial returns from the other 17. Only 161 precincts out of 166,064 were uncounted.

Morton cited Illinois, Texas, parts of New Jersey, Nevada and Missouri as places the Republican investigators would be interested in. He especially complained of Cook County, Ill., the Chicago Democratic stronghold. But even if Illinois' 27 electoral votes were switched, Kennedy still would have 273, or four more than enough.

Soviet Union Denies Malinovsky Replaced

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government Thursday took the unusual step of hastily denying Western speculation that Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky had been replaced.

A press spokesman for the government said Malinovsky, a burly Ukrainian like Nikita S. Khrushchev and an old firend of the premier, was simply "resting."

The speculation was touched off by a Radio Moscow broadcast which referred to Deputy Defense Minister Marshal Andrei A. Grechko as "acting defense minister."

Such speculation usually is not even acknowledged by the Soviet government.

Presumably Grechko was filling in for Malinovsky while he was away from his job.

Malinovsky, 62, has been defense minister since the dismissal of Georgi Zhukov in October, 1957. He accompanied Khrushchev to Paris during the abortive summit conference last May.

Darin Borrows Ring, Marries Young Actress

ELIZABETH, N. J. (UPI) — Bobby Darin, a 24-year-old actor-singer borrowed a ring and married 19-year-old actress Sandra Dee early Thursday in the home of a friend.

The ceremony was performed by Magistrate Samuel Lohman at 3 a.m. in the living room of a four-room apartment belonging to Donald Kirschner.

"We just wanted to get it over with," the petite blonde actress said of her unusual wedding hour.

"The time doesn't make any difference," said Darin.

Miss Dee and the Bronx-born Darin, whose real name is Walden Cassoto, met several months ago in Italy where they made a movie.

Jackson Will Quit Demo Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said Thursday he will resign his Democratic party chairmanship at the time President-elect John F. Kennedy takes office next month.

Technically, the Democratic National Committee will name Jackson's successor. In practice, the president's wishes on the top party post are always respected but Kennedy gave no immediate hint of his choice.

Jackson's announcement came after a 20-minute session with the president-elect. The Washington senator, at 48 the Democrats' youngest party chief of modern times, reminded newsmen that when he took the job last July 16 he announced he would serve only until shortly after the election.

Kennedy told reporters "we couldn't possibly have won" the Nov. 8 election without Jackson's leadership. The Massachusetts senator expressed hope the national committee would meet within six weeks to designate a successor to take over at once when Jackson's resignation become effective, either on Jan. 20, inauguration day, or on Jan. 21.

Soviets Orbit Dogs; Khrush Hails New Feat

MOSCOW (AP)—Another big Soviet space ship carrying two dogs was rocketed into orbit Thursday. Premier Khrushchev hailed the feat as "a great victory and a step to man's flight into space."

The Soviet Union may try to return the five-ton vehicle Friday if it follows the pattern of last August, when it put two other dogs into space and brought them back alive after 24 hours aloft.

Khrushchev said he did not know if his scientists will try to return the space ship and its dog-carrying capsule intact, as the scientists said they did on Aug. 20.

"Probably they will,' he told reporters at a reception he gave in the Kremlin for Prince Norodom Sihanouk, visiting Cambodian chief of state. "But scientists know better than I do. I haven't talked to anyone about it."

The launching drew praise from scientists of East and West assembled at the Pugwash conference to discuss disarmament. But two prominent Britons at the meeting expressed strong disapproval because so much money is being spent on space research.

Philip Noel Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize, said it was a great achievement but he would like to see space research restricted until "disarmament and other terrestrial problems have been dealt with."

Sir Robert Watson Watt said the world could afford to wait 100 years for such achievements because "we have such a lot to do here on earth."

Reactions of the two new canine space explorers, Pchelka (little bee) and Mushka (little fly) are being watched by radio-television and telemetering systems—as was the case in the August launching — an official announcement said.

The announcement said the space ship reached a maximum height of 154.6 miles on its orbit and that 116 miles was its closest approach to the earth. The August space ship, weighing a little over five tons, traveled an almost circular orbit 198.8 miles up.

Captain's Wife Taken Off Storm-Buffeted Freighter

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) —The captain's wife was taken off a storm-battered and stranded Liberian freighter Thursday. The skipper and his 12-man crew were left aboard.

Anastisia Trivizas of Corfu, Greece, was removed from the Francisco Morazan by a boarding party from the Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw. She is two months pregnant. She was brought by helicopter to a hospital here.

Her husband's 246-foot ship has been aground on rocks off South Manitou Island in upper Lake Michigan since being driven there by a fierce, snow-laden storm last Tuesday night. Capt. Eduardo Trivizas has a crew of Greek and Spanish seamen.

The Traverse City Coast Guard station, meanwhile, flew a marine engineer and an indemnity investigator to the water-logged ship. Melvin J. Tublin, representing an insurance firm, and James E. Sweeney, a marine surveyor, conferred with Capt. Trivizas and Coast Guard officials on disposal of the stranded freighter. Both Tublin and Sweeney came here from New York

The oceangoing Morazan, owned by Moa Naviera of Monrovia, Liberia, carries between 900 and 1,000 tons of general cargo bound via the St. Lawrence Seaway from lower Lake Michigan ports to Rotterdam.

The cargo includes lard, canned goods, hides and packaged goods.

Disposition, Tublin said, depends upon what can be done with the ship, possibly doomed to be ice-locked in the Great Lakes until spring unless she gets speedy repairs and unless seaway locks are kept open until mid-December.

Kennedy Taps Him As HEW Secretary

President-Elect Chooses Williams For African Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—John F. Kennedy started forming his Cabinet Thursday, by tapping Gov. Abraham Ribicoff, an old friend and early Kennedy-for-president rooter, as his secretary of health, education and welfare.

In this job, the 50-year-old Ribicoff would play a key role in some of the programs Kennedy has labeled for priority consideration by the new Congress—aid to education, medical care for the aged and the like.

Standing at Kennedy's side as the announcement was made, Ribicoff declared his philosophy in this general field "is on all fours with the philosophy of President-elect Kennedy."

Several hours earlier, Kennedy made known that he had selected another preconvention supporter—outgoing Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan—to be assistant secretary of state in charge of African affairs.

African Post "Second To None"

Normally, an assistant secretary isn't considered overly important. But Kennedy stressed he regards the African affairs post as "second to none in the new administration" because the dark continent has become a major cold war battleground.

Williams, 49, who ends an unprecedented sixth term as Michigan's governor on Jan. 1, said later he plans a brief tour of Africa between New Year's Day and Kennedy's inauguration on Jan. 20.

In the wake of these appointments, there was a hint the incoming president may announce Friday the man he has picked to head up the Budget Bureau.

His first caller Friday was listed as Prof. David Bell of Harvard, a 41-year-old specialist on public administration. The Boston Globe reported Wednesday that Bell appeared in line for the job of budget director.

Lovett Not Available

Kennedy's one obvious disappointment of the day came when he apparently failed to persuade 65-year-old Robert A. Lovett, a New York investment banker, to accept a place in the Kennedy administration.

After lunching with Lovett, the president-elect told newsmen "it is a great regret to me that he has retired" from further government service.

Lovett, a Republican, was secretary of defense and undersecretary of state in the Democratic administration of President Harry S. Truman. He had been mentioned in speculation as a possible appointee either as secretary of defense or secretary of state under Kennedy.

The darkly handsome Ribicoff, son of Russian immigrants, was the first Jew elected governor of Connecticut. He now is at the midpoint in his second four-year term, and said he will resign after the Senate confirms his Cabinet appointment.

As governor, Ribicoff draws $15,000 a year. As secretary of health, education and welfare he would be paid $25,000 a year.

The H-E-W department has 62,000 employes and each year distributes 3¾ billion dollars to the American people.

Nasser Seizes Belgian Firms

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser Thursday seized all Belgian commerical properties in Egypt, including the Belgian bank and the Cairo street railways.

The seizure was interpreted here as retaliation for the Congo's diplomatic break with the United Arab Republic (Egypt-Syria).

Nasser regards the ruling Congo leadership as pro-Belgian.

Some Belgian property was nationalized, as the Suez Canal was by a Nasser decree in 1956. Some was sequestered—held in suspense pending disposal—as properties of Britain and French firms were after the 1956 British-French invasion of Egypt.

The move came soon after congo President Joseph Kasavubu severed relations with the U.A.R.

Nasser slapped nationalization orders on the bank and on the Belgian-owned Cairo electric railways and the suburban Heliopolis Oasis Co.

Belgian companies under sequestration are the Egyptian Electricity Co. and the Cairo Tramways Utility.

Rocket Testing Safety Record Is Near Perfect

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Elaborate safety precautions have prevented all but a handful of the nearly 1,000 missiles fired here from striking land areas like the rocket which showered debris on an eastern Cuba hillside Wednesday.

In 10 years of missile testing here, not one fatality or injury has resulted from a runaway rocket.

Cuban military authorities reported Thursday that parts of a U.S. Thor-Able-Star satellite rocket fell outside the city of Holguin Wednesday. There were no injuries or damage. The cape range safety officer destroyed the vehicle about three minutes after launch because of a malfunction.

There are only two other recorded instances in which Cape Canaveral rocket fragments landed on foreign territory and oane in which pieces fell on U.S. soil outside of the test center.

A Snark guided missile went out of control and landed on a Brazilian jungle on Dec. 5, 1956. Last Sept. 25, two chunks of an ill-fated American moon rocket fell on a South African farm in northern Transvaal.

A flaming section of an exploding Polaris missile flew wildly and splashed into the Banana River west of the town of Cocoa Beach on Sept. 24, 1958. Cocoa Beach is just south of Cape Canaveral.

A comple range safety system, anchored by the range safety officer, is the key to the center's outstanding record.

When the safety officer's instruments sense something is wrong, he presses a button which signals explosive packages in the rocket to tear it apart.

The Thor-Able-Star was destroyed Wednesday at an altitude of about 100 miles, more than 200 miles down the Atlantic missile range. The Air Force was mum on circumstances surrounding the action.

This was only the second rocket launched from Cape Canaveral which was programmed to pass over a land area. The hundreds of others were aimed over all-water courses.

The plan to send it over Cuba was necessary to put the two satellites it carried in a proper trajectory.

Restaurant Will Drop Race Bar

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A dispute over refusal of service to Negroes at a restaurant in the bus terminal building here was reported settled Thursday.

"The differences have been resolved and the change in the policy to become effective will eliminate any suggestion of racial discrimination," Dr. Theodore H. Johnson, president of the Annapolis branch of the NAACP, said.

He said the agreement was reached after negotiations Wednesday and Thursday with Mike Kokinos, operator of the terminal restaurant and owner of a carry-out shop across the street, and others interested in the dispute.

Kokinos, contacted earlier, had declined any comment on the situation.

Dr. Johnson said the agreement is to become effective in four weeks. He said the period was set because of pending litigation against five Negroes arrested on charges of trespassing in the restaurant last Friday night.

The five—two businessmen, two schoolteachers and a dentist—conducted a sit-in demonstration after being refused service. They requested a jury trial in Circuit Court after Magistrate Robert Heise refused to quash charges against them at a hearing Monday.

Linseed oil consumption has shown a sharp downtrend in the past decade, dropping from 700 million pounds in 1951 to 450 million pounds in 1959.

Kennedy noted that in Connecticut, Ribicoff supervises a state budget which earmarks 74 per cent of its funds to health and welfare purposes.

When newsmen asked whether Ribicoff's statement about being on all fours with Kennedy's philosophy included a medical care for the aged plan financed through Social Security, Ribicoff deferred to Kennedy.

"I think Gov. Ribicoff and I are in agreement on it," Kennedy said.

In addition to being governor of Connecticut, Ribicoff served two terms in the House of Representatives, did duty in the State Legislature and was a city judge in Hartford.

He is something of a self-made man. As a youth he sold newspapers, clerked in a store, worked as an errand boy and did road construction work.

Rightist Rebels Agree To Join Laos Coalition

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—In a surprise announcement, neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma said Thursday rightist rebels have agreed to join the Communist-led Pathet Lao in a new coalition government to end civil warfare in Laos.

Some Western diplomats were skeptical that rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavan's rightists—or the Pathet Lao for that matter—would actually agree to serve in the same government. Phoumi has sworn to drive the Pathet Lao guerrillas from Laos.

The Pathet Lao provisionally agreed to a coalition earlier this month.

Returning Thursday from talks with Phoumi, National Assembly President Tiao Somsanith said, "We have agreed on everything."

Somsanith said the assembly will meet Friday to prepare a special petition for submission to King Savang Vathana.

The petition will ask the king to call a special session of the assembly in Luang Prabang to reshuffle Souvanna's neutralist Cabinet and discuss formation of the coalition government.

The United States, which spends millions to aid Laos and has supported Phoumi's regime, has opposed a coalition government including the Pathet Lao.

Calif. Lashed By New Storm

By United Press International

A new wintry storm slammed into northern California Thursday with gale force winds and rains which flooded streets in San Francisco' Golden Gate Park.

The first of December onslaught was a followup to the four-day blizzard which rolled out of the Rocky Mountains all the way to New York state. At least 12 and possibly 15 persons were left dead in the storm's wake.

A huge mass of cold air moved in after the storm. Midday temperatures stayed near zero along the northern borders of Minnesota and North Dakota and the mercury dropped to 17 below zero at Aberdeen, S.D.

California's new storm hit the state with winds up to 80 miles per hour. A ranch worker was killed near Half Moon Bay south of San Francisco when the winds collapsed a barn and a woman was hospitalized when lightning strucks a factory at San Leandro.

Asia-Africa Nations Ask Voice In Councils Of U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Asian and African members of the United Nations Thursday demanded a new "gentlemen's agreement" to assure them representation in major U.N. councils.

Under a 1945 big power accord reached in London, elections in the U.N. General Assembly for the 11-nation Security Council have been governed by geographic representation. This was called a "gentlemen's agreement." A similar arrangement governs elections to the 18-nation Economic and Social Council.

Under the proposed new arrangement, new Asian and African nations would get one of the two Security Council seats now held by European countries and one of the two held by Latin-American countries.

Asian-African demands for representation on the councils have caused a postponement of council elections at this assembly session.

L. N. Palar of Indonesia, one of the spokesmen for the group augmented by the newly admitted African nations, voiced the demand for an end to the agreements in explicit terms before the assembly's Special Political Committee.

Supporting a 13-nation African-Asian move for immediate redistribution of existing nonpermanent seats on the councils, Palar told the committee: "The London and the ECOSOC gentlemen's agreement binds gentlemen who concluded the agreement. It doesn't bind us because we didn't participate in it. We now are ready to participate in a new gentlemen's agreement and in prior arrangements for elections.

"Why try to persuade us, even compel us, to accept your gentlemen's agreement and relegate us to second-class members?"

The new move was sprung on the committee Wednesday as it met to vote on resolutions, sponsored chiefly by about 30 European and Latin American countries, to seek charter amendments enlarging the Security Council to 13 members and the Economic and Social Council to 24.

West European Union Approves Norstad's Plan

PARIS (AP —Gen. Lauris Norstad's plan to make the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a nuclear power was approved in one of the European assemblies Thursday night, despite British resistance.

British delegates either abstained or voted against the plan when a roll was taken in the assembly of the Western European Union, an advisory body. Support from delegates from the six other nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—was sufficient to approve the project.

Some of the British delegates found technical objections to Norstad's idea, but in general there was a feeling that the opinion of the incoming American administration should be known before a stand is taken by the U.S. Allies.

At present, NATO has nuclear weapons on the European continent, but they are under exclusive U.S. control. In discussing his plan, Norstad has said he hoped it would satisfy the desires of nations who want their own costly nuclear forces. This was obviously aimed at President Charles de Gaulle, who is going ahead with a French striking force.

Norstad's proposal probably will be discussed at a 15-nation NATO ministerial meeting beginning in Paris Dec. 16. Doubts have been expressed that it will be quickly realized, because of changes required in the U.S. Atomic Energy Act before custody of nuclear weapons can be shared.

New Violence Hits Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — New violence flared in this tense city Thursday as Communist and leftist groups continued agitation against the government of President Romulo Betancourt.

Two persons, including a 16-year old girl, were killed and several others were injured in clashes in different sections of the city.

In the sixth day in a row of political unrest, foes of Betancourt renewed their efforts to overthrow his regime and establish a "Castro-type" dictatorship.

Venezuelan warships patrolled at sea to prevent any reinforcement from abroad of the internal enemies of the president. Betancourt Wednesday formally accused the Dominican Republic of aiding his political foes to muster for a new blow at his regime.

Ford Discussed Plan With Anderson

DETROIT (AP)—Henry Ford II said Thursday he has discussed with Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson a proposal by Ford Motor Co. to gain additional control of its English subsidiary.

On Nov. 14, Ford announced it would offer $20.50 a share for the outstanding 46.4 per cent of the stock of Ford Motor Co., Ltd. This would amount to about $300 million if accepted by all British stockholders.

It was disclosed Wednesday night that Anderson appealed personally to Henry Ford to consider America's gold-dollar drain before carrying out the proposal.

The Treasury secretary was said to be deeply concerned about the impact on the U.S. balance of payments deficits which is expected to run about $4 billion for 1960.

Under the proposed new arrangement, new Asian and African nations would get one of the two Security Council seats now held by European countries and one of the two held by Latin-American countries.

Asian-African demands for representation on the councils have caused a postponement of council elections at this assembly session.

L. N. Palar of Indonesia, one of the spokesmen for the group augmented by the newly admitted African nations, voiced the demand for an end to the agreements in explicit terms before the assembly's Special Political Committee.

Supporting a 13-nation African-Asian move for immediate redistribution of existing nonpermanent seats on the councils, Palar told the committee: "The London and the ECOSOC gentlemen's agreement binds gentlemen who concluded the agreement. It doesn't bind us because we didn't participate in it. We now are ready to participate in a new gentlemen's agreement and in prior arrangements for elections.

"Why try to persuade us, even compel us, to accept your gentlemen's agreement and relegate us to second-class members?"

The new move was sprung on the committee Wednesday as it met to vote on resolutions, sponsored chiefly by about 30 European and Latin American countries, to seek charter amendments enlarging the Security Council to 13 members and the Economic and Social Council to 24.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Little People of America concluded their first annual convention Thursday after installing Dan Turner of Asheville, N.C. as their new president.

West European Union Approves Norstad's Plan

PARIS (AP —Gen. Lauris Norstad's plan to make the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a nuclear power was approved in one of the European assemblies Thursday night, despite British resistance.

British delegates either abstained or voted against the plan when a roll was taken in the assembly of the Western European Union, an advisory body. Support from delegates from the six other nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—was sufficient to approve the project.

Some of the British delegates found technical objections to Norstad's idea, but in general there was a feeling that the opinion of the incoming American administration should be known before a stand is taken by the U.S. Allies.

At present, NATO has nuclear weapons on the European continent, but they are under exclusive U.S. control. In discussing his plan, Norstad has said he hoped it would satisfy the desires of nations who want their own costly nuclear forces. This was obviously aimed at President Charles de Gaulle, who is going ahead with a French striking force.

Norstad's proposal probably will be discussed at a 15-nation NATO ministerial meeting beginning in Paris Dec. 16. Doubts have been expressed that it will be quickly realized, because of changes required in the U.S. Atomic Energy Act before custody of nuclear weapons can be shared.

New Violence Hits Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — New violence flared in this tense city Thursday as Communist and leftist groups continued agitation against the government of President Romulo Betancourt.

Two persons, including a 16-year old girl, were killed and several others were injured in clashes in different sections of the city.

In the sixth day in a row of political unrest, foes of Betancourt renewed their efforts to overthrow his regime and establish a "Castro-type" dictatorship.

Venezuelan warships patrolled at sea to prevent any reinforcement from abroad of the internal enemies of the president. Betancourt Wednesday formally accused the Dominican Republic of aiding his political foes to muster for a new blow at his regime.

Ford Discussed Plan With Anderson

DETROIT (AP)—Henry Ford II said Thursday he has discussed with Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson a proposal by Ford Motor Co. to gain additional control of its English subsidiary.

On Nov. 14, Ford announced it would offer $20.50 a share for the outstanding 46.4 per cent of the stock of Ford Motor Co., Ltd. This would amount to about $300 million if accepted by all British stockholders.

It was disclosed Wednesday night that Anderson appealed personally to Henry Ford to consider America's gold-dollar drain before carrying out the proposal.

The Treasury secretary was said to be deeply concerned about the impact on the U.S. balance of payments deficits which is expected to run about $4 billion for 1960.

Goldstein Urges United Fight Against Bond Tax

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Maryland Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said Thursday state and local governments "should unite to fight any attempt to tax our bonds."

Goldstein addressed the 1960 convention of the National Association of State Auditors, comptrolle and treasurers here. His subject was "fiscal relations between state and municipal governments and tax exempt bonds."

The comptroller said local governments should resist attempts of the federal government to impose any such tax because it "would have a tremendous adverse effect on the borrowing power of the states and their subdivisions."

"It is difficult to determine just how high interest rates will climb if the federal tax exemption is removed," Goldstein said. The comptroller said if federal exemptions are removed, it would be difficult to market the bonds in competition with corporate bonds of a higher yield.

"This is a most important matter and we should organize our forces to insure the continuation of the tax-exempt status of all state and municipal bonds," Goldstein said.

Goldstein gave his audience a breakdown of the fiscal relations between the State, county and local governments in Maryland. He said there was a need for "consolidation and-or close cooperation between metropolian areas, cities and contiguous counties, in public functions such as water, sewers, transportation, health, police and fire protection.

He said, "The cost of education is the principal item" in the budget at the local level, insofar as Maryland is concerned. He said the cost of maintenance and operation of the Free State's school system amounts to 52.4 per cent of the budgets of the Maryland counties.

Goldstein said, "The platform of both major political parties promised more federal aid to education. Such aid should help greatly at the state and county levels in the matter of education."

Suspect Hunted In Boy's Slaying

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—Prince Georges County police Thursday sought a man, who reportedly attempted to pick up an 8-year-old boy, as a suspect in the recent slaying of Michael Condetti, 7.

Police at Seat Pleasant said they were informed the man, white and about 30, offered the boy $1 to get into his car. The point at which the attempt reportedly occurred is about 18 blocks from the residence where the Condetti boy's shoes were found Nov. 18.

Many suspects have been checked since Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine J. Condetti, was slain in a sexual assault. The boy disappeared Nov. 14 and his body was found three days later in the woods near Ardmore, Md.

Washington Post Guild Pact Ratified

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new two year contract with the Washington Post was approved Thursday by the news, editorial and commercial employes.

Guild unit members by a vote of 134-85 accepted the newspaper's offer providing for increased wages and a shorter work week.

About 500 workers covered by the contract will receive an immediate $4 a week increase, and an additional $3 a week one year hence. The agreement would give 95 per cent of reporters, editors and photographers with six years' experience a minimum weekly salary of $167 a year from now.

The work week will be cut at once from 40 to 38¾ hours, and on Dec. 4, 1961, to 37½ hours.

Washington 9th Largest U.S. City; Edges St. Louis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington has edged St. Louis for the honor of being the nation's ninth largest city, the Census Bureau said Thursday.

Final figures from the April 1 census credit Washington with a population of 763,956. St. Louis holds the No. 10 spot with a population of 750,026.

The 10 largest cities, in order are New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Detroit, Baltimore Houston, Cleveland, Washington and St. Louis.

Fairchild Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has awarded a $1,900,000 contract to the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp., Hagerstown, Md., to continue construction of two drone surveillance systems.

Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits, both New York Republicans, were advised Thursday that work will be performed at Fairchild plants in Hagerstown and Wyandanch, N.Y.

Funeral Services Conducted For Bishop McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP) — Funeral services were conducted Thursday for the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Catholic Auxiliary Bishop of Washington, who died Saturday at the age of 82.

A pontifical requiem mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

The body then was taken to the mausoleum at St. Joseph's College, Emmitsburg, Md. where rests the body of Mother Elizabeth Seton, founder of the Daughters of Charity who operate Providence Hospital, St. Ann's Infant Home and Immaculate Conception Academy here.

This was in keeping with Bishop McNamara's request to be entombed near Mother Seton, of whose canonization he was a principal advocate. Mother Seton, who died in 1921, was beatified last year and is now known as "blessed," the last step before canonization and recognized saintlhood.

An earlier mass for Bishop McNamara was celebrated Tuesday night at St. Gabriel's Church, which he organized in 1920.

Bishop McNamara was a native of Baltimore. He leaves one sister, Mary McNamara of Baltimore.

Miss Helen Barbara Jacob To Be Bride Of W. L. Jacob

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rawn Torrington, 106 North Smallwood Street, announce the engagement of Mrs. Torrington's sister, Miss Helen Barbara Jacob, Pittsburgh, to William Lawrence Jacob Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence Jacob of Pittsburgh. Miss Jacob is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Carl Jacob of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Jacob was the former Miss Helen McMullen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. McMullen of Cumberland.

The bride-elect attended Mount Mercy Academy, Pittsburgh; Georgetown Visitation Convent, Washington; and is a graduate of Rosemont College, Philadelphia. Her fiance is a graduate of Yale University and University of Pittsburgh Law School. He is now engaged in the practice of law with his father in Pittsburgh.

The wedding is planned for January 28 in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Torrington and Mrs. Henry Mackey Sr., Washington Street, will entertain the immediate family at an informal party in honor of the bride-elect and her fiance Saturday at the Torrington home on North Smallwood Street.

Jr. Civic Club Hears Reports

New members were accepted and reports were given by various chairmen at the meeting of the executive board of the Junior Woman's Civic Club Wednesday evening at the club house. Mrs. Kayo Nelson presided. Mrs. Mary Rohman read the minutes in the absence of Mrs. Leslie J. Clark.

Mrs. Nelson read the point percentage system for a club from the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs. A certificate will be awarded at the junior conference to each club with an average of 85 per cent or more. Honorable mention will be given all clubs having 65 per cent or more.

Mrs. Bruce Douglas, ways and means chairman, reported that the card party and fashion show held recently at the Shrine Country Club was a success. A motion was read and approved that plans be made for a similar show next year.

Mrs. James Preaskorn, welfare chairman, reported that two boxes of toiletries were sent to mental health hospitals in Baltimore.

The group's annual charity dance will be held tonight from 9 until 1 a. m., at the Ali Ghan Country Club. John Diamond will be carnival barker carrying out the carnival theme of the event. No reservations are needed.

Mrs. Raymond H. Lapp Jr., fine arts chairman, announced that the choral group for the Christmas party has been rehearsing and that the final class of the interior decorating group, featuring gift wrappings, will be held December 15. A tour of a group of homes decorated by John Rossi will start from Hafer House December 6 at 7:30 p. m. These two dates will conclude the class' activities.

The Christmas meeting will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran church social hall.

The sunshine report was given by Mrs. Rohman who said cards were sent to Mrs. Edward F. Mullan, Mrs. Bertram Friedland, Mrs. W. B. Patterson, Mrs. Leslie J. Clark and Mrs. Robert Dessent.

Four new members were accepted. They are Mrs. Edward Moore, Mrs. Morton Peskin Jr., Mrs. William German and Mrs. Philip Wendt.

Reporting on the Community Council, Mrs. Wesley McGraw Jr. announced that the group voted to sponsor the Historical Society this year. She also reported on tentative long range projects of the Civic Club.

FACES LESSER CHARGE

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — James C. Wood, about 50, who had been charged with murder in the death of a Fayette County woman, faces a lesser charge as a result of an autoapsy report which showed Mrs. Eleanor Douglas, 48, of nearby Whipple, died of acute alcoholism. Wood has been jailed since the woman s death Nov. 9. At that time, police said it appeared she was beaten to death.

McKinley Chapter 12, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet today at 8 p. m. at Masonic Temple. Miss Helen E. Cherry, worthy matron, and Joseph H. Wagner, worthy patron, will preside. Election of officers for the new year will be held. A social hour will follow in the assembly hall.

AFTERNOON ENSEMBLE—Coat cut from fern green lightweight Irish tweed, has ingenious multiple sleeve, is lined with warp print taffeta of pale green and yellow on white background. Same taffeta is used in simple sheath dress with contour belt. Designed by Don Loper.

Past Matrons, Patrons OES To Host Allegany, Garrett Chapters

A Christmas party honoring all chapters of Allegany and Garrett counties will be given by the Past Matrons and Past Patrons Association of Western Maryland, Order of Eastern Star, December 8 in the Odd Fellows Hall in Barton.

William Scott, vice president, will be master of ceremonies and Mrs. Hilda Stafford, president, will extend greetings.

Carol singing will be led by Mrs. Louise Emerick, and games will be in charge of James Duff. Santa Claus will make a visit and distribute gifts.

Mrs. Virginia Hoffa will be chairman of the party assisted by the past matrons of Barton Chapter 37 who have charge of decorations, sandwiches and salads; Rebecca Arnold Chapter 57 of Mt. Savage in charge of nuts; Mountain Chapter 15, Frostburg, cookies; Martha Washington Chapter 10, Lonaconing, candy; Bethlehem Chapter 14, Westernport, coffee and cream; Cumberland Chapter 56, gifts, and McKinley Chapter 12, favors.

A special meeting of the El Fidel Club will be held Tuesday at the Ali Ghan Shrine City Club to make final plans for the club's annual Christmas dinner - dance. All members having tickets are asked to report at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Henry, 13 Boone Street, entertained with a reception in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Henry who were married recently in Lansing, Mich. Approximately 90 guests were present.

Harold Hanson sang three selections, accompanied by Miss Mary Robb. Rev. H. E. Heckert offered prayer.

Among the guests were state Senator and Mrs. Charles M. See, and eight former teachers of Mr. Henry. They are Mrs. Gertrude Collins, Mrs. John Tennant, Miss Margaret Beck, Miss Mildred Beck, Mrs. Fern Wilson, Miss Robb, Mr. Hanson and Mrs. Hannah Allamong. Senator See and each of the teachers spoke briefly.

Mr. Henry is a senior at St. John's College, Annapolis, on a state senatorial scholarship. Mrs Henry is a senior at Eastern Nazarene College in Massachusetts.

Out of town guests were Mr and Mrs. Delisle Henry, Alpena, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Little, Lewistown, Pa., William Davis, Wooster, Mass., Victor Sewartz, Philadelphia, Pa., and Miss Barbara Lynn, classmates of Mr. Henry at St. John's College.

Misses Joan and Jean Hansrote and Miss Shirley Shaffer were in charge of the guest book and gifts.

UCT Auxiliary 281 To Mark Anniversary At Christmas Party

The sixth anniversary of Auxiliary 281, Order of the Ladies of the United Commercial Travelers, will be observed at its annual Christmas party Saturday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McKenzie, Park Heights, LaVale.

Members and their husbands are invited and are to bring canned goods for the Christmas basket for the 'adopted" family, and Christmas gifts for the children of the family.

Mrs. Joseph Snyder Jr., Mrs. Robert Alstetter and Mrs. H. C. Utterback are in charge of refreshments and general arrangements. Mrs. James Orr is in charge of the program.

The Wiley Ford Volunteer Firemen and Ladies Auxiliary will hold a roast beef supper Saturday from 5 until 7 p.m. at the fire hall.

GIVEN LEAVE

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia University political science professor Albert L. Sturm has been granted a leave of absence during the second semester to serve as visiting professor of political science at Duke University, it was announced Thursday.

PEACE MARCHERS—Walking single file, this group of marchers begins trek on foot yesterday from Union Square in San Francisco to Moscow after a round of speeches at the starting point. The men and women, members of the Committee for Nonviolent Action, are heading for Los Angeles before attempting to cross the U. S. Joined by others en route, the marchers expect to reach New York about June 1 of next year, then fly to England and walk through Europe to their goal. (AP Photofax)

BLAST DAMAGES HOUSE

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The home of Mrs. Molly Jones was badly damaged by a gas explosion Thursday. Her fireman son Manuel Jones had connected a gas heater shortly before the blast and flame from the heater apparently ignited some gas that accumulated from a leak beneath the house. Jones was blown from the house, almost into the street, but was uninjured.

BARRON TO VISIT

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va. (UPI)— Governor-elect W. W. Barron is to visit the Northern Panhandle area this weekend for the first time since his election Nov. 8. Barron, who will take office next month, is scheduled to attend a dance here Saturday sponsored by the Brooke County Young Democrats Club. Several other successful Democratic office seekers will also attend.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there's a dog in your house, surprise all around by teaching him to sing "Jingle Bells" for the holidays.

George Brown, owner of a crooning canine, said in an interview that most semi-intelligent pooches can be taught to sing.

Genie, the mixed-breed dog owned by Brown, howls and yowls the tunes of some 40 songs — one at a time — when his master starts singing the words.

The musical pooch demonstrated his talent in the UPI office amid the clatter of teleprinters. When the listeners closed their eyes — to heighten concentration —the howls and yowls ascended and descended the scale in a reasonable canine-type imitation of songs ranging from "My Wild Irish Rose" to "Happy Birthday."

Even when a third and disinterested party gave forth with a song, Genie, after getting his masters' permission, yowled and howled the tune.

Brown, of Douglastown, Long Island, said he first learned that his pooch had a flare for music when children singing songs in his presence reported that the dog hummed the tunes.

"I paid no attention, thinking the children were hearing things," Brown said. "Then I noticed when I would sing around the house, the dog frequently picked up the melody.

"What amazes me is that a dog who doesn't do pedestrian things —like bring in the paper at night —turns out to have a musical bent."

Genie is particular about the kind of songs he picks up. He won't hum to rock 'n' roll tunes, for example.

Brown said almost anyone can teach a dog to sing by first convincing the pooch that he's loved, thus gaining his confidence. And then you get the animal alone in a quiet room and rehearse the song at hand, singing a few bars at a time and making one hand go up and down as the melody goes.

"Pretty soon," he said, "the typical pooch will be making noises sounding like an imperfect imitation of the melody. With practice, the dog's imitation approaches perfection."

While in the UPI office, Genie was taught to operate a stapling machine and also to return the carriage on a typewriter.

But pushing buttons and moving levers is almost second nature to the red-haired pooch.

The animal lives in an electronic dog-house that even the henpecked hubby probably would like. It's fitted with most of the comforts of home.

It has a door that Genie opens by pushing a button - and closes when he's inside and wants to shut out the world. The dog also has buttons inside that operate his radio, a speaker system, an air-conditioner and a heating system — plus, of course, electric lights.

The dog also rings a bell when he wants a meal.

Brown takes Genie to hospitals around his home to entertain the aged and mentally ill.

The retired real estate broker said he isn't interested in exploiting his pooch's talent for personal gain.

Genie has earned a little money, but Brown, said he designated the funds to go to his church.

"I just want the world to know about Genie," he said. "He's something like the Genie from Alladin's lamp, don't you think so?"

KILLED IN FIRE

SHINNSTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Saturday for Joseph Love, 50, who died in a fire that destroyed his home here Wednesday. Love, an accountant for United Fuel Coal Co. here, was ill and confined to bed. His wife was seeking aid in caring for her husband when the blaze occurred.

WORK TO START

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The State Conservation Commission Thursday said general surveying and clearing work will begin next Monday on a new lake site at Conaway Run in Tyler County. About 15 men will be hired under the State Temporary Economic Program to do the work on the 30-acre impoundment.

George Washington adopted two children — Nancy and George Washington Parke Custis.

MAKES PROCLAMATION

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— Gov. Cecil H. Underwood Thursday proclaimed this week as "Civil Air Patrol Week" in West Virginia. The governor noted that the CAP is always "ready at quick notice to aid their distressed countrymen, fellow fliers and their passengers who may be victims of mishaps."

The first attempt to build a canal in Panama was by a French canal builder, Ferdinand de Lesseps, between 1879 and 1889. It failed.

Seven Orphans Learn Fate Can Do About-Face

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Cruel circumstances took both father and mother from the seven Leonard Courier children in November, but fate suddenly did an about face on the last day of the month.

Doris Courier, 35, mother of the children who range in age from 1 to 14 years, died Nov. 6 of a kidney ailment.

Their father, 36, had decided to try to keep the family together. But he was killed in a traffic accident early last Saturday.

The twin deaths aroused the sympathy of the Milwaukee area. A fund drive was started and offers began coming in from people who wanted to adopt the children.

But at the same time another set of circumstances was at work —and they would help to ease the burden.

Leonard Courier had planned to go on a deer hunting trip, and on Nov. 15 he applied with the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co. for a 10-day travelers policy which would pay $50,000 to his children in the event of his death in any kind of an accident.

The policy cost him $18.

It went into effect Nov. 18, and Courier went on the deer hunting trip and returned safely with a deer. He was killed two days before the expiration of the policy.

Wednesday the insurance firm notified the Milwaukee bank named by Courier as administrator that it would pay the $50,000 into the estate of the children.

For centuries the Japanese have fostered the art of dwarfing bushes and trees. The small ornamentals are trained into the shapes and proportions of aged big trees, so that a vast landscape can be suggested within the confines of a tiny room.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

Lonely parrots, hungry lady bugs and the aging earth are topics this week of science at work.

OLD MOTHER EARTH

The earth is about 4½ billion years old. New scientific dating techniques have confirmed earlier age estimates.

Evidence indicates that the cold planets of our solar system crystallized about the same time, says Dr. John H. Reynolds, University of California physicist, in Scientific American.

By measuring the ratio of atoms of rare gases in iron and stone, scientists have been able to compute a sort of slow speed clock that reaches back to the time when the earth was formed.

LONELY PARROTS

Some African parrots cannot live alone. In fact, isolated from their own kind, they die.

The plumage of the separated birds becomes rougher and rougher. Finally bare patches appear. The parrot gradually falls ill and dies in about six months, reports Dr. William C. Dilger, Cornell University ornithologist.

Thyroid problems may be to blame, an indication that parrots as well as humans suffer physical debility from strain and stress.

LADY BUG, LADY BUG

The lady bugs in your garden are one of the best insecticides. Be kind to them, suggests the Brooklyn Botannical Garden.

Perhaps because insecticides are losing some of their effect against insect pests, scientists are suggesting the use of living natural enemies to control plant-eating insects.

Besides the lady bug, the flycatcher, the ladybird beetle and the toad are typical insect enemies. Now scientists also are using viruses, fungi, bacteria and other insect diseases to attack the problem.

A DROP TO DRINK

The Great Lakes hold 6 quadrillion, 700 trillion gallons of fresh water, the world's largest supply, reports a University of Michigan researcher.

There's little danger that the lakes will be drunk dry. Even if the 66 million Great Lakes people tapped off 50 gallons per person per day, it would be 5,500 years before they hi bottom.

But there is danger that industry and communities along the lakes are destroying this natural resource by dumping in tons of sewage. The lakes are aging faster than normal because of growing plant and silt accumulations, warns Dr. David C. Chandler.

In Refractory Field

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Carbon Co., a division of Union Carbide Corp., announced Thursday it has entered the field of high-temperature refractory compounds with the manufacture of titanium diboride shapes of high strength, size and purity. National carbon said the move was the first of a projected series of high-temperature refractory compounds to be marketed by the company.

Holland Has Supply Of A-Warheads

THE HAGUE (UPI)—A Dutch defense ministry spokesman said Wednesday Holland has a stock of atomic warheads.

However, he refused to give location details or reveal the type of missile the warheads fitted.

The spokesman's statement to United Press International followed earlier claims by authoritative sources that there were stocks of atomic warheads in eastern Holland for use by the West German and Dutch armies. These forces would be equipped with "sergeant" missiles.

The spokesman said members of the U.S. congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, presently in Europe, would pay a brief inspection visit Thursday. He would not give details of the visit "for security reasons."

Behaviorism is the name of an American system of psychology founded by John B. Watson at Johns Hopkins University. Watson took the position that psychologists should devote themselves exclusively to studying the behavior of organisms.

The spokesman's statement to United Press International followed earlier claims by authoritative sources that there were stocks of atomic warheads in eastern Holland for use by the West German and Dutch armies. These forces would be equipped with "sergeant" missiles.

The spokesman said members of the U.S. congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, presently in Europe, would pay a brief inspection visit Thursday. He would not give details of the visit "for security reasons."

Rising Crime Also Plagues Small Towns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American small towns are having as much trouble as their bigger brothers with rapidly increasing crime, the FBI reported Wednesday.

Things are getting worse in rural areas too, but more gradually.

The FBI report showed the serious crimes in the United States increased 11 per cent during the first nine months of the year. The rate of rise was the same for the 649 cities of more than 25,000 population as for the 2,263 smaller cities checked.

Countryside areas showed an increase of 5 per cent.

In the larger cities, crimes against property rose fastest. Robbery and burglary led the way with 16 and 15 per cent increases respectively. Crimes against persons generally increased less sharply, but the FBI said rape was up an "alarming" 1 per cent.

Other big city crime increases were larceny 9 per cent, auto theft 6 per cent, murder 4 per cent and aggravated assault 4 per cent.

Among the small cities, the increases were burglary 15 per cent, larceny 14 per cent, murder 12 per cent, auto theft 11 per cent, rape 8 per cent, robbery 5 per cent and assault 4 per cent.

During the same period, rural crime increases included 10 per cent in burglary, 4 per cent in larceny and 1 per cent in murder. Robbery and assault stayed about the same and rape and auto theft decreased.

The 11 per cent overall increase for the first three quarters of the year climaxed a rising trend for 1960. The increase was 7 per cent in the first quarter of the year and 9 per cent at the end of 6 months.

Among the larger cities, communities of 100,000 to 250,000 had the largest overall increase — 14 per cent. Cities of 25,000 to 50,000 and of 50,000 to 100,000 had crime increases of 13 per cent each. The rest of the large city groups were below the national average increase.

Peace Between Two Irishmen Is Short-Lived

CHICAGO (UPI)—Now, there were these two Irishmen and two bottles of beer...

One of the Irishmen was John Sullivan, who once hailed from Kerry and the other was Edward Gibbons, who claimed Tipperary for the land of his birth on the Emerald Isle.

Where the beer came from wasn't important.

But Gibbons, police said Wednesday, brought Sullivan a bottle of beer because Sullivan had been laid up with an illness. Gibbons thought he could cheer up Sullivan in his room in a boarding house on Emerald Avenue.

The beer was opened and the talk warmed to the virtues of Tipperary and Kerry. Gibbons began to gain the upper hand.

And then things began to fly. Gibbons let loose with a beer bottle over Sullivan's pate, and Sullivan, grabbing the first thing that came to hand, jabbed his companion with a pair of scissors.

Police arrived and took the two to a hospital.

Lying there side by side on tables in an emergency ward, the two men decided to make up. Neither would sign a complaint against the other. Police said they'd charge both with disorderly conduct.

But peace didn't descend quite all the way.

In his forgiving mood, Sullivan offered to give blood if Gibbons needed a transfusion.

"I'll be darned if I'll have any of that Kerry blood in me," yelled Gibbons.

Both men are recovering, and the argument rests.

Motherwell's Attorneys Ask For New Trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Attorneys for Larry Lord Motherwell have asserted that he would not have been convicted of murder in any state other than California.

The assertion is contained in the opening brief of their appeal of Motherwell's conviction for the murder of Pearl Putney, Washington, D.C., widow.

Attorneys John T. Reges of Washington and Robert Fugazi of Truckee, Calif., filed the brief with the state's Third District Court of Appeal. They asked for a new trial.

In their brief, they said "it is the candid opinion of counsel that the conviction in this case could not have occurred in any jurisdiction in the United States other than in California and that there would not even have been a trial or indictment here if the trial had not been blazed by the Scott case."

(A Los Angeles County insurance broker, L. Ewing Scott, was convicted of the murder of his wife, Evelyn, although her body never was found.)

Motherwell, 44, is in San Quentin Prison serving a life sentence.

Mrs. Putney, 72, disappeared in August 1958 while on a cross-country trip with Motherwell. Her skeletal remains were not found until a year later near Sierraville, Calif., where Motherwell was tried.

The state attorney general's office now has 6 days in which to answer the Motherwell brief.

Under general practice, this would allow oral arguments to be presented at the appellate court's February session, and a decision would be handed down in April or May.

Either side may appeal the case to the state Supreme Court after the appeal court ruling.

NEW AGREEMENT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dorsey Trailer Co. announced it has entered into an agreement with U.S. Industries, Inc., in an effort to capture part of the export market. Dorsey, a manufacturer of commercial truck trailers, has given U.S. industries exclusive rights to the distribution of its products in specific overseas areas.

U.S. Death Rate Down 1% In '59

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The death rate in the United States dropped 1 per cent last year, mainly because there was no recurrence of the 1957 and 1958 flu epidemics, the U.S. Public Health Service reported Wednesday.

The health services' office of vital statistics said 1,656,814 Americans died in 1959, a rate of 9.4 deaths per 1,000 persons.

This was 1 per cent below 1958, 2 per cent below 1957 and about the same as 1956.

"The higher rate for 1957 and 1958 resulted primarily from the influenza epidemic," the health service said. "Only small, localized outbreaks" of influenza were reported in 1959.

The health service said the difference between the white and Negro death rates had narrowed significantly during the last 10 years. The Negro death rate still is higher.

Each year, 400-500 bike riders are killed in traffic accidents. More than 25,000 children suffer disabling injuries from these accidents. In more than three out of five fatalities, the bicycle rider is violating a law.

Seven Orphans Learn Fate Can Do About-Face

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Cruel circumstances took both father and mother from the seven Leonard Courier children in November, but fate suddenly did an about face on the last day of the month.

Doris Courier, 35, mother of the children who range in age from 1 to 14 years, died Nov. 6 of a kidney ailment.

Their father, 36, had decided to try to keep the family together. But he was killed in a traffic accident early last Saturday.

The twin deaths aroused the sympathy of the Milwaukee area. A fund drive was started and offers began coming in from people who wanted to adopt the children.

But at the same time another set of circumstances was at work —and they would help to ease the burden.

Leonard Courier had planned to go on a deer hunting trip, and on Nov. 15 he applied with the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co. for a 10-day travelers policy which would pay $50,000 to his children in the event of his death in any kind of an accident.

The policy cost him $18.

It went into effect Nov. 18, and Courier went on the deer hunting trip and returned safely with a deer. He was killed two days before the expiration of the policy.

Wednesday the insurance firm notified the Milwaukee bank named by Courier as administrator that it would pay the $50,000 into the estate of the children.

For centuries the Japanese have fostered the art of dwarfing bushes and trees. The small ornamentals are trained into the shapes and proportions of aged big trees, so that a vast landscape can be suggested within the confines of a tiny room.

These are the crucial areas of a car that can most easily become infected with "vehicle virus": brakes, headlights, rear lights, turn signals, tires, wheels, exhaust system and muffler, horn, rearview mirror, windshield wipers and glass.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

Lonely parrots, hungry lady bugs and the aging earth are topics this week of science at work.

OLD MOTHER EARTH

The earth is about 4½ billion years old. New scientific dating techniques have confirmed earlier age estimates.

Evidence indicates that the cold planets of our solar system crystallized about the same time, says Dr. John H. Reynolds, University of California physicist, in Scientific American.

By measuring the ratio of atoms of rare gases in iron and stone, scientists have been able to compute a sort of slow speed clock that reaches back to the time when the earth was formed.

LONELY PARROTS

Some African parrots cannot live alone. In fact, isolated from their own kind, they die.

The plumage of the separated birds becomes rougher and rougher. Finally bare patches appear. The parrot gradually falls ill and dies in about six months, reports Dr. William C. Dilger, Cornell University ornithologist.

Thyroid problems may be to blame, an indication that parrots as well as humans suffer physical debility from strain and stress.

LADY BUG, LADY BUG

The lady bugs in your garden are one of the best insecticides. Be kind to them, suggests the Brooklyn Botannical Garden.

Perhaps because insecticides are losing some of their effect against insect pests, scientists are suggesting the use of living natural enemies to control plant-eating insects.

Besides the lady bug, the flycatcher, the ladybird beetle and the toad are typical insect enemies. Now scientists also are using viruses, fungi, bacteria and other insect diseases to attack the problem.

A DROP TO DRINK

The Great Lakes hold 6 quadrillion, 700 trillion gallons of fresh water, the world's largest supply, reports a University of Michigan researcher.

There's little danger that the lakes will be drunk dry. Even if the 66 million Great Lakes people tapped off 50 gallons per person per day, it would be 5,500 years before they hi bottom.

But there is danger that industry and communities along the lakes are destroying this natural resource by dumping in tons of sewage. The lakes are aging faster than normal because of growing plant and silt accumulations, warns Dr. David C. Chandler.

In Refractory Field

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Carbon Co., a division of Union Carbide Corp., announced Thursday it has entered the field of high-temperature refractory compounds with the manufacture of titanium diboride shapes of high strength, size and purity. National carbon said the move was the first of a projected series of high-temperature refractory compounds to be marketed by the company.

Holland Has Supply Of A-Warheads

THE HAGUE (UPI)—A Dutch defense ministry spokesman said Wednesday Holland has a stock of atomic warheads.

However, he refused to give location details or reveal the type of missile the warheads fitted.

The spokesman's statement to United Press International followed earlier claims by authoritative sources that there were stocks of atomic warheads in eastern Holland for use by the West German and Dutch armies. These forces would be equipped with "sergeant" missiles.

The spokesman said members of the U.S. congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, presently in Europe, would pay a brief inspection visit Thursday. He would not give details of the visit "for security reasons."

Behaviorism is the name of an American system of psychology founded by John B. Watson at Johns Hopkins University. Watson took the position that psychologists should devote themselves exclusively to studying the behavior of organisms.

Christmas Makes No Crack In Iron Curtain

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) —Santa Claus has to pass through customs controls when he visits the Soviet Zone of Germany, where Christmas makes no cracks in the Iron Curtain.

He might wear a red suit, but Santa is a Western agent in Communist eyes. They are convinced he brings a bag full of subversive gifts, perhaps including even Western-style tin soldiers.

West Germans who send Christmas gifts to friends and relatives in Communist East Germany cannot rely on the holiday spirit to smooth the way. They cannot send what they think is wanted or needed. The important thing is that the Communist officials think is wanted.

Every Christmas, thousands of packages are confiscated at the border because their Western donors have included something the East German authorities object to.

These tough border controls on packages are only part of the Communists' year - round system of checks and safeguards against the "spies and saboteurs" they claim want to enter from the West.

Agents cannot be smuggled in in Christmas packages, but the Communists, searching perhaps for secret instructions or radio sets, have opened countless boxes of chocolates and cigarets.

This year, the East Germans are not only looking the gift horses in the mouth but are X-raying them, too.

Border officials are using five X-ray machines to speed up the checks. The machines eliminate the job of opening the packages, which turned out to be as distasteful to the officials as to the senders and recipients.

The Communist bureaucracy pays as little attention to centuries-old traditions as it does to the holiday spirit.

The 600-mile East-West border splits some individual villages and separates others united by custom and blood since the middle ages. In the early days of the postwar division of the country, border guards would let holiday visitors across the frontier for short stays.

But persons choosing gifts for East Germans have a difficult time because the Communists never have said just what they allow. It is known from past experience that they ban gifts "directed against the maintenace of peace."

But just what does that mean? Obviously, East Germans can't get books denouncing communism or praising the United States, and few are sent.

Books and other presents that in no way could be considered political are confiscated, however, and no one knows why.

Some bans are easier to explain. Because of the Communist campaign against the church, religious objects of any sort rarely get through the checks. Newspapers and Magazines also are forbidden.

Other items that always are confiscated include postage stamps of all sorts, records, maps and films. Medicine is allowed only if it is accompanied by a prescription made out by an East German doctor. Tin cans, no matter what they contain, are forbidden.

Commercial gift packages made up by stores or mail order firms never reach their destinations. Only individual packages are passed. The reason is unknown.

Toys often fall afoul of the inspectors on the grounds that they encourage militarism. But this apparently is not the case if the toy soldiers wear East German or Russian uniforms. Only Western-dressed soldiers fail to pass.

Cowboys and indians, armed or unarmed, are welcome.

Train-Bus Crash Toll Raises To 17

LAMONT, Alta. (AP) —The death of a teen-age girl Wednesday brought to 17 the number of high school students fatally injured in the collision Tuesday of a fast freight train and a school bus.

Twenty-four other school children and the driver of the packed vehicle were injured in the crash at a crossing just outside Lamont. Fifteen of the dead were girls. The youngest was 15, the oldest 18.

"Ashcans" are Navy slang for depth bombs.

Doctors Liken Auto Belts To Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two prominent bone surgeons said Wednesday that 10,000 persons who died in highway accidents last year would be alive today if they had been wearing auto seat belts.

Doctors Murray E. Gibbens and Samuel P. Newman, both of Denver, likened the safety devices to insurance.

"If you have them and don't wear them, it's like letting your insurance payments lapse," they said. "If you don't have them, it's like driving without insurance."

Gibbens is chief of orthopedic surgery at the Denver Veterans Administration Hospital, and Newman is an assistant clinical professor of orthopedic surgery at Colorado University.

They discussed automotive crash injuries in a paper submitted during the American Medical Association's 14th clinical conference.

Wall Street Views

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Dow Jones industrial average, a key stock market barometer, Wednesday closed under 600 for the first time since Nov. 9, the day after election, but its rather desultory slide failed to excite Wall Streeters.

The average of 30 stocks ended the day at 597.22, down 5.18 from Tuesday's close of 602.40.

Martin Gilbert of the brokerage firm, Van Alstyne, Noel & Co., said slipping below 600 wasn't too significant but that a sharp drop would indicate the average was headed for a test of the year's low of 566.05 on Oct. 25.

On the other hand, he said, if the average stages a sharp jump back above 600, possibilities of a substantial rise would be good.

Perhaps the brightest side of the entire outlook is that, with much bearish talk, business hasn't fallen rapidly or far and the stock market is by no means collapsing, says Goodbody & Co.

The firm finds it interesting that for more than a week odd-lot sales (less than 100 shares) exceeded odd-lot purchases.

"Odd-lotters purchased quite enthusiastically after the late October bottom and their enthusiasm reached a peak at the top of the post-election rally," Goodbody says.

"Since that time, for no apparent reason, the odd-lotters have taken to the selling side. Such action, if continued, especially in the face of a down-drifting market, could be significant as a further indication that the September-October lows represented an important turning point."

Rising Crime Also Plagues Small Towns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American small towns are having as much trouble as their bigger brothers with rapidly increasing crime, the FBI reported Wednesday.

Things are getting worse in rural areas too, but more gradually.

The FBI report showed the serious crimes in the United States increased 11 per cent during the first nine months of the year. The rate of rise was the same for the 649 cities of more than 25,000 population as for the 2,263 smaller cities checked.

Countryside areas showed an increase of 5 per cent.

In the larger cities, crimes against property rose fastest. Robbery and burglary led the way with 16 and 15 per cent increases respectively. Crimes against persons generally increased less sharply, but the FBI said rape was up an "alarming" 1 per cent.

Other big city crime increases were larceny 9 per cent, auto theft 6 per cent, murder 4 per cent and aggravated assault 4 per cent.

Among the small cities, the increases were burglary 15 per cent, larceny 14 per cent, murder 12 per cent, auto theft 11 per cent, rape 8 per cent, robbery 5 per cent and assault 4 per cent.

During the same period, rural crime increases included 10 per cent in burglary, 4 per cent in larceny and 1 per cent in murder. Robbery and assault stayed about the same and rape and auto theft decreased.

The 11 per cent overall increase for the first three quarters of the year climaxed a rising trend for 1960. The increase was 7 per cent in the first quarter of the year and 9 per cent at the end of 6 months.

Among the larger cities, communities of 100,000 to 250,000 had the largest overall increase — 14 per cent. Cities of 25,000 to 50,000 and of 50,000 to 100,000 had crime increases of 13 per cent each. The rest of the large city groups were below the national average increase.

STOP SIGN INNOVATION—Mayor John L. Brown of the St. Louis suburb of Woodson Terrace admires and illustrated stop sign which has been erected at an intersection in the community. The cartoon-type sign was the mayor's idea. He said he thought motorists have been taking stop signs for granted and sometimes not coming to a full stop. In case motorists think this sign is only a joke, policemen are around to set them straight. (AP Photofax)

Motherwell's Attorneys Ask For New Trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Attorneys for Larry Lord Motherwell have asserted that he would not have been convicted of murder in any state other than California.

The assertion is contained in the opening brief of their appeal of Motherwell's conviction for the murder of Pearl Putney, Washington, D.C., widow.

Attorneys John T. Reges of Washington and Robert Fugazi of Truckee, Calif., filed the brief with the state's Third District Court of Appeal. They asked for a new trial.

In their brief, they said "it is the candid opinion of counsel that the conviction in this case could not have occurred in any jurisdiction in the United States other than in California and that there would not even have been a trial or indictment here if the trial had not been blazed by the Scott case."

(A Los Angeles County insurance broker, L. Ewing Scott, was convicted of the murder of his wife, Evelyn, although her body never was found.)

Motherwell, 44, is in San Quentin Prison serving a life sentence.

Mrs. Putney, 72, disappeared in August 1958 while on a cross-country trip with Motherwell. Her skeletal remains were not found until a year later near Sierraville, Calif., where Motherwell was tried.

The state attorney general's office now has 6 days in which to answer the Motherwell brief.

Under general practice, this would allow oral arguments to be presented at the appellate court's February session, and a decision would be handed down in April or May.

Either side may appeal the case to the state Supreme Court after the appeal court ruling.

One of the largest dams in the world is Fort Peck in the state of Montana. It contains 125,628,288 cubic yards.

U.S. Death Rate Down 1% In '59

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The death rate in the United States dropped 1 per cent last year, mainly because there was no recurrence of the 1957 and 1958 flu epidemics, the U.S. Public Health Service reported Wednesday.

The health services' office of vital statistics said 1,656,814 Americans died in 1959, a rate of 9.4 deaths per 1,000 persons.

This was 1 per cent below 1958, 2 per cent below 1957 and about the same as 1956.

"The higher rate for 1957 and 1958 resulted primarily from the influenza epidemic," the health service said. "Only small, localized outbreaks" of influenza were reported in 1959.

The health service said the difference between the white and Negro death rates had narrowed significantly during the last 10 years. The Negro death rate still is higher.

Each year, 400-500 bike riders are killed in traffic accidents. More than 25,000 children suffer disabling injuries from these accidents. In more than three out of five fatalities, the bicycle rider is violating a law.

NEW AGREEMENT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dorsey Trailer Co. announced it has entered into an agreement with U.S. Industries, Inc., in an effort to capture part of the export market. Dorsey, a manufacturer of commercial truck trailers, has given U.S. industries exclusive rights to the distribution of its products in specific overseas areas.

Peace Between Two Irishmen Is Short-Lived

CHICAGO (UPI)—Now, there were these two Irishmen and two bottles of beer. . .

One of the Irishmen was John Sullivan, who once hailed from Kerry and the other was Edward Gibbons, who claimed Tipperary for the land of his birth on the Emerald Isle.

Where the beer came from wasn't important.

But Gibbons, police said Wednesday, brought Sullivan a bottle of beer because Sullivan had been laid up with an illness. Gibbons thought he could cheer up Sullivan in his room in a boarding house on Emerald Avenue.

The beer was opened and the talk warmed to the virtues of Tipperary and Kerry. Gibbons began to gain the upper hand.

And then things began to fly. Gibbons let loose with a beer bottle over Sullivan's pate, and Sullivan, grabbing the first thing that came to hand, jabbed his companion with a pair of scissors.

Police arrived and took the two to a hospital.

Lying there side by side on tables in an emergency ward, the two men decided to make up. Neither would sign a complaint against the other. Police said they'd charge both with disorderly conduct.

But peace didn't descend quite all the way.

In his forgiving mood, Sullivan offered to give blood if Gibbons needed a transfusion.

"I'll be darned if I'll have any of that Kerry blood in me," yelled Gibbons.

Both men are recovering, and the argument rests.

Alert Officer Gets Praise

A Cumberland police officer today was praised for his alertness in preventing the possible loss of life when he stopped a home fire Wednesday at 325 Maryland Avenue.

Police Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Chief B. Frank Gaffney, said a letter of commendation will be given to Officer James Stewart in recognition of his diligence to duty and alertness in reporting the early morning blaze.

Officer Stewart was patroling his South End beat when he noticed sparks coming out a chimney at 325 Maryland Avenue at 1:45 a. m. yesterday. He immediately alerted the residents of the home, pulled Fire Box 512 and returned to the scene to assist until firemen from East Side Station arrived.

The sparks were caused by a flue fire, and firemen were able to contain the blaze with only minor property damage.

Another local officer, Richard L. Maiers, received a similar certificate this past October when his quick action averted a fire in the same general neighborhood.

COW'S OWNER COWED BY FIRST GRADERS—First grade pupils of Chicago's Francis Parker School sit in a semi circle to learn about life on the farm from visiting John Kagel, 19, and his cow Cindy Lou. Kagel, from Elgin, Ill., and Cindy Lou retreated to the International Livestock Exposition after he was asked such questions as, "Does Cindy Lou give chocolate milk?" and "Why are her ears so big?"

Some 250 persons perished in the Chicago Fire of Oct. 8, 1871. The next day 1,152 died in a forest fire near Peshtigo, Wis.

Youth Group Names Chairmen

A board meeting of the Allegany County Youth Commission was held Wednesday night at the Department of Employment Security office, North Mechanic Street, the first to be held by the recently-elected officers and directors of the organization.

Mrs. Gordon Bowie, chairman, announced the following selection of committee chairmen:

Dr. William R. Allen, Juvenile Court and probation; Mrs. Lester R. McGill, education; Thomas N. Berry, police; Fred H. Anderson, family counseling; Dr. Charles S. Beamer, health; Mrs. Anna Deremer, employment; Mrs. William A. Douglas, membership, and Judge George Henderson, public relations.

Mrs. Bowie said the chairman for the detention, foster and institutional care committee will be Miss Esther Carter.

The new chairmen have been asked to meet with the officers on Saturday morning at the office of Fred Anderson in the First National Bank building, when plans for the coming year will be formulated. Mrs. Bowie requested the chairmen to take care in the selection of their committee members and also spoke briefly on the procedures to be followed by the various committees.

A general discussion followed on the importance of implementing committee recommendations after approval by the directors.

Reports on a youth conference held recently at Hancock were presented by Mr. Anderson and Miss Roberta Love, the commission's representative from Valley High School, Lonaconing. The two reported 26 delegates attended from Allegany County, participating in discussions on the proper organization of youth commissions, employment, education and recreation.

The next general meeting of the county organization will be held Tuesday, February 28, Mrs. Bowie said.

Census Boosts Counts In Area

The U. S. Census Bureau has released revised figures which gives Allegany and Garrett counties a higher population total than was announced in preliminary figures some months ago.

Allegany County's total in the latest Census Bureau list is 84,169 as compared to 83,834 in the preliminary report. In 1950 Allegany County's population was 89,556.

Garrett County's new total is 20,420 up from 20,253 in the preliminary report. The 1950 census gave Garrett a total of 21,259.

Washington County also showed an increase in the new report with 91,219 compared to the preliminary figure of 89,237. The 1950 census report listed 78,886 persons in Washington County.

The population of Maryland is listed at 3,100,689, an increase since 1950 by 757, 688 or 32.3 percent.

Paper Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UPI)—Scrap paper prices have declined as much as $10 a ton in Chicago—Carrying some key grades to the lowest level in five years. The drop largely reflects a paperboard production slowdown. Paper mills, however, indicated that the drop in scrap paper will not move them to cut prices on finished paper on containers.

Christmas Makes No Crack In Iron Curtain

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) —Santa Claus has to pass through customs controls when he visits the Soviet Zone of Germany, where Christmas makes no cracks in the Iron Curtain.

He might wear a red suit, but Santa is a Western agent in Communist eyes. They are convinced he brings a bag full of subversive gifts, perhaps including even Western-style tin soldiers.

West Germans who send Christmas gifts to friends and relatives in Communist East Germany cannot rely on the holiday spirit to smooth the way. They cannot send what they think is wanted or needed. The important thing is that the Communist officials think is wanted.

Every Christmas, thousands of packages are confiscated at the border because their Western donors have included something the East German authorities object to.

These tough border controls on packages are only part of the Communists' year - round system of checks and safeguards against the "spies and saboteurs" they claim want to enter from the West.

Agents cannot be smuggled in in Christmas packages, but the Communists, searching perhaps for secret instructions or radio sets, have opened countless boxes of chocolates and cigarets.

This year, the East Germans are not only looking the gift horses in the mouth but are X-raying them, too.

Border officials are using five X-ray machines to speed up the checks. The machines eliminate the job of opening the packages, which turned out to be as distasteful to the officials as to the senders and recipients.

The Communist bureaucracy pays as little attention to centuries-old traditions as it does to the holiday spirit.

The 600-mile East-West border splits some individual villages and separates others united by custom and blood since the middle ages. In the early days of the postwar division of the country, border guards would let holiday visitors across the frontier for short stays.

But persons choosing gifts for East Germans have a difficult time because the Communists never have said just what they allow. It is known from past experience that they ban gifts "directed against the maintenace of peace."

But just what does that mean? Obviously, East Germans can't get books denouncing communism or praising the United States, and few are sent.

Books and other presents that in no way could be considered political are confiscated, however, and no one knows why.

Some bans are easier to explain. Because of the Communist campaign against the church, religious objects of any sort rarely get through the checks. Newspapers and Magazines also are forbidden.

Other items that always are confiscated include postage stamps of all sorts, records, maps and films. Medicine is allowed only if it is accompanied by a prescription made out by an East German doctor. Tin cans, no matter what they contain, are forbidden.

Commercial gift packages made up by stores or mail order firms never reach their destinations. Only individual packages are passed. The reason is unknown.

Toys often fall afoul of the inspectors on the grounds that they encourage militarism. But this apparently is not the case if the toy soldiers wear East German or Russian uniforms. Only Western-dressed soldiers fail to pass.

Cowboys and Indians, armed or unarmed, are welcome.

Train-Bus Crash Toll Raises To 17

LAMONT, Alta. (AP) —The death of a teen-age girl Wednesday brought to 17 the number of high school students fatally injured in the collision Tuesday of a fast freight train and a school bus.

Twenty-four other school children and the driver of the packed vehicle were injured in the crash at a crossing just outside Lamont. Fifteen of the dead were girls. The youngest was 15, the oldest 18.

"Ashcans" are Navy slang for depth bombs.

Doctors Liken Auto Belts To Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two prominent bone surgeons said Wednesday that 10,000 persons who died in highway accidents last year would be alive today if they had been wearing auto seat belts.

Doctors Murray E. Gibbons and Samuel P. Newman, both of Denver, likened the safety devices to insurance.

"If you have them and don't wear them, it's like letting your insurance payments lapse," they said. "If you don't have them, it's like driving without insurance."

Gibbens is chief of orthopedic surgery at the Denver Veterans Administration Hospital, and Newman is an assistant clinical professor of orthopedic surgery at Colorado University.

They discussed automotive crash injuries in a paper submitted during the American Medical Association's 14th clinical conference.

Wall Street Views

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Dow Jones industrial average, a key stock market barometer, Wednesday closed under 600 for the first time since Nov. 9, the day after election, but its rather desultory slide failed to excite Wall Streeters.

The average of 30 stocks ended the day at 597.22, down 5.18 from Tuesday's close of 602.40.

Martin Gilbert of the brokerage firm, Van Alstyne, Noel & Co., said slipping below 600 wasn't too significant but that a sharp drop would indicate the average was headed for a test of the year's low of 566.05 on Oct. 25.

On the other hand, he said, if the average stages a sharp jump back above 600, possibilities of a substantial rise would be good.

Perhaps the brightest side of the entire outlook is that, with much bearish talk, business hasn't fallen rapidly or far and the stock market is by no means collapsing, says Goodbody & Co.

The firm finds it interesting that for more than a week odd-lot sales (less than 100 shares) exceeded odd-lot purchases.

"Odd-lotters purchased quite enthusiastically after the late October bottom and their enthusiasm reached a peak at the top of the post-election rally," Goodbody says.

"Since that time, for no apparent reason, the odd-lotters have taken to the selling side. Such action, if continued, especially in the face of a down-drifting market, could be significant as a further indication that the September-October lows represented an important turning point."

Taiwan's movie studios turn out 175 pictures each year — including newsreels, short subjects and full length features.

Alert Officer Gets Praise

A Cumberland police officer today was praised for his alertness in preventing the possible loss of life when he stopped a home fire Wednesday at 325 Maryland Avenue.

Police Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Chief B. Frank Gaffney, said a letter of commendation will be given to Officer James Stewart in recognition of his diligence to duty and alertness in reporting the early morning blaze.

Officer Stewart was patroling his South End beat when he noticed sparks coming out a chimney at 325 Maryland Avenue at 1:45 a. m. yesterday. He immediately alerted the residents of the home, pulled Fire Box 512 and returned to the scene to assist until firemen from East Side Station arrived.

The sparks were caused by a flue fire, and firemen were able to contain the blaze with only minor property damage.

Another local officer, Richard L. Maiers, received a similar certificate this past October when his quick action averted a fire in the same general neighborhood.

Census Boosts Counts In Area

The U. S. Census Bureau has released revised figures which gives Allegany and Garrett counties a higher population total than was announced in preliminary figures some months ago.

Allegany County's total in the latest Census Bureau list is 84,169 as compared to 83,834 in the preliminary report. In 1950 Allegany County's population was 89,556.

Garrett County's new total is 20,420 up from 20,253 in the preliminary report. The 1950 census gave Garrett a total of 21,259.

Washington County also showed an increase in the new report with 91,219 compared to the preliminary figure of 89,237. The 1950 census report listed 78,886 persons in Washington County.

The population of Maryland is listed at 3,100,689, an increase since 1950 by 757, 688 or 32.3 percent.

Paper Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UPI)—Scrap paper prices have declined as much as $10 a ton in Chicago—Carrying some key grades to the lowest level in five years. The drop largely reflects a paperboard production slowdown. Paper mills, however, indicated that the drop in scrap paper will not move them to cut prices on finished paper on containers.

Some 250 persons perished in the Chicago Fire of Oct. 8, 1871. The next day 1,152 died in a forest fire near Peshtigo, Wis.

The Department of Defense was created Sept. 18, 1947, joining the Departments of War, the Navy and the Air Force under a single head.

Seth Low served as mayor of two large American cities—Brooklyn (1882-85) and New York (1902-03). Brooklyn became a borough of New York in 1898.

Youth Group Names Chairmen

A board meeting of the Allegany County Youth Commission was held Wednesday night at the Department of Employment Security office, North Mechanic Street, the first to be held by the recently-elected officers and directors of the organization.

Mrs. Gordon Bowie, chairman, announced the following selection of committee chairmen:

Dr. William R. Allen, Juvenile Court and probation; Mrs. Lester R. McGill, education; Thomas N. Berry, police; Fred H. Anderson, family counseling; Dr. Charles S. Beamer, health; Mrs. Anna Deremer, employment; Mrs. William A. Douglas, membership, and Judge George Henderson, public relations.

Mrs. Bowie said the chairman for the detention, foster and institutional care committee will be Miss Esther Carter.

The new chairmen have been asked to meet with the officers on Saturday morning at the office of Fred Anderson in the First National Bank building, when plans for the coming year will be formulated. Mrs. Bowie requested the chairmen to take care in the selection of their committee members and also spoke briefly on the procedures to be followed by the various committees.

A general discussion followed on the importance of implementing committee recommendations after approval by the directors.

Reports on a youth conference held recently at Hancock were presented by Mr. Anderson and Miss Roberta Love, the commission's representative from Valley High School, Lonaconing. The two reported 26 delegates attended from Allegany County, participating in discussions on the proper organization of youth commissions, employment, education and recreation.

The next general meeting of the county organization will be held Tuesday, February 28, Mrs. Bowie said.

State Boosts Share Of County School Costs

The budget of the Maryland Board of Education, in which an increase of $5.5 million in state aid for the various counties is provided, will result in Allegany County receiving an estimated $165,079 more than for the current school term.

Allegany County will receive an allotment of $3,247,788 for the school term of 1961-62. The state aid for the current school year is $3,082,699, according to Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of county schools.

All but about $400,000 of the $5.5 million raise is mandatory under present formulas for aid based on the number of pupils and classrooms.

The board proposed $93,550,064 in state aid for public schools as part of a total budget of $117,731,519. Operation of the State's public schools was budgeted at $102,210,128. Other items in the total include expenses for teachers colleges, pensions for retired teachers, and similar allied education costs.

AFTER FATAL CRASH—A Lamont, Alberta, schoolboy looks over the wreckage of a high school bus in which 16 of his student friends were killed and 26 injured. Hit by a train at an unguarded crossing, the bus was dragged for more than a quarter of a mile. At bottom, Tommy Tompkins, 13, one of the injured children, recovers at Lamont Hospital. With his brother, Keith, 12, Tommy was in the back of the bus and narrowly escaped.

Park Planning Lag Charge Termed Unjustified

James J. O'Donnell, state planning director, has challenged as "unjustified and unwarranted" the conclusion that Maryland's park development is lagging.

O'Donnell pointed to a $2,000,000 reserve for land acquisition which has been awarded to the Department of Forests and Parks, which sets its own pace of land acquisition.

Joseph F. Kaylor, the director of forests and parks, last week said the state's acquisition program was badly lagging and that a minimum of 10,000 acres had to be acquired and developed annually to meet recreation needs.

Kaylor said the state should follow "the program of land acquisition contained in the master plan of this department which calls for 50,000 acres of state parks and recreation areas by 1965."

Regarding the master plan, O'Donnell said it dates back to 1952 and has not been significantly revised. He added that Senate Joint Resolution No. 9 of the 1956 General Assembly called for its revision, "but if it has been, we haven't seen it."

The planner said the state spent $8,100,000 for its forest and parks system from 1947 to 1960. Of that amount, $5,000,000 was earmarked for acquisition, he added.

In the loans of 1950 and 1960, O'Donnell said, forests and parks received $1,969,000 and $1,711,500 respectively, with $1,705,000 and $1,516,000 of each sum devoted to acquiring new parks land.

Moreover, the 1959 allocation was 12½ per cent of all the loan money, while the 1960 appropriation amounted to 9 per cent, he said.

"I think the figures speak for themselves," he added.

On the question of a master plan, O'Donnell observed that without one as a guide "you don't know where to step next."

In regard to the acquisition program, Kaylor pointed to a survey conducted by Resources for the Future, Inc., which placed Maryland forty-sixth among the 50 states, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, in meeting its recreational land needs for the future.

The survey, estimating Maryland's population at 6,500,000, in the year 2000, showed the state would need 520,000 acres of park land to adequately meet the demand for outdoor recreation.

O'Donnell challenged the conclusion, "That's an awful lot of land," he said. "We have to keep some land available for houses unless we all live in a mile-high skyscraper."

The estimate of land needed for parks was unrealistic, he added, because it didn't take into account private acreage that would be left in open spaces.

The Kaylor-O'Donnell exchange is the latest round in the controversy over the pace and pattern of park development.

Earlier, Albert P. Backhaus, director of public improvements, denied a complaint from Kaylor that his agency was responsible for development delays.

Man Sentenced In Motor Case

An Oldtown area man was given a jail sentence in Trial Magistrate Court yesterday after he was convicted of a motor vehicle violation.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt sentenced the man, Charles V. Allen, of RD 4, city, after convicting him of operating a motor vehicle on a revoked license.

The man was given a 30-day jail term and fined $100.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Weatherholt noted that Allen has been convicted of five serious motor violations since March of 1956. Yesterday was his second conviction of operating on a revoked or suspended permit.

Allen was apprehended November 25 by Trooper John W. McFarland.

Students To Hold Church Service

A group from Western Maryland College will take part in the Sunday service at Emmanuel Methodist Church at 11 a. m., according to Rev. Harold R. McClay Sr., pastor.

They are Albert Brown, who will deliver the message and Carl Strein, who will assist in the service. Wayne Conrad is president of the Student Christian Association.

Extra Dividend Is Declared

The Board of Directors of First National Bank and Trust Company declared an extra dividend of 60 cents per share payable December 23, to stockholders of record December 10. Regular semi-annual dividends of 50 cents per share each were paid in January and July 1960. Total dividend disbursements in 1960 of $1.60 per share compare with 80 cents per share for a like number of shares in 1950, for an increase of 100 per cent over the 10-year period.

The regular semi-annual dividend of 50 cents per share was also declared payable January 10, 1961, to shareholders of record December 31, 1960.

Missionary Rally Slated

The Church of God, Fifth and Seymour Street, will hold a missionary rally today at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. George B. Horton, who recently returned from missionary work in the Dominican Republic, will speak.

Rev. Mr. Horton served as overseer of the Church of God Mission work in the land of Santo Domingo for several years until the recent uprisings. He will show slides and pictures taken covering his missionary work.

Rev. C. D. Coley, pastor of the local church, said the event will be in the form of a district rally, with all of the Churches of God in the area participating.

Rev. Mr. Horton, a native of nearby Saxton, Pa., attended the University of Pennsylvania and the North West Bible Institute at Minot, N. D.

$5,000 Damage Suit Is Filed

Suit was docketed in Circuit Court here by Charles V. Rice, 128 East College Avenue, Frostburg, against Stanley Roy Stanton, Meyersdale, as the result of a two-car crash last September 5 on U.S. Route 40 near Grantsville.

The declaration in the case was filed by Fred H. Anderson, attorney for Rice.

It was stated that Rice was headed east on Route 40 about a mile east of Grantsville and that Stanton was driving his car in the same direction.

Rice claims he suffered severe injuries and loss of wages and incurred hospital and medical expenses when Stanton's machine struck the rear of his auto. Damages of $5,000 is asked in the suit.

Piedmont Native Dies In Washington

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Moran, 71, a native of Piedmont, W. Va., died suddenly Wednesday in his study at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church in Washington where he had been pastor 24 years.

Msgr. Moran was found on the floor of his study by an assistant pastor. He had apparently been working on correspondence at his desk and suffered a heart attack.

Msgr. Moran was born in Piedmont a son of the late John D. and Mary (Lennan) Moran.

He was educated in St. Peter's Parochial School in Westernport, studied for the priesthood at St. Charles College and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, and was ordained in 1915 by the late James Cardinal Gibbons.

One of the best known priests in the Archdiocese of Washington, Msgr. Moran was an advisor to the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, since the Archdiocese was established in 1948.

As spiritual director of the Union of Holy Name Societies for 22 years he counseled thousands of Catholic laymen.

Msgr. Moran celebrated his first Mass 45 years ago in St. Peter's Church at Westernport.

Survivors include a brother, Thomas A. Moran, Glen Burnie; a sister, Miss Anna Moran, of Carol Manor, Hyattsville, and a nephew, Joseph Moran, Glen Burnie.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated on Monday at 10:30 a. m. in St. Thomas Church in Washington.

Msgr. Moran's body will be taken to the Fredlock Funeral Home in Piedmont Monday afternoon.

A Requiem Mass will then be celebrated on Tuesday at 10 a. m. in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, in Barton. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Westernport.

Lashbaugh Named To Court Post

James M. Roby, register of wills in Allegany County Orphans Court, has appointed William Lashbaugh, Zihlman, as a clerk in his office.

A vacancy existed since Roby assumed his post as register of wills a few months ago upon the death of A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg.

Lashbaugh is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lashbaugh, Sr. He is a graduate of Beall High School.

New Guinea is the second largest island on earth. Exceeded in size only by Greenland, the island forms a rugged mountain barrier between Southeast Asia and the islands of the South Seas. The Netherlands governs the western half of New Guinea, and the rest is under Australian control.

October Traffic Toll Highest In 5 Years

CHICAGO (UPI) — American motorists chalked up a five-year record for recklessness during October with 3,680 persons dead in traffic accidents, the National Safety Council said Thursday.

It was the nation's highest October traffic toll since 1955.

The October toll — up 7 per cent from October, 1959 — raised the year's total to 31,120 dead. This is a 2 per cent boost over the figure at this time last year.

The ratio of driver miles to deaths, despite the increase in fatalities, remained constant for the period due to a boost in highway travel.

Edward MacWilliams of Virginia Beach, Va., introduced the quiz-type program on radio.

Deaths And Funerals

MRS. PERCY RACE

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Bernice P. Race, 43, wife of Percy Race, 39 Centennial Street, died yesterday in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where she was admitted Wednesday afternoon.

Born in Peninsula, Ohio, she was a daughter of Mrs. Pearl (Bush) Shuey of Grahamtown and the late William B. Shuey. Mrs. Race held membership in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the choir and Cenchrean Missionary Society.

Surviving, besides her husband and mother, are three sons, James, Robert and Charles Race, at home; two brothers, William Shuey, Akron, and Arthur Shuey, Frostburg, and two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Layman, here, and Mrs. Harvey Williams, Greenville, S.C.

The body is at the Durst Funeral Home.

Services will be held at the funeral home Saturday at 2 p.m. with Rev. Kenneth Morelock, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Frostburg, officiating. Interment will be in Frostburg Memorial Park.

Pallbearers will be John M. Pelton, Richard Green, Carl Layman, Harry Crowe, Larry Fresh, and William Lemmert.

KIMBLE FUNERAL

Services for Charles E. Kimble, 27, of Oldtown, who died Tuesday in Memorial Hospital, will be conducted today at 2 p.m. at the Hafer Funeral Home by Rev. George H. Jeffrey. Interment will be in Davis Memorial Burial Park and pallbearers will be Michael Malcolm, Edward Peer, Charles Bishop, Philip Nixon, Hanly Buckley and Luther Ritchie.

GEORGE R. FOLK

KEYSER, W. Va.—George Richard Folk, 80, of RD 3, Keyser, died yesterday morning in Pullian Nursing Home here. He had been in ill health for the past year.

Mr. Folk was born in Mineral County, a son of the late Thomas and Nancy (Ravenscroft) Folk. He was a retired carpenter.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. George Diehl, RD 3, Keyser; a brother, O. J. Faulk, Keyser; five grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Rogers Funeral Home with Rev. M. R. Floyd, pastor of Keyser EUB Church, officiating. Interment will be in Queen's Point Cemetery.

The body will be at the Rogers Funeral Home after 2 p. m. today.

MISS MERYL MacKAY

Miss Meryle MacKay, a frequent visitor in Cumberland during her trips to the United States, died November 20 of a heart attack in Rome, Italy.

Miss MacKay, who had been in the American consular service abroad for 36 years, primarily in Italy, spent six weeks in Cumberland last summer as a guest of Mrs. F. Brooke Whiting.

She had retired from the consular service last March. She was a native of Scituate, Mass., and was the last member of her immediate family.

Underwood Views Vacancy On W.Va. Board Of Education

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. Cecil H. Underwood had under consideration Thursday a vacancy on the State Board of Education, but there's been no indication as to his final action.

Underwood is not required to name a successor to James E. Ansel of Moorefield, but a spokesman in the governor's office says "several persons" have expressed an interest in the post.

Ansel's term expired Nov. 4 on the nine-member board, of which no more than five can be from the same political party. Ansel is a Democrat, as are three others now on the board.

Naval Academy To Be Inspected

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The board of visitors to the U.S. Naval Academy will make its annual inspection of the service school next week.

The purpose of the 15-man board is to report to the President on such matters as morale, discipline, curriculum, physical equipment and fiscal affairs. Members are appointed by the President, vice president and speaker of the House.

The board will choose its chairman when it begins its five-day inspection tour Monday.

Members include Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University; Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., and Rep. Richard E. Lankford, D-Md.

FIRE HITS 'GHOST TOWN'

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI)—Fire destroyed 11 unoccupied houses in a coal "ghost town" near here Wednesday night. The blaze occurred at Big Stick, Raleigh County, spreading among old houses owned by Lillybrook Coal Co.

GETTING READY FOR THE NEXT ONE?—Residents of International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border, are digging out from under the first blizzard of the season. Nearly a foot of snow fell and was piled high by strong winds.

FCC Group Endorses Tryout Of Pay TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Communications Commission (FCC) staff group Thursday endorsed a plan to give pay television a three-year tryout at Hartford, Conn.

The FCC broadcast bureau said it could find "no substantial reason why the public interest would not be served" by granting the application of R. K. O., General Inc. and Zenith Radio Corp., to conduct a toll TV experiment there.

The full commission must act on the application.

BUNCHE TO SPEAK

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Marshall College Community Forum Dec. 10 will feature an address by United Nations troubleshooter Ralph J. Bunche. Dr. Bunche originally had been scheduled to appear in October but had to call off the trip here due to the Congo crisis.

More than 200 species of birds find sanctuary in Yellowstone National park.

Exports Show Gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department Thursday estimated the value of U.S. exports in October at $1,759,000,000, a gain of 7 per cent from September.

The increase was figured after adjustment for the usual October rise in exports. Without the adjustment the October total was about 9 per cent higher than September's.

For the first 10 months of 1960, the department said, U.S. exports came to $16,229,000,000, a large gain of 20 per cent over the similar period of 1959.

The Real Iron Curtain: Mine Fields, Bloodhounds And Sentries

By ALLEGRA BRANSON

VIENNA (UPI) — The "Iron Curtain" seen close up is more than a politician's phrase — it is an ugly reality.

The "Curtain" over much of its length consists of two lines of wire entanglement, mine fields, control strips, signal wires, defense ditches and watch towers. Its average width is 550-650 yards. It is found on all boundaries where the eastern Communist satellites touch the West.

The wire entanglement consists of stretched out barbed wire. The 4-foot-tall posts are set in concrete in the earth 6-8 feet east of the border. A second row of barbed wire is 7 feet from the first. Between the border marking stones and the wire fence is a path which the Communist border patrols use for their "control" walks.

Many of the mine fields were newly sown in 1957 with tread mines which explode with the slightest movement. They are very hard to locate, as they are camouflaged with clumps of earth. Any one of them will explode when disturbed by a weight as little as 6 pounds. Where the border crosses a lake, the barbed wire continues into the water. Mines are attached to the permanent buoys.

Marked With Flags

The mines are planted in the earth in so-called "objective patterns." Sometimes they are in three row mosaics, sometimes in lopsided rows, and sometimes in no discernible pattern. Every mine field belongs exclusively to the plan of a mile-long border strip. The end of each mine field is marked with white or red flags.

Every so often there is a small space of 3-4 yards between the flags, leaving a narrow exit across the minefield. A taut wire 3 yards behind the barbed wire marks the limit of the minefield and touching it sets off signal rockets.

Next is a narrow field called the "silent field" into which only officers are allowed to enter, and then only in special cases. Patrols enter only when a man has been discovered attempting to flee.

East of the "silent field" run the control strips, a part of the Iron Curtain which is kept unsown and carefully raked. Specially trained officers are concerned only with reading the traces left in this soft strip of earth.

Has Peep Holes

The line of watch towers is the next part of the death strip. Sometimes they are built touching the border of the control strips and other times they are from 50-250 yards away. The distance depends on the visibility and the contour of the land. The watch tower is 8-10 yards tall — a simple wooden cabin perched on a rickety wooden scaffolding. The watch cabin is outfitted with four small rectangular peep holes, and is surrounded by a narrow balcony. The structure, when viewed from afar, looks like a factory whistle stuck in the middle of nowhere.

The border soldier, a member of the state security service, is taught that his enemies — i.e., the "imperialists," "fascists" and "capitalists" — may approach under the earth and along secret ways in order to snuff out his life and that of his country.

He learns that although there are no watch towers, no mine fields and no barbed wire on the other side, the "peoples democracies" must be protected from secret infiltration. Thus he faces his western neighbor with a real hate and is ready to fire at anyone who comes from there.

To protect the actual Iron Curtain from infiltration from either direction, there are Communist patrols of two or three men each.

They move along two lines — one next to the cleared control strips, the other between the numerous watch towers. Their duty hours are so arranged that patrols along the same line meet one another once an hour. If any sort of border violation is discovered, the patrol remains standing and one of the soldiers reports to the watch tower, which contains a telephone with a direct line to the next post. This post can, in turn, call the defense department.

The defense department will be notified if as few as 10 men have been discovered. When the band consists of only two or three it is cause enough to seal the 6-12 mile wide military border.

This is done by doubling the patrols, controlling all roads with soldiers and notifying civil agents and informers. Bloodhounds are brought into the trouble area and the Iron Curtain becomes an iron belt, completely under military control.

Can't Run Far

The intruder (or, as one says in the "peoples democracies," the "enemy") has little chance of success. His traces, which are impossible to conceal in the carefully smoothed control strip, usually will be found by the patrols within the hour.

It is hard to find refuge anywhere because nobody knows who is an agent of the secret police. A person feels he is so closely guarded that he wouldn't even risk hiding members of his own family.

If the intruder escapes the border patrols — and astonishingly many do — he probably will be discovered before getting too far. Everyone who lives inside the 12 mile border area is given a so-called "border-area pass" which must be renewed every three months and presented for inspection to the local police chief once a month.

System Has Holes

These facts would make it appear that the Iron Curtain is impenetrable. But, as law statutes have holes, so has this system. For example, in a few places, as in Deutschkreutz, Austria, the Iron Curtain runs between the houses of the village, turning neighbors into citizens of hostile countries. In Eisenstadt, Austria, the curtain divides the town graveyard into East and West.

There also is a part of the military area which is not mined. This is a "hole" where trains cross the border into the West. The control here, however, is most careful. At night the trains are lit with floodlights from below, so that nobody can hide between the axles. Every inch of the train is then searched before it crosses the border.

There are, however, numerous cases where flight into the West has been successful. But excepting the cases where the border officers can be bribed (at prices ranging from $1,000 to $5,000), taking a chance on crossing the minefields safely is like playing a game of roulette.

And the stakes can go no higher — freedom or death.

State Boosts Share Of County School Costs

The budget of the Maryland Board of Education, in which an increase of $5.5 million in state aid for the various counties is provided, will result in Allegany County receiving an estimated $165,079 more than for the current school term.

Allegany County will receive an allotment of $3,247,788 for the school term of 1961-62. The state aid for the current school year is $3,082,699, according to Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of county schools.

All but about $400,000 of the $5.5 million raise is mandatory under present formulas for aid based on the number of pupils and classrooms.

The board proposed $93,550,064 in state aid for public schools as part of a total budget of $117,731,519. Operation of the State's public schools was budgeted at $102,210,128. Other items in the total include expenses for teachers colleges, pensions for retired teachers, and similar allied education costs.

AFTER FATAL CRASH—A Lamont, Alberta, schoolboy looks over the wreckage of a high school bus in which 16 of his student friends were killed and 26 injured. Hit by a train at an unguarded crossing, the bus was dragged for more than a quarter of a mile. At bottom, Tommy Tompkins, 13, one of the injured children, recovers at Lamont Hospital. With his brother, Keith, 12, Tommy was in the back of the bus and narrowly escaped.

Park Planning Lag Charge Termed Unjustified

James J. O'Donnell, state planning director, has challenged as "unjustified and unwarranted" the conclusion that Maryland's park development is lagging.

O'Donnell pointed to a $2,000,000 reserve for land acquisition which has been awarded to the Department of Forests and Parks, which sets its own pace of land acquisition.

Joseph F. Kaylor, the director of forests and parks, last week said the state's acquisition program was badly lagging and that a minimum of 10,000 acres had to be acquired and developed annually to meet recreation needs.

Kaylor said the state should follow "the program of land acquisition contained in the master plan of this department which calls for 50,000 acres of state parks and recreation areas by 1965."

Regarding the master plan, O'Donnell said it dates back to 1952 and has not been significantly revised. He added that Senate Joint Resolution No. 9 of the 1956 General Assembly called for its revision, "but if it has been, we haven't seen it."

The planner said the state spent $8,100,000 for its forest and parks system from 1947 to 1960. Of that amount, $5,000,000 was earmarked for acquisition, he added.

In the loans of 1950 and 1960, O'Donnell said, forests and parks received $1,969,000 and $1,711,500 respectively, with $1,705,000 and $1,516,000 of each sum devoted to acquiring new parks land.

Moreover, the 1959 allocation was 12½ per cent of all the loan money, while the 1960 appropriation amounted to 9 per cent, he said.

"I think the figures speak for themselves," he added.

On the question of a master plan, O'Donnell observed that without one as a guide "you don't know where to step next."

In regard to the acquisition program, Kaylor pointed to a survey conducted by Resources for the Future, Inc., which placed Maryland forty-sixth among the 50 states, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, in meeting its recreational land needs for the future.

The survey, estimating Maryland's population at 6,500,000, in the year 2000, showed the state would need 520,000 acres of park land to adequately meet the demand for outdoor recreation.

O'Donnell challenged the conclusion, "That's an awful lot of land," he said. "We have to keep some land available for houses unless we all live in a mile-high skyscraper."

The estimate of land needed for parks was unrealistic, he added, because it didn't take into account private acreage that would be left in open spaces.

The Kaylor-O'Donnell exchange is the latest round in the controversy over the pace and pattern of park development.

Earlier, Albert P. Backhaus, director of public improvements, denied a complaint from Kaylor that his agency was responsible for development delays.

Man Sentenced In Motor Case

An Oldtown area man was given a jail sentence in Trial Magistrate Court yesterday after he was convicted of a motor vehicle violation.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt sentenced the man, Charles V. Allen, of RD 4, city, after convicting him of operating a motor vehicle on a revoked license.

The man was given a 30-day jail term and fined $100.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Weatherholt noted that Allen has been convicted of five serious motor violations since March of 1956. Yesterday was his second conviction of operating on a revoked or suspended permit.

Allen was apprehended November 25 by Trooper John W. McFarland.

Extra Dividend Is Declared

The Board of Directors of First National Bank and Trust Company declared an extra dividend of 60 cents per share payable December 23, to stockholders of record December 10. Regular semi-annual dividends of 50 cents per share each were paid in January and July 1960. Total dividend disbursements in 1960 of $1.60 per share compare with 80 cents per share for a like number of shares in 1950, for an increase of 100 per cent over the 10-year period.

The regular semi-annual dividend of 50 cents per share was also declared payable January 10, 1961, to shareholders of record December 31, 1960.

$5,000 Damage Suit Is Filed

Suit was docketed in Circuit Court here by Charles V. Rice, 128 East College Avenue, Frostburg, against Stanley Roy Stanton, Meyersdale, as the result of a two-car crash last September 5 on U.S. Route 40 near Grantsville.

The declaration in the case was filed by Fred H. Anderson, attorney for Rice.

It was stated that Rice was headed east on Route 40 about a mile east of Grantsville and that Stanton was driving his car in the same direction.

Rice claims he suffered severe injuries and loss of wages and incurred hospital and medical expenses when Stanton's machine struck the rear of his auto. Damages of $5,000 is asked in the suit.

Piedmont Native Dies In Washington

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Moran, 71, a native of Piedmont, W. Va., died suddenly Wednesday in his study at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church in Washington where he had been pastor 24 years.

Msgr. Moran was found on the floor of his study by an assistant pastor. He had apparently been working on correspondence at his desk and suffered a heart attack.

Msgr. Moran was born in Piedmont a son of the late John D. and Mary (Lennan) Moran.

He was educated in St. Peter's Parochial School in Westernport, studied for the priesthood at St. Charles College and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, and was ordained in 1915 by the late James Cardinal Gibbons.

One of the best known priests in the Archdiocese of Washington, Msgr. Moran was an advisor to the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, since the Archdiocese was established in 1948.

As spiritual director of the Union of Holy Name Societies for 22 years he counseled thousands of Catholic laymen.

Msgr. Moran celebrated his first Mass 45 years ago in St. Peter's Church at Westernport.

Survivors include a brother, Thomas A. Moran, Glen Burnie; a sister, Miss Anna Moran, of Carol Manor, Hyattsville, and a nephew, Joseph Moran, Glen Burnie.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated on Monday at 10:30 a. m. in St. Thomas Church in Washington.

Msgr. Moran's body will be taken to the Fredlock Funeral Home in Piedmont Monday afternoon.

A Requiem Mass will then be celebrated on Tuesday at 10 a. m. in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, in Barton. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Westernport.

Lashbaugh Named To Court Post

James M. Roby, register of wills in Allegany County Orphans Court, has appointed William Lashbaugh, Zihlman, as a clerk in his office.

A vacancy existed since Roby assumed his post as register of wills a few months ago upon the death of A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg.

Lashbaugh is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lashbaugh, Sr. He is a graduate of Beall High School.

Do-It-Yourself Traveler Misses Lot In Greece

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following travel feature on Greece was written for UPI by Mary Clara Laughlin, a member of the American Society of Travel Agents and a partner in a New York travel agency.)

By MARY CLARA LAUGHLIN

(Written for UPI)

Greece has the best guides in western Europe, and a good guide is like a good teacher — he gives you the chance to enjoy learning.

A visit to Greece is necessarily bound up with learning — not that all travel is not, but with Greek history occupying the place it does in the development of man, a trip to Athens and Piraeus, Eleusis, Corinth, Mycenae and Epidaurus, Mystra and Olympia is sightseeing into the birthplaces of art, literature, sport, philosophy, science.

Greece is a country where the do-it-yourself traveler must miss most of the fun. But if a tourist takes advantage of the excellent facilities the Greek government is providing, even the least academic person, roaming in the Mediterranean sun and Aegean beauty, can appreciate a dip into antiquity.

There is nothing lovelier than springtime in the Mediterranean, and Greece is a natural place to begin a Mediterranean tour. There are frequent sailings of luxury liners into the Mediterranean and daily air departures for Athens. The Italian Line, Greek Line and the American Export Line alternate with deluxe express ships to Italy and on to Piraeus, the port of Athens, in 10 to 12 days.

If you like, you can disembark at Naples or Venice and take one of the charming miniature ships of the Adriatica Line to Piraeus, and some of these sailings stop at Dalmatian ports enroute.

Daily jet service takes 11 hours from New York to Rome and there are frequent connections to Athens. Round trip economy air fare to Athens is $696 during the winter months, or $554 on a 17-day excursion; tourist class steamer fares vary from $287 up, one way, to Piraeus.

Since World War II, with the aid of Marshall Plan funds, Greeces' government has done a remarkable job of encouraging tourism by building roads in the Peloponnesus and little tourist hotels and restaurants at the great classical sites of ancient Greece, where good food and lodging can be had at moderate cost, providing the guides I mentioned, promoting low-cost bus tours to the great archaeological sites, and making the islands easy to get to by ship and plane on regularly scheduled services.

From Athens there are four and five-day bus trips for $55 and $65 to Eleusis, famed for its Mysteries in ancient times; old Corinth, which was the richest city-state and rival of Athens in the 5th Century B.C., and where St. Paul lived and preached in Roman times; Mycenae, with the ruins of the palace of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra; Epidaurus, where performances are still given in June and July in the world's oldest theatre; the monastaries at Mystra with their fine Byzantine frescoes and paintings; Olympia, site of the original Olympiads, first celebrated in the 8th Century B. C., and where in the museum are some of the greatest of classical Greek sculpture of the 5th Century B.C., and to ancient Delphi, where the worship of Apollo brought people from all over the ancient world to consult the famous Oracles.

There are other regularly scheduled trips to the north of Greece — to the Hanging Monastaries of Meteora with their great library of manuscripts, and to Thermopylae.

Athens itself is a fascinating city, dominated by the Arcopolis where in summer time concerts and classical drama are performed below in the Odeion of Herodes Atticus. The illuminations at night in Athens rival those of Rome and Paris. There are quaint taverns for late diners in the old quarter, deluxe hotel restaurants in nearby Kifisia pine forests, or at Astir Beach, towards Piraeus.

From Athens there are half-day excursions to the Plains of Marathon where the Persians were defeated in the famous stand by the Athenians in 490 B.C.; and to other famous historical spots.

Embassy Row Gives Yuletide World Flavor

By MARISA MASCIOLI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On Embassy Row in Washington, Christmas has an international flavor.

Each embassy celebrates the season in keeping with the customs and traditions of its country. Going from one embassy to another during the holidays is rather like taking a fast round-the-world trip on Santa Claus' sleigh.

The season begins Dec. 6 when the Dutch ambassador holds a children's party in honor of St. Nicholas' day. Two embassy attaches are chosen to play the parts of St. Nicholas (or Sinterklaas as he's known in Dutch) and his faithful servant, Black Peter.

Sinterklaas, whose name became Santa Claus on English tongues, was a real-life Christian bishop who loved children. The Dutch still remember him as he was — a venerable old gentleman with a long white beard, bishop's mitre and long red mantle. Black Peter was a jolly joker who accompanied the bishop on secret nocturnal rounds delivering presents to the homes of children.

At the Australian embassy, Santa Claus appears in the red suit and black boots that have become his trademark in English and American legend. The children never know it, but the man who chuckles "ho, ho, ho" behind the false white whiskers is none other than His Excellency, the ambassador himself, with two pillows tied around his waist.

The Italian ambassador gives a staff party at Christmas at which he also gives gifts to the children of his staff. Here a lovely Nativity scene is on display just as a miniature Nativity scene would be on display in every home in Italy at the time. Typical Christmas foods are served such as panettone, a sweet bread with candied fruits in it, and torrone, a delicious hard candy.

The Philippine ambassador gives a dinner party for his staff and friends of the embassy to celebrate the occasion.

He also includes a program of carol singing. The customary Christmas tree is lit and all engage in an exchange of gifts.

Even some of the non-Christian countries of the free world will participate in Washington's Christmas festivities. The embassies of these countries do so by entering the city's Pageant of Peace.

The Pageant starts on Dec. 23 with the President lighting the 90-foot Christmas tree on the ellipse behind the White House. It closes on the last day of the year.

The President's Park, which is the sight of the ellipse, also is the backdrop for a life-size Nativity scene and a stage on which is presented a continuous program of events. These will include choir singing, service band preformances, English bell ringers and a live Nativity play. A yule log burns continuously in a pit by the stage during the pageant.

A Pathway of Peace lined with Christmas trees leads to the President's tree. The trees serve as symbols of peace given to the city by the states and countries in the pageant.

Non-Christian nations also have given other symbols to the pageant. Last year Cambodia presented a model pagota. At the same time Pakistain gave a model of the Badshahi Mosque, while Japan gave a richly ornamented lantern. These gifts signify that these nations even though they do not believe in Christmas do believe in peace, faith and goodwill towards all men.

Parents Of Baby Who Died Of Birth Defect Learn Lesson Of Hope

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch was written by a young Laurelville, Ohio, mother, telling in her own words the tragic story of what happens in a family when a child is born with a serious birth defect.)

By MARY STROUS

Written for United Press International

Our baby Laura was born on Mother's Day seven years ago.

We lost Laura seven weeks later on Father's Day.

She gave a soft little sigh as she died in my arms. My husband and I buried her with the rattle to which she had clung tightly during her brief life.

But Laura, who died of the terrible birth defect known as open spine and too much fluid on the brain, still lives in the hearts of her father Don and myself. When asked today by strangers, we always say we have three daughters (instead of really only two), and I want to explain why.

Quite simply, we feel that each of us, including our tiny, beautiful Laura, is brought into the world to serve a purpose, even if the stay on earth is as tragically short as 49 days.

For years we were numbed by our baby's passing. But today we recognize that in being asked by the National Foundation to renew our memories of those despairing seven weeks, my husband and I are somehow fulfilling the purpose of little Laura's fleeting visit.

That purpose was and is to repeat as forcefully as we can the lessons that we have learned:

— Medical scientists insist that parents should not be ashamed or humiliated over the birth of an infant with a congenital malformation (every day in the year, 685 infants are born with significant birth defects); instead, face the situation bravely and seek professional advice. Don't "hide" the infant or child because you have secret feelings of guilt. Those feelings aren't justified.

— There is no medical evidence that birth defects are always hereditary.

— There is no scientific evidence that because a couple has had one defective baby, they are likely to have another. Doctors at Columbus, Ohio, near our farm at Laurelville, told us our chances of having another malformed baby were something like one in 40,000. (Donna Marguerite, 5 years old, and Julie Ann, 2, who followed Laura after Don and I had reflected deeply and sought advice, could not be healthier or more normal.)

To fathers and mothers confronting today the situation that we faced in 1953, these points may seem oversimplified, even callous. But by no means have Don and I forgotten our hopelessness and indeed our self-loathing during those 49 days and nights when we took turns holding Laura in our arms, or sat hour after hour beside her bassinet, watching life drain from her eyes, from her breathing.

We detested ourselves because of torments that something was wrong physically with us, or that a shameful defect had been inherited from our forebearers (later proved untrue), and that we were thus responsible for this cruelty to an innocent baby. We hated ourselves because we could eat while helpless Laura, fading rapidly before us, could not.

At that time, medical science could do nothing for her.

Never will we forget the frantic drive, while our baby was dying, to our church so that she might be baptized before she left us. In some way our congregation had learned of the reason for our headlong visit, and the tears of those sorrowing people flowed with ours.

Our Laura was one of the 250,000 babies who are born each year in our country with significant birth defects; that tragic total is growing with our increasing population. Our baby was one of 34,000 who die annually from these congenital malformations; and that calamitous figure also is mounting.

At last, something constructive is being done about birth defects. With March of Dimes contributions, the National Foundation is directing a broad scientific study of this devastating puzzle, just as it fought polio and in time found the Salk vaccine to prevent it.

Increase In Dues Approved By AMA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association Wednesday okayed a dues increase for its 140,000 members. It ultimately will yield nearly $3 million a year.

Approval for raising AMA dues was given by the association's policymaking House of Delegates at the organization's annual clinical meeting.

October Traffic Toll Highest In 5 Years

CHICAGO (UPI) — American motorists chalked up a five-year record for recklessness during October with 3,680 persons dead in traffic accidents, the National Safety Council said Thursday.

It was the nation's highest October traffic toll since 1955.

The October toll — up 7 per cent from October, 1959 — raised the year's total to 31,120 dead. This is a 2 per cent boost over the figure at this time last year.

The ratio of driver miles to deaths, despite the increase in fatalities, remained constant for the period due to a boost in highway travel.

Edward MacWilliams of Virginia Beach, Va., introduced the quiz-type program on radio.

Deaths And Funerals

MRS. PERCY RACE

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Bernice P. Race, 43, wife of Percy Race, 39 Centennial Street, died yesterday in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where she was admitted Wednesday afternoon.

Born in Peninsula, Ohio, she was a daughter of Mrs. Pearl (Bush) Shuey of Grahamtown and the late William B. Shuey. Mrs. Race held membership in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the choir and Cenchrean Missionary Society.

Surviving, besides her husband and mother, are three sons, James, Robert and Charles Race, at home; two brothers, William Shuey, Akron, and Arthur Shuey, Frostburg, and two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Layman, here, and Mrs. Harvey Williams, Greenville, S.C.

The body is at the Durst Funeral Home.

Services will be held at the funeral home Saturday at 2 p.m. with Rev. Kenneth Morelock, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Frostburg, officiating. Interment will be in Frostburg Memorial Park.

Pallbearers will be John M. Pelton, Richard Green, Carl Layman, Harry Crowe, Larry Fresh, and William Lemmert.

KIMBLE FUNERAL

Services for Charles E. Kimble, 27, of Oldtown, who died Tuesday in Memorial Hospital, will be conducted today at 2 p.m. at the Hafer Funeral Home by Rev. George H. Jeffrey. Interment will be in Davis Memorial Burial Park and pallbearers will be Michael Malcolm, Edward Peer, Charles Bishop, Philip Nixon, Hanly Buckley and Luther Ritchie.

GEORGE R. FOLK

KEYSER, W. Va.—George Richard Folk, 80, of RD 3, Keyser, died yesterday morning in Pullian Nursing Home here. He had been in ill health for the past year.

Mr. Folk was born in Mineral County, a son of the late Thomas and Nancy (Ravenscroft) Folk. He was a retired carpenter.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. George Diehl, RD 3, Keyser; a brother, O. J. Faulk, Keyser; five grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Rogers Funeral Home with Rev. M. R. Floyd, pastor of Keyser EUB Church, officiating. Interment will be in Queen's Point Cemetery.

The body will be at the Rogers Funeral Home after 2 p. m. today.

MISS MERYL MacKAY

Miss Meryle MacKay, a frequent visitor in Cumberland during her trips to the United States, died November 20 of a heart attack in Rome, Italy.

Miss MacKay, who had been in the American consular service abroad for 36 years, primarily in Italy, spent six weeks in Cumberland last summer as a guest of Mrs. F. Brooke Whiting.

She had retired from the consular service last March. She was a native of Scituate, Mass., and was the last member of her immediate family.

Naval Academy To Be Inspected

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The board of visitors to the U.S. Naval Academy will make its annual inspection of the service school next week.

The purpose of the 15-man board is to report to the President on such matters as morale, discipline, curriculum, physical equipment and fiscal affairs. Members are appointed by the President, vice president and speaker of the House.

The board will choose its chairman when it begins its five-day inspection tour Monday.

Members include Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University; Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., and Rep. Richard E. Lankford, D-Md.

Underwood Views Vacancy On W.Va. Board Of Education

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. Cecil H. Underwood had under consideration Thursday a vacancy on the State Board of Education, but there's been no indication as to his final action.

Underwood is not required to name a successor to James E. Ansel of Moorefield, but a spokesman in the governor's office says "several persons" have expressed an interest in the post.

Ansel's term expired Nov. 4 on the nine-member board, of which no more than five can be from the same political party. Ansel is a Democrat, as are three others now on the board.

FCC Group Endorses Tryout Of Pay TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Communications Commission (FCC) staff group Thursday endorsed a plan to give pay television a three-year tryout at Hartford, Conn.

The FCC broadcast bureau said it could find "no substantial reason why the public interest would not be served" by granting the application of R. K. O. General Inc. and Zenith Radio Corp., to conduct a toll TV experiment there.

The full commission must act on the application.

BUNCHE TO SPEAK

Exports Show Gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department Thursday estimated the value of U.S. exports in October at $1,759,000,000, a gain of 7 per cent from September.

The increase was figured after adjustment for the usual October rise in exports. Without the adjustment the October total was about 9 per cent higher than September's.

For the first 10 months of 1960, the department said, U.S. exports came to $16,229,000,000, a large gain of 20 per cent over the similar period of 1959.

Smallest Union In U.S. Is A Real Money-Maker

By EDWARD NICKERSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The smallest international union in North America is a tight little group of 44 highly skilled members who make money—literally.

It's the International Assn. of Siderographers (AFL-CIO), whose scattered membership is charged with the precision task of making the plates from which currency, stocks, bonds and stamps are printed.

They work in an atmosphere of tight security.

Six are employed at the Federal Bureau of Engraving in Washington, where electroplating procedures have thinned their ranks. There are 20 in New York, 10 in Ottawa and 8 in Philadelphia.

All 44 working siderographers are members of the union. They pay low dues, enjoy excellent relations with their employers and earn wages that many executives would envy.

The craft developed out of the need to duplicate again and again on a steel plate a hand-cut master engraving, so that the reproductions are absolutely identical.

In the printing of money, for example, bill designs are engraved on a large plate in many positions so that a large sheet can be printed, then cut into individual bills. Printing is done on large sheets for efficiency.

The siderographers rock a soft steel cylinder under high pressure over the master engraving until it is reproduced precisely in the soft steel. The cylinder then is hardened and rocked over the printing plate to make new engravings indistinguishable from the original.

Another highly-skilled and essential part of the work is the reproduction of those intricate, interlaced lines you see on bonds and bills. They make forgery difficult. Rather than create a new design for each document, portions of old designs are combined in new patterns by siderographers.

Siderographers' skills do not come easily. At the American Bank Note Co., the union has accepted a company plan to subject job prospects to aptitude tests.

The applicant must show high mechanical ability, finger dexterity, above-average intelligence and capacity for patient attention to detail. Applicants for the American Bank Note Co. must also be high school graduates.

Those requirements, plus the advance of automation makes the long-term future of the union somewhat uncertain and have kept the siderographers from becoming a "family union" closed to outsiders.

Once fully-trained, the siderographer makes a base pay of $176 a week. In New York at least, there are regular opportunities to make overtime premium pay. It's not unusual for an American Bank Note Co. siderographer to make $12,000 a year.

The company has never had a strike.

In New York, siderographers make plates to print stock certificates, bonds, and some West Germany currency. For many years, the company made currency for Nationalist China.

Union president James W. Alexander, an A.B.N. employe, doesn't think any of his highly-skilled colleagues ever tried going into business for themselves—as counterfeiters, that is.

"I don't think we've ever had such a case," he says. "I think we're basically honest. Besides, it would be just too difficult to do it alone."

And they can't take home samples, either.

SIDEOGRAPHER—John Guynan "dresses" a steel cylinder after it has been rocked over a master engraving. Dressing a cylinder consists of taking out the rough spots before it is used to engrave steel plates.

231 Flood Projects Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A list of 231 flood control projects which a citizens group said should be started by the federal government included four long - proposed jobs in West Virginia.

The National Rivers & Harbors Conference, a non - partisan organization, urged the government to allocate $1.5 billion overall for the projects around the country.

U. S. Engineers recommended the West Virginia projects in a 1954 report, estimating their cost at some $38 million. The amount would be considerably higher today.

The West Virginia projects and the 1954 U. S. Engineers' cost estimates included:

Ben Bend Reservoir on Greenbrier River near Pence Springs, Summers County, $14 million.

Reservoir near Doddrill, Calhoun County, on Steer Creek, a Little Kanawha River tributary, $8.5 million.

Burnsville Reservoir on Little Kanawha River at Burnsville, Braxton County, $6.5 million.

Reservoir at East Lynn, Wayne County, on 12-Pole Creek, a tributary of the Ohio River, $9 million.

Little Snow Expected Today

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Snow showers and flurries which have dominated the West Virginia weather picture the past two days were expected to end by Friday.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said, however, sub-freezing temeratures would continue in most of the state.

Only one section of the state was expected to get any additional snow accumulation Thursday night. It was the north - central mountain region.

The cold front that arrived Tuesday left up to 3 inches of snow on the ground in some areas of the state. All major traffic arteries were reported passable, but the State Road Commission said there were some patches of ice in higher mountain elevations on the highways.

The highest temperature reported in the state Thursday was 36 at Huntington. Charleston had a 33, the only other major city where mercury climbed above the freezing mark.

Merger Plans Bared

The Real Iron Curtain: Mine Fields, Bloodhounds And Sentries

By ALLEGRA BRANSON

VIENNA (UPI) — The "Iron Curtain" seen close up is more than a politician's phrase — it is an ugly reality.

The "Curtain" over much of its length consists of two lines of wire entanglement, mine fields, control strips, signal wires, defense ditches and watch towers. Its average width is 550-650 yards. It is found on all boundaries where the eastern Communist satellites touch the West.

The wire entanglement consists of stretched out barbed wire. The 4-foot-tall posts are set in concrete in the earth 6-8 feet east of the border. A second row of barbed wire is 7 feet from the first. Between the border marking stones and the wire fence is a path which the Communist border patrols use for their "control" walks.

Many of the mine fields were newly sown in 1957 with tread mines which explode with the slightest movement. They are very hard to locate, as they are camouflaged with clumps of earth. Any one of them will explode when disturbed by a weight as little as 6 pounds. Where the border crosses a lake, the barbed wire continues into the water. Mines are attached to the permanent buoys.

Marked With Flags

The mines are planted in the earth in so-called "objective patterns." Sometimes they are in three row mosaics, sometimes in lopsided rows, and sometimes in no discernible pattern. Every mine field belongs exclusively to the plan of a mile-long border strip. The end of each mine field is marked with white or red flags.

Every so often there is a small space of 3-4 yards between the flags, leaving a narrow exit across the minefield. A taut wire 3 yards behind the barbed wire marks the limit of the minefield and touching it sets off signal rockets.

Next is a narrow field called the "silent field" into which only officers are allowed to enter, and then only in special cases. Patrols enter only when a man has been discovered attempting to flee.

East of the "silent field" run the control strips, a part of the Iron Curtain which is kept unsown and carefully raked. Specially trained officers are concerned only with reading the traces left in this soft strip of earth.

Has Peep Holes

The line of watch towers is the next part of the death strip. Sometimes they are built touching the border of the control strips and other times they are from 50-250 yards away. The distance depends on the visibility and the contour of the land. The watch tower is 8-10 yards tall — a simple wooden cabin perched on a rickety wooden scaffolding. The watch cabin is outfitted with four small rectangular peep holes, and is surrounded by a narrow balcony. The structure, when viewed from afar, looks like a factory whistle stuck in the middle of nowhere.

The border soldier, a member of the state security service, is taught that his enemies — i.e., the "imperialists," "fascists" and "capitalists" — may approach under the earth and along secret ways in order to snuff out his life and that of his country.

He learns that although there are no watch towers, no mine fields and no barbed wire on the other side, the "peoples democracies" must be protected from secret infiltration. Thus he faces his western neighbor with a real hate and is ready to fire at anyone who comes from there.

To protect the actual Iron Curtain from infiltration from either direction, there are Communist patrols of two or three men each.

They move along two lines — one next to the cleared control strips, the other between the numerous watch towers. Their duty hours are so arranged that patrols along the same line meet one another once an hour. If any sort of border violation is discovered, the patrol remains standing and one of the soldiers reports to the watch tower, which contains a telephone with a direct line to the next post. This post can, in turn, call the defense department.

The defense department will be notified if as few as 10 men have been discovered. When the band consists of only two or three it is cause enough to seal the 6-12 mile wide military border.

This is done by doubling the patrols, controlling all roads with soldiers and notifying civil agents and informers. Bloodhounds are brought into the trouble area and the Iron Curtain becomes an iron belt, completely under military control.

Can't Run Far

The intruder (or, as one says in the "peoples democracies," the "enemy") has little chance of success. His traces, which are impossible to conceal in the carefully smoothed control strip, usually will be found by the patrols within the hour.

It is hard to find refuge anywhere because nobody knows who is an agent of the secret police. A person feels he is so closely guarded that he wouldn't even risk hiding members of his own family.

If the intruder escapes the border patrols — and astonishingly many do — he probably will be discovered before getting too far. Everyone who lives inside the 12 mile border area is given a so-called "border-area pass" which must be renewed every three months and presented for inspection to the local police chief once a month.

System Has Holes

These facts would make it appear that the Iron Curtain is impenetrable. But, as law statutes have holes, so has this system. For example, in a few places, as in Deutschkreutz, Austria, the Iron Curtain runs between the houses of the village, turning neighbors into citizens of hostile countries. In Eisenstadt, Austria, the curtain divides the town graveyard into East and West.

There also is a part of the military area which is not mined. This is a "hole" where trains cross the border into the West. The control here, however, is most careful. At night the trains are lit with floodlights from below, so that nobody can hide between the axles. Every inch of the train is then searched before it crosses the border.

There are, however, numerous cases where flight into the West has been successful. But excepting the cases where the border officers can be bribed (at prices ranging from $1,000 to $5,000), taking a chance on crossing the minefields safely is like playing a game of roulette.

And the stakes can go no higher — freedom or death.

How Not To Burn Down Your House At Christmas Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Board of Fire Underwriters has issued these suggestions for choosing a Christmas tree, decorating it and keeping it fire-safe:

— Choose a small tree instead of a large one. It can be just as beautiful and less of a hazard.

— Keep the tree outdoors until you are ready to install it.

— Set up the tree in a place where it does not block a doorway. It is best to set it up in the coolest part of a room, away from radiators, heaters and fireplaces.

— Stand the tree in water to retard drying.

— Use fireproof decorations of glass or metal, avoiding cotton or paper decorations.

— Set up electric trains away from the tree.

— Be sure your strings of electric Christmas lights are in good condition. Discard sets with frayed wiring. When buying new sets, look for the UL (Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.) label. Lighted candles should not be used on trees.

— There should be a switch some distance from the tree for turning all light on and off.

— Don't leave tree lights burning when away from home.

— Inspect the tree from time to time to see whether needles turn brown. If they have, change the position of the lights.

Take the tree down and discard it outdoors when needles start falling.

Do-It-Yourself Traveler Misses Lot In Greece

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following travel feature on Greece was written for UPI by Mary Clara Laughlin, a member of the American Society of Travel Agents and a partner in a New York travel agency.)

By MARY CLARA LAUGHLIN

(Written for UPI)

Greece has the best guides in western Europe, and a good guide is like a good teacher — he gives you the chance to enjoy learning.

A visit to Greece is necessarily bound up with learning — not that all travel is not, but with Greek history occupying the place it does in the development of man, a trip to Athens and Piraeus, Eleusis, Corinth, Mycenae and Epidaurus, Mystra and Olympia is sightseeing into the birthplaces of art, literature, sport, philosophy, science.

Greece is a country where the do-it-yourself traveler must miss most of the fun. But if a tourist takes advantage of the excellent facilities the Greek government is providing, even the least academic person, roaming in the Mediterranean sun and Aegean beauty, can appreciate a dip into antiquity.

There is nothing lovelier than springtime in the Mediterranean, and Greece is a natural place to begin a Mediterranean tour. There are frequent sailings of luxury liners into the Mediterranean and daily air departures for Athens. The Italian Line, Greek Line and the American Export Line alternate with deluxe express ships to Italy and on to Piraeus, the port of Athens, in 10 to 12 days.

If you like, you can disembark at Naples or Venice and take one of the charming miniature ships of the Adriatica Line to Piraeus, and some of these sailings stop at Dalmatian ports enroute.

Daily jet service takes 11 hours from New York to Rome and there are frequent connections to Athens. Round trip economy air fare to Athens is $696 during the winter months, or $554 on a 17-day excursion; tourist class steamer fares vary from $287 up, one way, to Piraeus.

Since World War II, with the aid of Marshall Plan funds, Greeces' government has done a remarkable job of encouraging tourism by building roads in the Peloponnesus and little tourist hotels and restaurants at the great classical sites of ancient Greece, where good food and lodging can be had at moderate cost, providing the guides I mentioned, promoting low-cost bus tours to the great archaeological sites, and making the islands easy to get to by ship and plane on regularly scheduled services.

From Athens there are four and five-day bus trips for $55 and $65 to Eleusis, famed for its Mysteries in ancient times; old Corinth, which was the richest city-state and rival of Athens in the 5th Century B.C., and where St. Paul lived and preached in Roman times; Mycenae, with the ruins of the palace of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra; Epidaurus, where performances are still given in June and July in the world's oldest theatre; the monastaries at Mystra with their fine Byzantine frescoes and paintings; Olympia, site of the original Olympiads, first celebrated in the 8th Century B. C., and where in the museum are some of the greatest of classical Greek sculpture of the 5th Century B.C., and to ancient Delphi, where the worship of Apollo brought people from all over the ancient world to consult the famous Oracles.

There are other regularly scheduled trips to the north of Greece — to the Hanging Monastaries of Meteora with their great library of manuscripts, and to Thermopylae.

Athens itself is a fascinating city, dominated by the Arcopolis where in summer time concerts and classical drama are performed below in the Odeion of Herodes Atticus. The illuminations at night in Athens rival those of Rome and Paris. There are quaint taverns for late diners in the old quarter, deluxe hotel restaurants in nearby Kifisia pine forests, or at Astir Beach, towards Piraeus.

From Athens there are half-day excursions to the Plains of Marathon where the Persians were defeated in the famous stand by the Athenians in 490 B.C.; and to other famous historical spots.

Toothbrush Owners Few In Polish School

WARSAW (UPI) — There's a wide open Polish market for an enterprising toothbrush salesman, the official Communist daily "Trybuna Ludu" said Wednesday.

Only 9 of 147 pupils in a country school owned toothbrushes, and only 4 of 57 new students in a normal school had brought a brush with them.

Embassy Row Gives Yuletide World Flavor

By MARISA MASCIOLI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On Embassy Row in Washington, Christmas has an international flavor.

Each embassy celebrates the season in keeping with the customs and traditions of its country. Going from one embassy to another during the holidays is rather like taking a fast round-the-world trip on Santa Claus' sleigh.

The season begins Dec. 6 when the Dutch ambassador holds a children's party in honor of St. Nicholas' day. Two embassy attaches are chosen to play the parts of St. Nicholas (or Sinterklaas as he's known in Dutch) and his faithful servant, Black Peter.

Sinterklaas, whose name became Santa Claus on English tongues, was a real-life Christian bishop who loved children. The Dutch still remember him as he was — a venerable old gentleman with a long white beard, bishop's mitre and long red mantle. Black Peter was a jolly joker who accompanied the bishop on secret nocturnal rounds delivering presents to the homes of children.

At the Australian embassy, Santa Claus appears in the red suit and black boots that have become his trademark in English and American legend. The children never know it, but the man who chuckles "ho, ho, ho" behind the false white whiskers is none other than His Excellency, the ambassador himself, with two pillows tied around his waist.

The Italian ambassador gives a staff party at Christmas at which he also gives gifts to the children of his staff. Here a lovely Nativity scene is on display just as a miniature Nativity scene would be on display in every home in Italy at the time. Typical Christmas foods are served such as panettone, a sweet bread with candied fruits in it, and torrone, a delicious hard candy.

The Philippine ambassador gives a dinner party for his staff and friends of the embassy to celebrate the occasion.

He also includes a program of carol singing. The customary Christmas tree is lit and all engage in an exchange of gifts.

Even some of the non-Christian countries of the free world will participate in Washington's Christmas festivities. The embassies of these countries do so by entering the city's Pageant of Peace.

The Pageant starts on Dec. 23 with the President lighting the 90-foot Christmas tree on the ellipse behind the White House. It closes on the last day of the year.

The President's Park, which is the sight of the ellipse, also is the backdrop for a life-size Nativity scene and a stage on which is presented a continuous program of events. These will include choir singing, service band preformances, English bell ringers and a live Nativity play. A yule log burns continuously in a pit by the stage during the pageant.

A Pathway of Peace lined with Christmas trees leads to the President's tree. The trees serve as symbols of peace given to the city by the states and countries in the pageant.

Non-Christian nations also have given other symbols to the pageant. Last year Cambodia presented a model pagota. At the same time Pakistain gave a model of the Badshahi Mosque, while Japan gave a richly ornamented lantern. These gifts signify that these nations even though they do not believe in Christmas do believe in peace, faith and goodwill towards all men.

Parents Of Baby Who Died Of Birth Defect Learn Lesson Of Hope

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch was written by a young Laurelville, Ohio, mother, telling in her own words the tragic story of what happens in a family when a child is born with a serious birth defect.)

By MARY STROUS

Written for United Press International

Our baby Laura was born on Mother's Day seven years ago.

We lost Laura seven weeks later on Father's Day.

She gave a soft little sigh as she died in my arms. My husband and I buried her with the rattle to which she had clung tightly during her brief life.

But Laura, who died of the terrible birth defect known as open spine and too much fluid on the brain, still lives in the hearts of her father Don and myself. When asked today by strangers, we always say we have three daughters (instead of really only two), and I want to explain why.

Quite simply, we feel that each of us, including our tiny, beautiful Laura, is brought into the world to serve a purpose, even if the stay on earth is as tragically short as 49 days.

For years we were numbed by our baby's passing. But today we recognize that in being asked by the National Foundation to renew our memories of those despairing seven weeks, my husband and I are somehow fulfilling the purpose of little Laura's fleeting visit.

That purpose was and is to repeat as forcefully as we can the lessons that we have learned:

— Medical scientists insist that parents should not be ashamed or humiliated over the birth of an infant with a congenital malformation (every day in the year, 685 infants are born with significant birth defects); instead, face the situation bravely and seek professional advice. Don't "hide" the infant or child because you have secret feelings of guilt. Those feelings aren't justified.

— There is no medical evidence that birth defects are always hereditary.

— There is no scientific evidence that because a couple has had one defective baby, they are likely to have another. Doctors at Columbus, Ohio, near our farm at Laurelville, told us our chances of having another malformed baby were something like one in 40,000. (Donna Marguerite, 5 years old, and Julie Ann, 2, who followed Laura after Don and I had reflected deeply and sought advice, could not be healthier or more normal.)

To fathers and mothers confronting today the situation that we faced in 1953, these points may seem oversimplified, even callous. But by no means have Don and I forgotten our hopelessness and indeed our self-loathing during those 49 days and nights when we took turns holding Laura in our arms, or sat hour after hour beside her bassinet, watching life drain from her eyes, from her breathing.

We detested ourselves because of torments that something was wrong physically with us, or that a shameful defect had been inherited from our forebearers (later proved untrue), and that we were thus responsible for this cruelty to an innocent baby. We hated ourselves because we could eat while helpless Laura, fading rapidly before us, could not.

At that time, medical science could do nothing for her.

Never will we forget the frantic drive, while our baby was dying, to our church so that she might be baptized before she left us. In some way our congregation had learned of the reason for our headlong visit, and the tears of those sorrowing people flowed with ours.

Our Laura was one of the 250,000 babies who are born each year in our country with significant birth defects: that tragic total is growing with our increasing population. Our baby was one of 34,000 who die annually from these congenital malformations; and that calamitous figure also is mounting.

At last, something constructive is being done about birth defects. With March of Dimes contributions, the National Foundation is directing a broad scientific study of this devastating puzzle, just as it fought polio and in time found the Salk vaccine to prevent it.

Increase In Dues Approved By AMA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association Wednesday okayed a dues increase for its 140,000 members. It ultimately will yield nearly $3 million a year.

Approval for raising AMA dues was given by the association's policymaking House of Delegates at the organization's annual clinical meeting.

Buys Interests

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The Ancora Corp. of San Francisco, Calif., has purchased mineral interests in more than 100 undrilled well locations at the Citronelle oil field, it was announced. Ancora made the deal with Jett Drilling Co., Inc. of Shreveport, La. on more than 4,000 acres of land surrounding present production.

ELECT TECH PROF

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (UPI) — Dr. Reed Davis, professor of business education at West Virginia Tech is the new president of the Southern Business Education Association, it was disclosed Wednesday. Davis was elected during the group's 38th annual convention in Atlanta last week.

Adoption Difficult, But Agencies Do Have Heart

'Matching' Parents, Babies Is A Major Problem

By NORMA GAUHN
AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK (AP)—You're too fat to adopt a child; lose weight.

You're not bright enough; give up your foster child.

The real father wants the child back; you can't keep it anymore.

So went recent incidents in the emotion packed field of child adoption.

A California couple lost 94 pounds to win court approval for their adoption of a year-old girl. A New Jersey man and his wife had to fight for permission to keep a bright foster child. A 2-year-old Illinois boy was the center of a legal battle between his father and the foster parents who had reared him from babyhood.

Such stories conjure up fanciful pictures in the public mind: the cuddly foundling on the church steps with no one to claim it . . . a stern-faced social worker rejecting would-be foster parents with warm hearts but little money . . . time-consuming red tape at adoption agencies while babies crowd public institutions.

Agencies are accused of being bureaucrats drunk with power, of imposing cruel and unusual punishment on foster parents, of setting standards for parenthood far above those established by nature.

One agency worker smiles at the criticism.

"We're used to it," says Miriam Allen of New York City's Bureau of Public Welfare. "Rules can be followed out the window with unhappy results. But actually more, rather than less, supervision of adoption is needed."

It's shaky ground these days to talk of children stranded in orphanages while loving couples have empty homes. For if agencies play God, it's because there are far too few babies to fill the demand.

Too Few Babies Available

The Child Welfare League of America says only two per cent of the children in institutions are true orphans. Most of these are emotionally disturbed. Others are only partial orphans who are not free to live in foster homes.

Nationally there are 10 families willing to adopt for every child available. Yet there are 125,000 adoptable children for whom no homes can be found. These are handicapped youngsters or those of minority or mixed racial background.

Unwanted children bear out the hard fact that no one wants just any baby.

"People seek a child as much like themselves as possible," says Helen Montgomery, executive director of the Spence-Chapin Adoption Service.

"We get 1,000 couples a year who want a healthy, white, Protestant child, of rorth European background indicating some accomplishment. But we get only 60 babies who fit those requirements."

Careful Check Needed

Experts feel any problem involving child care is intensified in adoption. Hence the careful agency check on foster parents.

"We don't risk placing a child in a home where he may be blamed for money problems," Miss Montgomery says. "Or where he's wanted to patch a failing marriage. Or where a health problem could cut a foster parent's life expectancy."

A thriving black market has developed to meet the heavy demand for babies, where ability to pay a fee or the mother's expenses may be the sole requirement.

"People ask, 'What's wrong with buying a baby if it gets a good home?'" Miss Montgomery says.

Private Adoption Problems

"They don't think of the mother who often gives up her baby under severe emotional stress. What happens to her without help or counseling?

"What if the child is handicapped? The adoptive parents refuse it; who will care for it?

"Private adoption seldom provides information on the child's background. How is he going to have an identity in the world unless he knows something of his origin?"

Problems arising from adoption—social, emotional and legal — may take years to develop. Agencies say their aim is to prevent them from starting.

A LITTLE BROTHER . . . At the adoption agency, parents watch their 3-year-old girl, also adopted, welcome the latest addition into the family.

ESTABLISHES NEW FACILITY

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (UPI)—Sonotone Corp. announced Wednesday the establishment here of a special space battery facility. The new facility is devoted to design and development of new types of Sonotone's sintered-plate nickel-cadmium rechargeable batteries for use in satellites and other space vehicles.

Woman Tries To Take Clothes Dryer "Bath"

MONETERY, Calif. (UPI)—Police Wednesday arrested a 45-year-old woman who walked nude into an automatic laundry and tried to take a "bath" in a clothes dryer. Asked why she was using the dryer instead of a washing machine she said she didn't want to get wet. She was jailed, police said, to be "dried out" from the effects of alcohol.

The first Chinese tong in the United States was the Kwong Dock tong of San Francisco. It was organized about 1870.

Claudette Is Back In Films

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Five years ago Claudette Colbert decided to retire from movie making and devote herself to the stage.

Now, womanly, she has changed her mind.

The persuaders were the offer of a good role and the urging of producer-director Delmer Daves. Miss Colbert will play the part of a 19-year-old boy's mother in the Warner Bros. picture "Parrish."

She explains her recess from films this way:

'The "Hollywood picture was changing and, while I always had successfully varied my films—a comedy, then a drama, etc.—my first love was comedy.

"They became scarce here, but the stage still believes in them, which we proved pretty well in 'The Marriage-Go-Round.' Charles (Boyer) and I co-starred in this for 450 performances on Broadway."

And it's back to Broadway soon for Claudette. In December she will star in a new play based on a book by Brooks Atkinson and his wife about Russia. Its temporory title is "Julia, Jake and Joe."

Smallest Union In U.S. Is A Real Money-Maker

By EDWARD NICKERSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The smallest international union in North America is a tight little group of 44 highly skilled members who make money—literally.

It's the International Assn. of Siderographers (AFL-CIO), whose scattered membership is charged with the precision task of making the plates from which currency, stocks, bonds and stamps are printed.

They work in an atmosphere of tight security.

Six are employed at the Federal Bureau of Engraving in Washington, where electroplating procedures have thinned their ranks. There are 20 in New York, 10 in Ottawa and 8 in Philadelphia.

All 44 working siderographers are members of the union. They pay low dues, enjoy excellent relations with their employers and earn wages that many executives would envy.

The craft developed out of the need to duplicate again and again on a steel plate a hand-cut master engraving, so that the reproductions are absolutely identical.

In the printing of money, for example, bill designs are engraved on a large plate in many positions so that a large sheet can be printed, then cut into individual bills. Printing is done on large sheets for efficiency.

The siderographers rock a soft steel cylinder under high pressure over the master engraving until it is reproduced precisely in the soft steel. The cylinder then is hardened and rocked over the printing plate to make new engravings indistinguishable from the original.

Another highly-skilled and essential part of the work is the reproduction of those intricate, interlaced lines you see on bonds and bills. They make forgery difficult. Rather than create a new design for each document, portions of old designs are combined in new patterns by siderographers.

Siderographers' skills do not come easily. At the American Bank Note Co., the union has accepted a company plan to subject job prospects to aptitude tests.

The applicant must show high mechanical ability, finger dexterity, above-average intelligence and capacity for patient attention to detail. Applicants for the American Bank Note Co. must also be high school graduates.

Those requirements, plus the advance of automation makes the long-term future of the union somewhat uncertain and have kept the siderographers from becoming a "family union" closed to outsiders.

Once fully-trained, the siderographer makes a base pay of $176 a week. In New York at least, there are regular opportunities to make overtime premium pay. It's not unusual for an American Bank Note Co. siderographer to make $12,000 a year.

The company has never had a strike.

In New York, siderographers make plates to print stock certificates, bonds, and some West Germany currency. For many years, the company made currency for Nationalist China.

Union president James W. Alexander, an A.B.N. employe, doesn't think any of his highly-skilled colleagues ever tried going into business for themselves—as counterfeiters, that is.

"I don't think we've ever had such a case," he says. "I think we're basically honest. Besides, it would be just too difficult to do it alone."

And they can't take home samples, either.

SIDEOGRAPHER—John Guynan "dresses" a steel cylinder after it has been rocked over a master engraving. Dressing a cylinder consists of taking out the rough spots before it is used to engrave steel plates.

231 Flood Projects Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A list of 231 flood control projects which a citizens group said should be started by the federal government included four long - proposed jobs in West Virginia.

The National Rivers & Harbors Conference, a non - partisan organization, urged the government to allocate $1.5 billion overall for the projects around the country.

U. S. Engineers recommended the West Virginia projects in a 1954 report, estimating their cost at some $38 million. The amount would be considerably higher today.

The West Virginia projects and the 1954 U. S. Engineers' cost estimates included:

Ben Bend Reservoir on Greenbrier River near Pence Springs, Summers County, $14 million.

Reservoir near Doddrill, Calhoun County, on Steer Creek, a Little Kanawha River tributary, $8.5 million.

Burnsville Reservoir on Little Kanawha River at Burnsville, Braxton County, $6.5 million.

Reservoir at East Lynn, Wayne County, on 12-Pole Creek, a tributary of the Ohio River, $9 million.

Little Snow Expected Today

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Snow showers and flurries which have dominated the West Virginia weather picture the past two days were expected to end by Friday.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said, however, sub-freezing temeratures would continue in most of the state.

Only one section of the state was expected to get any additional snow accumulation Thursday night. It was the north - central mountain region.

The cold front that arrived Tuesday left up to 3 inches of snow on the ground in some areas of the state. All major traffic arteries were reported passable, but the State Road Commission said there were some patches of ice in higher mountain elevations on the highways.

The highest temperature reported in the state Thursday was 36 at Huntington. Charleston had a 33, the only other major city where mercury climbed above the freezing mark.

Merger Plans Bared

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Directors of American Electronics, Inc. and Electronic Specialty Co. have announced plans to merge subject to stockholder approval. Shareholders of American Electronics would receive one share of the new company for each share presently held. Electronic specialty stockholders would receive 1¼ shares for each share held.

President Zachary Taylor served in four wars — the War of 1812 and the Black Hawk, Seminole and Mexican wars.

Why Not Use More American Shipping?

Not to be overlooked in this country's attempt to lessen the outward flow of its gold reserves is shipping American exports in American ships. By earning a billion dollars last year the merchant marine kept that $4 billion deficit from becoming a $5 billion one. Yet the shipping industry is far from prosperous.

Ralph Casey, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, says it is in a serious depression, and this despite a federal law requiring at least 50 per cent of all "government-sponsored" cargo be shipped in American vessels.

With the nation a debtor in foreign exchange, the provision that 50 per cent of give-away cargoes be shipped in American bottoms is inadequate. Not only should all these shipments be consigned to American ships, but private exports should likewise be carried by American ships.

Our merchant marine is more than a home industry that needs support; it is a vital arm of our defense. This defense role is confirmed by the investment of public money in ship construction and operation. Under the circumstances, it seems short-sighted to support the competition, which is what the 50 per cent law in effect permits.

The old British policy that required all British goods to move in British bottoms would serve America well — if rates and costs were made competitive — in the present balance of payments emergency. This is an emergency, it should be added, that in part was brought on by government policies which have all but liquidated the gold mining industry in the U.S.

Problems In Education

"The Insider's Newsletter," a knowledgeable publication, says:

"Educators who are accustomed to thinking in terms of college teachers and classroom shortages, are apprehensive about a recent study showing that within the next decade, the proportion of youngsters who desire a college education may actually begin to decline. The two reasons: 1. Having a college education is no longer the prestige symbol it used to be now that so many more people are getting them, while 2. Skilled labor is beginning to pay off as well if not better than many jobs requiring degrees, and a growing number of people are coming to recognize this fact."

The A.B. degree has lost prestige because there are too many colleges in the United States whose standards are too low both for entrance and for graduation. The result is that persons own an A.B. degree and some even a Phi Beta Kappa key who are altogether lacking in the cultural attainments of a European high school graduate. It is true that many such persons ridicule what they call the Ivy League universities, but this can be said for the latter that a graduate from one of them is likely to speak grammatical English; he is undoubtedly aware of the vast accumulation of human knowledge running back through the past eight or ten thousand years; he is likely to know something about science. He will know at least one ancient and one foreign language apart from his own English which will not be as rough when he graduates as when he matriculated.

In all European countries, a university exists for only one purpose, learning. No one goes to a European university because it is fashionable or because it is possible to make a better marriage, or because one must be at school or be a delinquent, or because he wants to learn to play the saxophone or to be a drum major. There are other places where these advantages may be attained; the university is for learning and for nothing else. No A, summa cum laude student is kept back because he has not passed gym. It is acknowledged that many learned persons do not care about gym.

Our brighter students realize that all colleges are not alike. They battle to get into the good ones. They recognize that an A average is hard to get but there are students who make it and they get into the colleges of their first choice.

Mere attendance at a college does not pay off. Ten years later the student who got through with a gentleman's C, taking snap courses, may discover that his undisciplined mind does not serve him in these tough times. For a young person, these are very tough times. Take for instance a law student who does not make the Law Reviews, whose standing in his class is below the top 25, what are the possibilities for him? He is not likely to get into a distinguished law firm. He probably can get a job in government service but he will not be practicing law; he will be doing clerical work in an administrative agency. He might hang out a shingle and practice solo.

The same difficulties face the young doctor who does not graduate with distinction. His opportunities for internship and residence in outstanding hospitals and association with outstanding physicians and surgeons are limited. The A students are at a premium. Everybody seeks them.

In the teaching professions, this is not quite the same because there are varieties of opportunities, from teaching in colleges and universities to kindergartening. Colleges and universities can no longer afford to give teaching positions to those who are definitely not suited for scholarship. The teacher who is one bone ahead of his class will only too soon be shown up by the bright students who are unwilling, in these competitive times, to waste their days with a dopey teacher.

An institution of learning is not a lot of ivy-covered buildings nor does it matter whether its football team amounts to anything which means nothing in terms of a man's career by the time he is 40. Such an institution is a place for learning, for capturing the whole of human knowledge and for assimilating that knowledge into the life of an individual. It may not give him a trade but it should teach him how to think which is more important.

Kennedy's Adviser Clark Clifford Embroiled In Oil Monopoly Case

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON— President-elect Kennedy doesn't realize it, but he's sitting on an explosive lobbying situation as a result of putting his friend, Clark Clifford, in charge of the take-over from the Eisenhower administration.

Clifford, former counsel to President Truman, is one of the most likable and popular Democrats in the nation's capital. He has a delightful sense of humor, is an astute adviser to friends, and his friends occupy very high places. But he also operates a law firm which receives fees from the biggest corporations in the nation, some of which battled against Jack Kennedy, and all of which have ticklish cases before the government.

Right now, Clifford is sitting on the biggest oil monopoly case in the nation, and so far has performed a near miracle by keeping the Eisenhower administration from doing anything about it. It will be interesting to see if he, a Democrat, succeeds equally with the new Democratic administration.

The case in question is a battle of the giants involving Phillips Petroleum, which leans toward the Democrats and wants to take over Union Oil which is stanchly Republican. This take-over, in turn, is opposed by Gulf Oil, founded by that famous Republican, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury in the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover Cabinet.

Clifford is the attorney for Phillips. And what the moguls of the oil industry are watching is to see whether Clifford will continue to have the ear of the President-elect and will influence his policies toward oil. If so, the oil industry will breathe easy.

Phillips' Senate Friend

Here is the inside story of what is happening in the battle of the giants over Union Oil.

Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, wealthiest member of the Senate, and a Democrat, is the lead horse for Phillips Petroleum. He works with Phillips through his Kerr-McGee Company, and the fact that he is a powerful member of the Senate Finance Committee and a friend of Adm. Lewis Strauss, ex-chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, didn't hurt Phillips at all in getting its tremendous number of atomic energy contracts. It operates six nuclear reactors, a chemical plant to recover fissionable materials for the AEC, and processes 1,800 tons of uranium ore daily at Grants, New Mexico, which it sells to the Atomic Energy Commission under a contract that continues through 1966.

K. S. "Boots" Adams, head of Phillips, is a big contributor to the Democratic Party.

On the other hand, Reese Taylor, head of Union Oil which Phillips wants to take over, is a prominent Republican. Herbert Hoover Jr., former executive vice president of Union, was Under Secretary of State in the Eisenhower administration, and it was Union Oil which gave a favorable lease to the Nixon family for a filling station on the land which Don Nixon and the Vice President's mother put up as collateral for the Howard Hughes $205,000 loan.

In order to dominate Union Oil, Phillips has spent $50,000,000 buying up its stock in the open market, now owns 14 per cent of Union's stock. On the other side, Gulf Oil, dominated by the Mellon family, has bought up $129,000,000 worth of Union's stock—or 26 per cent. Gulf and Union have long had a working agreement whereby Union buys Gulf's oil from the Near East.

Silent Justice Department

When President Taylor of Union interrogated Phillips officials as to why they were raiding Union stock, Phillips replied that they were only making an investment. However, if Phillips was going to put $50,000,000 into an investment it could have bought blue-chip stocks to much better advantage.

So it's suspected that Phillips wants: 1, Union's gas reserves and offshore oil wells; plus, 2, its marketing network, "76 Union," of 497 wholesale bulk plants and 4,478 filling stations, chiefly on the West Coast.

Ordinarily, this battle of two major oil companies to buy stock in another would be pounced upon by the Justice Department, which recently blocked a merger between Texas Oil and Superior Oil. Gulf is the second biggest oil company in the USA. Phillips ranks eighth with assets of $1½ billion. Union ranks fifteenth, with assets of $640,000,000. Whichever company controls it could come close to dominating the U. S. oil market.

However, the Justice Department has not moved. Official reason is that the matter is before the Federal Trade Commission Also, the Trade Commission has done almost nothing It has shown itself to be quite susceptible to Republican pressure in the past, such as that in the Sherman Adams - Goldfine wool - labeling case.

But if any pressure has been exerted by Republicans in this battle over oil it certainly has been unsuccessful. Reese Taylor, president of Union Oil and a stanch Republican, has appealed to the Justice Department to invoke the antitrust laws. But there has been no action.

The battle has been won so far by a Democratic attorney, Clark Clifford, one of the shrewdest lawyers in Washington, who has not even bothered to answer Justice Department letters, and has so deftly steered the course of Phillips Petroleum that his client has been unscathed.

This is why Clifford's designation by President-elect Kennedy to handle the take-over from Eisenhower is being watched with such interest by the oil moguls in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Alliance Waiting For New Start With Kennedy

By Joseph Alsop

BONN

Chancellor Adenauer, anxiously, impatiently waiting for the first sign of the new direction in Washington, is a symbol of the whole Western alliance.

Under the surface of acceptance of President Eisenhower's leadership, eagerness for a new direction in Washington has been visibly growing in every major Western capital for a matter of years. The fact that this eagerness is known to be shared by the German Chancellor, the special intimate of the late John Foster Dulles, speaks volumes in itself.

Initially, it must be added, Chancellor Adenauer hoped that the man who would give the new direction would be Vice President Nixon. His concern was so great, in fact, that he took the unusual measure of sending his Minister of Information, Felix von Eckardt, on a mission to the United States at the beginning of the Presidential campaign. Von Eckardt went, in effect, as the special political reporter of the German government.

Von Eckardt returned after an extensive inquiry, which culminated in long private talks with both the Republican and Democratic candidates. He predicted the victory of President-elect Kennedy. Perhaps more important, he also told Adenauer that he could stop worrying, because Kennedy could be counted on for vigorous and firm leadership of the West.

The cause of the Chancellor's previous worry about the election of Kennedy was, quite simply, his expectation that Adlai Stevenson was destined to be Kennedy's Secretary of State. Adenauer deeply distrusts Stevenson because he is convinced that Stevenson actually holds the distincly soft views on Berlin and other problems which were attributed to him by the French newspaperman who published an unauthorized interview last spring.

Apparently von Eckardt was in a position to report that Stevenson was unlikely to be Kennedy's Secretary of State. In this connection, it is worth noting that the precise aspect of Stevenson which most alarmed Adenauer — his view on Berlin — also appears to have been the aspect which made Kennedy reluctant to name Stevenson to the Secretaryship.

The crucial episode in the Stevenson-Kennedy relationship, it can be said, was Stevenson's journey to confer with Kennedy at Hyannis just after the Democratic convention. Stevenson then advised the kind of compromise at Berlin which would have left the freedom of the city quite largely dependent on the reliability and good faith of Soviet guarantees. Kennedy's reaction to this advice may be judged by the post-election statement on Berlin which he made for European consumption — certainly the most uncompromising statement made on this topic since the Berlin crisis began two years ago.

That Kennedy statement, added to von Eckardt's personal report, are the main reasons why optimism about the Kennedy administration is now heard on all sides in Bonn, where a Republican defeat used to be almost as much feared as in Formosa. A lesser reason is the extremely maladroit performance of the recent mission headed by Secretary Anderson. Ironically, this is supposed to have led Chancellor Adenauer, now a vigorous eighty-four, to remark that the American government "evidently needed rejuvenation."

The degree of confidence that the German government now tentatively gives to the new American leadership may be judged, in turn, by one of the ideas about the next round in the Berlin crisis that is now being considered in high quarters here.

The Chancellor and his ministers agree that the next round cannot be indefinitely put off. Nikita S. Khrushchev has said as much, with great emphasis, to the German Ambassador in Moscow. But after swearing that he would sign a separate peace treaty with his East German puppets if he were kept waiting too long, Khrushchev also said he would be content if negotiations were renewed in the spring. He also seemed to indicate that the mere renewal of negotiations would be enough to satisfy him.

Obviously, however, a seriously prepared summit meeting cannot take place so soon after the new American government has been formed. Equally obviously, not much can be hoped from a resumption of the Foreign Ministers' talks about Berlin. Hence one idea now current here is that the next round should begin with a simple Khrushchev-Kennedy meeting, not of long duration, not for active bargaining purposes, but solely to allow the two men to take each other's measure.

If Bonn were not optimistic about Kennedy, such an idea for a new start would not even be considered here.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BRIGHT YOUNG MEN—Official Washington is girding itself for a new invasion of bright young men who are expected to be brought into the government by the incoming Kennedy administration.

They'll come off some of the nation's most prominent college campuses in a wave reminiscent of the early days of the Roosevelt New Deal.

All signs point to the organization of idea men who think large theoretical thought about almost everything, from economics through diplomacy, the military and on into outer space. It'll be a re-play of the Roosevelt "brain trust," so frequently accused of never having met a payroll.

Some of the names are already familiar—economist John K. Galbraith and historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., both of Kennedy's school, Harvard. Then there's Ted Sorenson, speech-writer and adviser, and public relations man Pierre Salinger.

Others, whose names did not figure so prominently in the Kennedy campaign, but nevertheless are known faovrably to this inner group, are also slated for important roles in formulating government policies in many fields.

WEATHER "MAN" — The Weather Bureau in Washington has a new electronic computer that is the wonder of the meteorological world. On the basis of data fed into it, it draws weather maps with a mechanically operated pen.

It can predict the weather for three days ahead in a matter of 15 minutes—a task which normally takes a team of highly-trained experts hours to do.

The machine works so fast that weathermen are at a loss for enough information to keep the device, dubbed "The Monster," busy. Unfortunately, however, the machine is as limited in accuracy of its forecast as are the human minds which feed pertinent data into it. If and when weather data can be improved, the machine's accuracy will improve correspondingly.

Right now, it is workingo n an experimental, break-in program. It will become operational soon. Potentially, it is capable of digesting weather information from all parts of the world and up to the altitude of the satellites.

Weather bureau officials predict a far-reaching network of mechanical monsters which some day will collect, transmit and interpret meteorological data from all parts of the world and make weather forecasts for the earth's entire surface.

The ad is plain. "Santa Clauses —for all Snevets Markets, typical appearance and jolly manner preferred. From Nov. 25th to Dec. 24th, 8-hour days, 7-day week. $1 hour. Apply in person weekdays 9:30-11:30 a. m." Isn't it a beauty? Doesn't it make your heart sing with Christmas spirit?

Just a darn minute, Mr. Snevets. You don't want Santa Clauses, because every child knows that there is only one, and he's busy at the North Pole making ice skates and sleds and dolls. Besides, he only leaves his workshop with the reindeer on Christmas Eve. He's invisible to all who look for him, and he can be seen only by those who go to bed and keep their eyes closed.

What you want are fat grandpas who are out of work. These men imitate Santa, and some of them do a pretty good job, holding their fat tummies up and laughing ho-ho-ho. However, if you expect them to do it for a buck an hour, you're going to hear some pretty hollow ho-ho-ho's. By Christmas some of them are going to look like anemic jockeys.

Your proposition is better than Metracal. Some Santas will be snatching the lollipops from the crying kids. And how, if I'm not being too fresh, are you going to keep them sober? Not the kids. Santa. I've seen some wild ones, my friend. We had a bird in my home town who used to start down Cedar Lane at 9 a. m. roaring "Merry Christmas, kiddies. Tell Santa what you want for Christmas."

He hit every injay illmay on the route. He started off with a bag full of dollar toys donated by the Chamber of Commerce. By the time he skated out of the fourth gin mill, he was trading the toys for rye. When he hit Bogota, he was skidding in high gear and he stopped only to snarl at innocent children: "Aw, wipe your runny nose!"

Have you ever seen one of these jolly Santas in the can, Mr. Snevets? I have. Such beautiful language. It was music to my ears. I saw an old traffic cop break down and cry at the sound of words he had forgotten.

There was one in New York a few years ago who sat on a throne in a department store. The small fry waited in line and, when they sat on his lap, he hugged them to him and slipped a flask out of his red coat and his nose lit up like a blinker on a plane. He did fine until one little boy ran back crying to his mother: "Santa smells like Daddy."

I played Santa once. However, this was not for one clam per tick. My girls were tiny and my wife thought it would be a good idea if I made up to look like Mr. Claus and, while trimming the tree, she would get the children to come out of bed and run downstairs for a fast look at St. Nick.

It was an idea. Not a great one, Mr. Snevets, but an idea. My mother-in-law had bought a couple of bottles of egg nog from the milkman. She was pouring it in stem glasses, sipping it, and saying: "They didn't put anything in it." Well, they did. But it tasted like heavy cream with a lacing of cinnamon, so we added a dollop of kickapoo joy juice.

It tasted fair, but not memorable. So we kept putting more of the booze in it and less of the sticky cream, and at last I suggested that we all kick the egg nog habit together. We did. It was 1 a. m. when I put on the Stanta outfit ($15 rental fee) and it required the services of the two ladies to pour me into it.

By that time, my wife was standing thirty feet from the tree throwing the silver icicles at it and my mother-in-law was puffing trying to get me up on the little kitchen ladder beside the tree. My part wasn't big. All I had to do was to put the big star on top o' the tree and, with my back to the youngsters, roar "Merry Christmas everyone and to all a good night."

The children were awakened, and they came down in their nighties. "Look lovey," my mother-in-law said, with a blood pressure of 240 over 130, "there's Santa Claus." My wife was flinging the tinsel at me and I leaned over the tree with the big star and yelled ". . . and to all a good night" and fell right through the branches. Have you ever picked pine needles out of your eyeballs, Mr. Snevets?

My advice is to get a record player, with a lot of Christmas carols, and play them over and over, every day, until the parents go stark raving mad. Don't take chances on those spurious Santas. Why economize, pal? Get the real one for $1.10 an hour . . .

Gnashing The Teeth Can Bring On Headaches

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Headache may stem from disorders of the joints in the lower jaw. These joints are located under the cheeks, halfway between the eyes and ears, and permit the lower jaw to move up and down. They are surrounded by powerful muscles that are visible when the individual chews.

The movements of the lower jaw are similar to those of a trap door. The hinge is easily strained when the teeth do not meet properly due to the loss of certain molars or incisors, malocclusion, or improper chewing.

At any rate, when jaw movements are impaired for any reason, the joint may be displaced and the muscles strained. Pain may be so severe the victim is unable to open the mouth to eat or talk.

In other instances, the distress masquerades as headache, neuraglia, or ear disease. Severe pain may shoot up from the ear to the face or eye and dizziness and head noises may occur. Still others have a dull headache located toward the front, behind the eyes, in the temple area, or in back of the head.

Some of these headache victims unconsciously grind or clench the teeth (bruxism). This is done while sleeping or concentrating on some trying work, especially when upset or irritated. Many develop the habit because of disturbances of the bite. This bad habit serves no purpose and overstrains the jaw muscles. Headache often is noted in the morning after a night of teeth gnashing.

The origin of headache and facial pain should always be considered when these symptoms fail to respond to ordinary measures. This is particularly true when the joint is sore, bruxism exists, or the condition is aggravated by talking or eating. Our oral surgeons and dentists have many ways to correct the condition with special relaxation plates, splints, and other dental procedures.

TOMORROW: Cereals at age 2 days.

SHOULDER-HAND PAIN

W. S. R. writes: You recently mentioned the use of the new anti-ringworm medicine for the shoulder-hand syndrome. I have this condition and nothing that has been done has helped. Please tell more about it.

REPLY

This stubborn condition has always been best treated with physical therapy. We are encouraged by the recent report that griseofulvin (the product referred to) was effective in a few cases but let's not get too enthusiastic until the results are confirmed.

IT WON'T FLY OUT

E. T. writes: What happens when a person swallows a live fly?

REPLY

The stomach acid will kill the insect, which then will be digested like any other meat Don't ask me if it is high in cholesterol.

FERTILITY

E. M. G. writes: Is the teeming population explosion in China due to eating mostly carbohydrates?

REPLY

I was not aware of a stepped up population explosion in China. These people have been prolific for centuries and have subsisted on rice—a carbohydrate. The Chinese have loads of children because there are lots of Chinese.

DIGESTION

H. G. writes: Does it take 8 hours to digest a hearty meal?

REPLY

Food remains in the stomach for 2 to 8 hours. Variations occur because of the amounts of food taken and its fat content.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

You married ladies who worry too much about masked prowlers and marauders in the night: could it be that you're neglecting a danger from within?

Sociology Professor Edwin H. Sutherland has assembled some startling statistics which reveal that a woman is in more danger of being attacked by her own husband than by any other assailant. Twice as, many women required hospitalization last year from husbands' blows as from all the attacks by gangsters and burglars on the police registers! That shnook of a husband of yours is definitely not as harmless as he looks!

A top man in our Defense Department a couple of decades ago failed to meet the exacting standards of an important English friend — Mr. Winston Churchill.

"That fellow L——," Churchill would grumble, "carries his own precipices around with him." Another time he voiced the suspicion that "L—— throws a banana peel ahead of himself before walking into a conference."

How Not To Burn Down Your House At Christmas Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Board of Fire Underwriters has issued these suggestions for choosing a Christmas tree, decorating it and keeping it fire-safe:

— Choose a small tree instead of a large one. It can be just as beautiful and less of a hazard.

— Keep the tree outdoors until you are ready to install it.

— Set up the tree in a place where it does not block a doorway. It is best to set it up in the coolest part of a room, away from radiators, heaters and fireplaces.

— Stand the tree in water to retard drying.

— Use fireproof decorations of glass or metal, avoiding cotton or paper decorations.

— Set up electric trains away from the tree.

— Be sure your strings of electric Christmas lights are in good condition. Discard sets with frayed wiring. When buying new sets, look for the UL (Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.) label. Lighted candles should not be used on trees.

— There should be a switch some distance from the tree for turning all light on and off.

— Don't leave tree lights burning when away from home.

— Inspect the tree from time to time to see whether needles turn brown. If they have, change the position of the lights.

Take the tree down and discard it outdoors when needles start falling.

PLACES THEATER ORDER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cinerama, Inc., announced Wednesday it has placed the largest single order ever given for motion picture theater equipment. Nicolas Reisini, president of the company, said the $2,250,000 order will provide 70 complete cinerama theater installations.

Court Of Claims Is Federal Conscience

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Did you know the U.S. government has a conscience?

Its voice is neither still nor small, but loud and insistent. It is lodged in the U.S. Court of Claims, which has just started its fall session. The court's job is to right the financial wrongs — legal and moral—suffered at the hands of the federal government by individuals and businesses at home and abroad.

The court relies on the principle laid down by President Abraham Lincoln in whose administration the tribunal got its real authority. Lincoln said, "It is as much the duty of government to render prompt justice against itself in favor of its citizens as it is to administer the same between private individuals."

One Judge "Retired"

Members of the court have voiced this philosophy with some dexterity down through the years. Their jurisdiction follows the flag.

Jurists who now point the finger of duty at the U.S. Treasury are Chief Judge Marvin Jones of Texas, former member of Congress and Judges Samuel E. Whitaker, Tennessee lawyer who was once city attorney of Chattanooga and later mayor of Riverview; J. Warren Madden of Illinois, law professor and former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; Don N. Laramore, one-time Indiana state judge; and James R. Durfee of Wisconsin, former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Judge Benjamin H. Littleton of Tennessee, former chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals, still sits on cases quite often, although he retired from the court in 1953.

For years the Claims Court has been housed in a museum-like red brick structure, formerly the Corcoran Art Gallery, located a stone's throw from the White House. It served during the Civil War as a storage place for ammunition. The set for the stage play "Andersonville" showed part of the building.

Plan New Home

Plans now are under way for construction of a new home, which also will accommodate other federal courts.

Aggrieved parties may file their own cases with the Claims Courts and Congress can refer claims there for fact-finding and recommendation. No claim is too small and no subject matter too bizarre for consideration.

For instance, there was the 1924 suit by Herbert S. Ward, an Agriculture Department inspector, for $1.50 lunch money which the comptroller general had disallowed. Ward won, arguing his own case.

In 1918 and 1920 came a federal tax on candy. The court had to decide if the tax applied to the pop corn delicacy known as Cracker Jack. It did.

In 1937 an elderly couple who operated a silver fox farm in Alaska sought damages because of the enlargement of Mount McKinley National Park. The advent of horses, rangers, dogs and tourists created so much confusion the foxes stopped mating. Duke Stubbs and his wife won a $50,000 judgment.

Helps Post Office

About the same time one of the court's most celebrated cases was brought by T. N. Belcher, a Central City, Ky., dealer who supplied $200 worth of coal to the local post office. He borrowed this money at the bank while waiting for the government to pay but was never able to collect.

Belcher died while trying to convince the comptroller general that the debt had not been "paid in full" by the bank. His widow finally sued and got the money.

"This method of settling government obligations is so novel that it should be patentable," the court said in its opinion." (But) that a just government would pursue such a course . . . is almost incredible."

One more recent case that set a legal precedent was brought by Thomas Lee Causby, who operated a chicken farm near the Greensboro, N.C., city airport. The government leased the field and began flying heavy military planes at low altitudes.

Causby's hens stopped laying eggs. The court, upheld in 1946 by the U.S. Supreme Court, ruled that the government had taken an easement over his property and was liable for just compensation.

Turncoats Seek Pay

Not all cases are so folksy. Many involve damages caused by war, allegedly unfair discharges from civil service, Indian claims, government contracts and the like.

Now scheduled for argument before the U.S. Supreme Court is an appeal by three Army privates who defected to the Communist Chinese after the Korean War but returned home later. They sued for $9,256 in prisoner-of-war pay, although while held in Korean prison camps they had fraternized with their captors and informed on fellow prisoners.

This case split the Claims Court. Speaking for the majority Jones said, "It is almost incredible that these men would ask for pay in the light of the conduct disclosed in the record."

However, Madden thought the Army had no legal right to refuse the money, regardless of how "traitorous and contemptible" the conduct of the men had been. They have "incurred the just condemnation of public opinion," he said, but "the courts have nothing to do with that judgment."

The Supreme Court will hear the case some time this term.

There are virtually no taxes in the little Alpine principality of Liechtenstein, which derives most of its income from fees paid by international corporations making it their headquarters.

WOUNDED IN CARACAS RIOTS—Bystanders come to the assistance of a policeman as a man wounded in a Caracas, Venezuela, street battle is carried to an ambulance. Although troops have begun reestablishing order, sporadic outbreaks of violence were reported. At least 10 persons had been killed.

The 132-mile New Jersey Turnpike, jugular vein of Garden State commerce, crosses one of the most highly industrialized areas on earth. Accommodating a million vehicles a week, the superhighway speeds such varied New Jersey products as orchids and soup, hot dogs and beer bottles, electronic brains and frozen broccoli, pen points and rocket engines.

Christmas Far From Jolly For Many, Psychiatrist Says

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Contemporary Scrooges say "humbug" to the view holding that Christmas "'Tis the season to be jolly."

The sight of holly and sound of Santa's bells depresses most of the neurotics. The depression sets in around Thanksgiving and builds up, hitting a peak around December 25.

It usually disappears around the first of the New Year.

Now this psychiatric view of Christmas reactions comes from a team of experts at the University of Utah College of Medicine, Salt Lake City.

In a report on the subject, Dr. Nyla J. Cole, of the medical school's Department of Psychiatry, said that depression — not being joyous — during the Christmas season is common, rather than different or odd.

Regression Is Invited

The experts found that some folks work themselves into trouble around holiday time by figuring that Christmas represents a permission to put aside adult responsibilities, to relax and enjoy oneself — come what may.

As a result, something called regression is invited.

"And, as with any regression, one sees a release of more infantile impulses," Dr. Cole reported. "This release can either lead to gratification if society assumes an accepting attitude, or to censure and conflict, if objections occur."

Take for example those who will put on weight by indulging their oral impulses.

One couple being treated at the medical center's clinic was "a female mountain of fat and a sulky, skinny spouse."

The wife reacted to the approach of Christmas by eating faster and faster. The husband got madder and madder. The holidays were far from jolly in that household.

Some Men Rebel

Dr. Cole said some men, who feel their role as provider a thankless one, may rebel under the additional pressure of the Christmas season.

Take the case of the dad of seven who struggled yearly to buy gifts for his brood, but never received a Christmas present himself.

One recent Christmas, this gent touched off a family crisis by going on a sit-down-strike. He refused to go Christmas shopping.

"The reverse of this," Dr. Cole reported, "is the occasional psychopath who drifts through life in the role of the child, always manipulating to receive, but repudiating the adult role.

He's Cast Aside

"Sooner or later, those who baby him rebel and cast him from the family fold: the holiday time frequently precipitates this.

"These black sheep occasionally then appear in the clinic, repentant and promising to be good."

They're epitomized by the song —"I'm Getting Nuthin' for Christmas, 'Cause I've Been Nuthin' But Bad."

The ritual of Christmas stressing the renewal of family ties and friendliness provok- a number of reactions. Dr. Cole said this burden seems to fall more on the female, who shows the larger proportion of depressive reactions.

"One common dynamic factor involves those women who desire the adult female role but have secret doubts about their abilities to fulfill it," the psychiatrist said.

These females can be expected to react with resentment or depression when, under pressure, they submit to the festivities occurring in other people's homes.

Adoption Difficult, But Agencies Do Have Heart

'Matching' Parents, Babies Is A Major Problem

By NORMA GAUHN
AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK (AP)—You're too fat to adopt a child; lose weight.

You're not bright enough; give up your foster child.

The real father wants the child back; you can't keep it anymore.

So went recent incidents in the emotion packed field of child adoption.

A California couple lost 94 pounds to win court approval for their adoption of a year-old girl. A New Jersey man and his wife had to fight for permission to keep a bright foster child. A 2-year-old Illinois boy was the center of a legal battle between his father and the foster parents who had reared him from babyhood.

Such stories conjure up fanciful pictures in the public mind: the cuddly foundling on the church steps with no one to claim it . . . a stern-faced social worker rejecting would-be foster parents with warm hearts but little money . . . time-consuming red tape at adoption agencies while babies crowd public institutions.

Agencies are accused of being bureaucrats drunk with power, of imposing cruel and unusual punishment on foster parents, of setting standards for parenthood far above those established by nature.

One agency worker smiles at the criticism.

"We're used to it," says Miriam Allen of New York City's Bureau of Public Welfare. "Rules can be followed out the window with unhappy results. But actually more, rather than less, supervision of adoption is needed."

It's shaky ground these days to talk of children stranded in orphanages while loving couples have empty homes. For if agencies play God, it's because there are far too few babies to fill the demand.

Too Few Babies Available

The Child Welfare League of America says only two per cent of the children in institutions are true orphans. Most of these are emotionally disturbed. Others are only partial orphans who are not free to live in foster homes.

Nationally there are 10 families willing to adopt for every child available. Yet there are 125,000 adoptable children for whom no homes can be found. These are handicapped youngsters or those of minority or mixed racial background.

Unwanted children bear out the hard fact that no one wants just any baby.

"People seek a child as much like themselves as possible," says Helen Montgomery, executive director of the Spence-Chapin Adoption Service.

"We get 1,000 couples a year who want a healthy, white, Protestant child, of rorth European background indicating some accomplishment. But we get only 60 babies who fit those requirements."

Careful Check Needed

Experts feel any problem involving child care is intensified in adoption. Hence the careful agency check on foster parents.

"We don't risk placing a child in a home where he may be blamed for money problems," Miss Montgomery says. "Or where he's wanted to patch a failing marriage. Or where a health problem could cut a foster parent's life expectancy."

A thriving black market has developed to meet the heavy demand for babies, where ability to pay a fee or the mother's expenses may be the sole requirement.

"People ask, 'What's wrong with buying a baby if it gets a good home?' " Miss Montgomery says.

Private Adoption Problems

"They don't think of the mother who often gives up her baby under severe emotional stress. What happens to her without help or counseling?

"What if the child is handicapped? The adoptive parents refuse it; who will care for it?

"Private adoption seldom provides information on the child's background. How is he going to have an identity in the world unless he knows something of his origin?"

Problems arising from adoption—social, emotional and legal — may take years to develop. Agencies say their aim is to prevent them from starting.

A LITTLE BROTHER . . . At the adoption agency, parents watch their 3-year-old girl, also adopted, welcome the latest addition into the family.

ESTABLISHES NEW FACILITY

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (UPI)—Sonotone Corp. announced Wednesday the establishment here of a special space battery facility. The new facility is devoted to design and development of new types of Sonotone's sintered-plate nickel-cadmium rechargeable batteries for use in satellites and other space vehicles.

Woman Tries To Take Clothes Dryer "Bath"

MONETERY, Calif. (UPI)—Police Wednesday arrested a 45-year-old woman who walked nude into an automatic laundry and tried to take a "bath" in a clothes dryer. Asked why she was using the dryer instead of a washing machine she said she didn't want to get wet. She was jailed, police said, to be "dried out" from the effects of alcohol.

The first Chinese tong in the United States was the Kwong Dock tong of San Francisco. It was organized about 1870.

Claudette Is Back In Films

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Five years ago Claudette Colbert decided to retire from movie making and devote herself to the stage.

Now, womanly, she has changed her mind.

The persuaders were the offer of a good role and the urging of producer-director Delmer Daves. Miss Colbert will play the part of a 19-year-old boy's mother in the Warner Bros. picture "Parrish."

She explains her recess from films this way:

'The "Hollywood picture was changing and, while I always had successfully varied my films—a comedy, then a drama, etc.—my first love was comedy.

"They became scarce here, but the stage still believes in them, which we proved pretty well in 'The Marriage-Go-Round.' Charles (Boyer) and I co-starred in this for 450 performances on Broadway."

And it's back to Broadway soon for Claudette. In December she will star in a new play based on a book by Brooks Atkinson and his wife about Russia. Its temporory title is "Julia, Jake and Joe."

To Make Christmas Card Really Friendly Greeting, Add A Personal Message

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most often asked questions about Christmas cards is, "Is it proper to add a personal note or message?"

The answer is, yes, indeed! There's no reason to leave empty space.

"The idea is to let your Christmas cards carry messages for you—news of you and your family, messages of good wishes," said Mrs. Jeannette Lee, art director for a leading card manufacturer.

Such notes on Christmas cards have become one of the nation's favorite methods of greeting friends near and far, old and new," she said.

"Christmas messages," said Charles Dickens, "are a great accumulation of friendly recollections." And Samuel Johnson, famed 18th century English philosopher noted, "A man should keep his friendships in constant repair."

Fashionable personalized Christmas cards, with your name and return address imprinted, are helping more and more people find time to add personal messages on cards, Mrs. Lee said. These convenient time - savers, plus self-seal envelopes, can cut in half the routine of preparing cards, leaving time for writing warm, personal messages.

The idea of Christmas cards originated with a man who wanted to send season greetings to friends. The year was 1843, the setting London, and the man Henry Cole.

Historians credit Cole with originating Christmas cards when he sent out 1,000 printed season greetings. Her company only recently was successful in obtaining two original specimans of the first Christmas card for its collection of antique greeting cards, Mrs. Lee said.

Your personal handwriting, characteristic of you, should be used for addressing the envelope, as it conveys the warmth of a friendly handshake, Mrs. Lee said.

If you receive a card from friends you've overlooked, it is best to send them a card if it will be received before Christmas. If this is impossible, send a Thank You or New Year's card.

Informality should be used in signing most cards, whether by hand or on imprinted greetings, Mrs. Lee said.

"Mary and John" or "Mary and John Carey" are warmer and more personal than "Mr. and Mrs. John Carey." Children are listed according to age, in this manner: The Careys, Mary and John, David, Judy and Susan."

The wife's name is usually listed first, as a matter of courtesy. However, in some cases the one who signs the card writes her or his name last, Mrs. Lee said. On imprinted cards, the person who writes the note signs his or her name at the end.

Gold is nearly 20 times as heavy as water.

Why Not Use More American Shipping?

Not to be overlooked in this country's attempt to lessen the outward flow of its gold reserves is shipping American exports in American ships. By earning a billion dollars last year the merchant marine kept that $4 billion deficit from becoming a $5 billion one. Yet the shipping industry is far from prosperous.

Ralph Casey, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, says it is in a serious depression, and this despite a federal law requiring at least 50 per cent of all "government-sponsored" cargo be shipped in American vessels.

With the nation a debtor in foreign exchange, the provision that 50 per cent of give-away cargoes be shipped in American bottoms is inadequate. Not only should all these shipments be consigned to American ships, but private exports should likewise be carried by American ships.

Our merchant marine is more than a home industry that needs support; it is a vital arm of our defense. This defense role is confirmed by the investment of public money in ship construction and operation. Under the circumstances, it seems short-sighted to support the competition, which is what the 50 per cent law in effect permits.

The old British policy that required all British goods to move in British bottoms would serve America well—if rates and costs were made competitive—in the present balance of payments emergency. This is an emergency, it should be added, that in part was brought on by government policies which have all but liquidated the gold mining industry in the U.S.

These Days

Problems In Education

"The Insider's Newsletter," a knowledgeable publication, says:

"Educators who are accustomed to thinking in terms of college teachers and classroom shortages, are apprehensive about a recent study showing that within the next decade, the proportion of youngsters who desire a college education may actually begin to decline. The two reasons: 1. Having a college education is no longer the prestige symbol it used to be now that so many more people are getting them, while 2. Skilled labor is beginning to pay off as well if not better than many jobs requiring degrees, and a growing number of people are coming to recognize this fact."

The A.B. degree has lost prestige because there are too many colleges in the United States whose standards are too low both for entrance and for graduation. The result is that persons own an A.B. degree and some even a Phi Beta Kappa key who are altogether lacking in the cultural attainments of a European high school graduate. It is true that many such persons ridicule what they call the Ivy League universities, but this can be said for the latter that a graduate from one of them is likely to speak grammatical English; he is undoubtedly aware of the vast accumulation of human knowledge running back through the past eight or ten thousand years; he is likely to know something about science. He will know at least one ancient and one foreign language apart from his own English which will not be as rough when he graduates as when he matriculated.

In all European countries, a university exists for only one purpose, learning. No one goes to a European university because it is fashionable or because it is possible to make a better marriage, or because one must be at school or be a delinquent, or because he wants to learn to play the saxophone or to be a drum major. There are other places where these advantages may be attained; the university is for learning and for nothing else. No A, summa cum laude student is kept back because he has not passed gym. It is acknowledged that many learned persons do not care about gym.

Our brighter students realize that all colleges are not alike. They battle to get into the good ones. They recognize that an A average is hard to get but there are students who make it and they get into the colleges of their first choice.

Mere attendance at a college does not pay off. Ten years later the student who got through with a gentleman's C, taking snap courses, may discover that his undisciplined mind does not serve him in these tough times. For a young person, these are very tough times. Take for instance a law student who does not make the Law Reviews, whose standing in his class is below the top 25, what are the possibilities for him? He is not likely to get into a distinguished law firm. He probably can get a job in government service but he will not be practicing law; he will be doing clerical work in an administrative agency. He might hang out a shingle and practice solo.

The same difficulties face the young doctor who does not graduate with distinction. His opportunities for internship and residence in outstanding hospitals and association with outstanding physicians and surgeons are limited. The A students are at a premium. Everybody seeks them.

In the teaching professions, this is not quite the same because there are varieties of opportunities, from teaching in colleges and universities to kindergartening. Colleges and universities can no longer afford to give teaching positions to those who are definitely not suited for scholarship. The teacher who is one bone ahead of his class will only too soon be shown up by the bright students who are unwilling, in these competitive times, to waste their days with a dopey teacher.

An institution of learning is not a lot of ivy-covered buildings nor does it matter whether its football team amounts to anything which means nothing in terms of a man's career by the time he is 40. Such an institution is a place for learning, for capturing the whole of human knowledge and for assimilating that knowledge into the life of an individual. It may not give him a trade but it should teach him how to think which is more important.

Phony Or The Real Thing?

Alliance Waiting For New Start With Kennedy

By Joseph Alsop

BONN

Chancellor Adenauer, anxiously, impatiently waiting for the first sign of the new direction in Washington, is a symbol of the whole Western alliance.

Under the surface of acceptance of President Eisenhower's leadership, eagerness for a new direction in Washington has been visibly growing in every major Western capital for a matter of years. The fact that this eagerness is known to be shared by the German Chancellor, the special intimate of the late John Foster Dulles, speaks volumes in itself.

Initially, it must be added, Chancellor Adenauer hoped that the man who would give the new direction would be Vice President Nixon. His concern was so great, in fact, that he took the unusual measure of sending his Minister of Information, Felix von Eckardt, on a mission to the United States at the beginning of the Presidential campaign. Von Eckardt went, in effect, as the special political reporter of the German government.

Von Eckardt returned after an extensive inquiry, which culminated in long private talks with both the Republican and Democratic candidates. He predicted the victory of President-elect Kennedy. Perhaps more important, he also told Adenauer that he could stop worrying, because Kennedy could be counted on for vigorous and firm leadership of the West.

The cause of the Chancellor's previous worry about the election of Kennedy was, quite simply, his expectation that Adlai Stevenson was destined to be Kennedy's Secretary of State. Adenauer deeply distrusts Stevenson because he is convinced that Stevenson actually holds the distincly soft views on Berlin and other problems which were attributed to him by the French newspaperman who published an unauthorized interview last spring.

Apparently von Eckardt was in a position to report that Stevenson was unlikely to be Kennedy's Secretary of State. In this connection, it is worth noting that the precise aspect of Stevenson which most alarmed Adenauer — his view on Berlin — also appears to have been the aspect which made Kennedy reluctant to name Stevenson to the Secretaryship.

The crucial episode in the Stevenson-Kennedy relationship, it can be said, was Stevenson's journey to confer with Kennedy at Hyannis just after the Democratic convention. Stevenson then advised the kind of compromise at Berlin which would have left the freedom of the city quite largely dependent on the reliability and good faith of Soviet guarantees. Kennedy's reaction to this advice may be judged by the post-election statement on Berlin which he made for European consumption — certainly the most uncompromising statement made on this topic since the Berlin crisis began two years ago.

That Kennedy statement, added to von Eckardt's personal report, are the main reasons why optimism about the Kennedy administration is now heard on all sides in Bonn, where a Republican defeat used to be almost as much feared as in Formosa. A lesser reason is the extremely maladroit performance of the recent mission headed by Secretary Anderson. Ironically, this is supposed to have led Chancellor Adenauer, now a vigorous eighty-four, to remark that the American government "evidently needed rejuvenation."

The degree of confidence that the German government now tentatively gives to the new American leadership may be judged, in turn, by one of the ideas about the next round in the Berlin crisis that is now being considered in high quarters here.

The Chancellor and his ministers agree that the next round cannot be indefinitely put off. Nikita S. Khrushchev has said as much, with great emphasis, to the German Ambassador in Moscow. But after swearing that he would sign a separate peace treaty with his East German puppets if he were kept waiting too long, Khrushchev also said he would be content if negotiations were renewed in the spring. He also seemed to indicate that the mere renewal of negotiations would be enough to satisfy him.

Obviously, however, a seriously prepared summit meeting cannot take place so soon after the new American government has been formed. Equally obviously, not much can be hoped from a resumption of the Foreign Ministers' talks about Berlin. Hence one idea now current here is that the next round should begin with a simple Khrushchev-Kennedy meeting, not of long duration, not for active bargaining purposes, but solely to allow the two men to take each other's measure.

If Bonn were not optimistic about Kennedy, such an idea for a new start would not even be considered here.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BRIGHT YOUNG MEN—Official Washington is girding itself for a new invasion of bright young men who are expected to be brought into the government by the incoming Kennedy administration.

They'll come off some of the nation's most prominent college campuses in a wave reminiscent of the early days of the Roosevelt New Deal.

All signs point to the organization of idea men who think large theoretical thought about almost everything, from economics through diplomacy, the military and on into outer space. It'll be a re-play of the Roosevelt "brain trust," so frequently accused of never having met a payroll.

Some of the names are already familiar—economist John K. Galbraith and historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., both of Kennedy's school, Harvard. Then there's Ted Sorenson, speech-writer and adviser, and public relations man Pierre Salinger.

Others, whose names did not figure so prominently in the Kennedy campaign, but nevertheless are known faovrably to this inner group, are also slated for important roles in formulating government policies in many fields.

WEATHER "MAN" — The Weather Bureau in Washington has a new electronic computer that is the wonder of the meteorological world. On the basis of data fed into it, it draws weather maps with a mechanically operated pen.

It can predict the weather for three days ahead in a matter of 15 minutes—a task which normally takes a team of highly-trained experts hours to do.

The machine works so fast that weathermen are at a loss for enough information to keep the device, dubbed "The Monster," busy. Unfortunately, however, the machine is as limited in accuracy of its forecast as are the human minds which feed pertinent data into it. If and when weather data can be improved, the machine's accuracy will improve correspondingly.

Right now, it is workingo n an experimental, break-in program. It will become operational soon. Potentially, it is capable of digesting weather information from all parts of the world and up to the altitude of the satellites.

Weather bureau officials predict a far-reaching network of mechanical monsters which some day will collect, transmit and interpret meteorological data from all parts of the world and make weather forecasts for the earth's entire surface.

Kennedy's Adviser Clark Clifford Embroiled In Oil Monopoly Case

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON— President-elect Kennedy doesn't realize it, but he's sitting on an explosive lobbying situation as a result of putting his friend, Clark Clifford, in charge of the take-over from the Eisenhower administration.

Clifford, former counsel to President Truman, is one of the most likable and popular Democrats in the nation's capital. He has a delightful sense of humor, is an astute adviser to friends, and his friends occupy very high places. But he also operates a law firm which receives fees from the biggest corporations in the nation, some of which battled against Jack Kennedy, and all of which have ticklish cases before the government.

Right now, Clifford is sitting on the biggest oil monopoly case in the nation, and so far has performed a near miracle by keeping the Eisenhower administration from doing anything about it. It will be interesting to see if he, a Democrat, succeeds equally with the new Democratic administration.

The case in question is a battle of the giants involving Phillips Petroleum, which leans toward the Democrats and wants to take over Union Oil which is stanchly Republican. This take-over, in turn, is opposed by Gulf Oil, founded by that famous Republican, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury in the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover Cabinet.

Clifford is the attorney for Phillips. And what the moguls of the oil industry are watching is to see whether Clifford will continue to have the ear of the President-elect and will influence his policies toward oil. If so, the oil industry will breathe easy.

Phillips' Senate Friend

Here is the inside story of what is happening in the battle of the giants over Union Oil.

Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, wealthiest member of the Senate, and a Democrat, is the lead horse for Phillips Petroleum. He works with Phillips through his Kerr-McGee Company, and the fact that he is a powerful member of the Senate Finance Committee and a friend of Adm. Lewis Strauss, ex-chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, didn't hurt Phillips at all in getting its tremendous number of atomic energy contracts. It operates six nuclear reactors, a chemical plant to recover fissionable materials for the AEC, and processes 1,800 tons of uranium ore daily at Grants, New Mexico, which it sells to the Atomic Energy Commission under a contract that continues through 1966.

K. S. "Boots" Adams, head of Phillips, is a big contributor to the Democratic Party.

On the other hand, Reese Taylor, head of Union Oil which Phillips wants to take over, is a prominent Republican. Herbert Hoover Jr., former executive vice president of Union, was Under Secretary of State in the Eisenhower administration, and it was Union Oil which gave a favorable lease to the Nixon family for a filling station on the land which Don Nixon and the Vice President's mother put up as collateral for the Howard Hughes $205,000 loan.

In order to dominate Union Oil, Phillips has spent $50,000,000 buying up its stock in the open market, now owns 14 per cent of Union's stock. On the other side, Gulf Oil, dominated by the Mellon family, has bought up $129,000,000 worth of Union's stock—or 26 per cent. Gulf and Union have long had a working agreement whereby Union buys Gulf's oil from the Near East.

Silent Justice Department

When President Taylor of Union interrogated Phillips officials as to why they were raiding Union stock, Phillips replied that they were only making an investment. However, if Phillips was going to put $50,000,000 into an investment it could have bought blue-chip stocks to much better advantage.

So it's suspected that Phillips wants: 1, Union's gas reserves and offshore oil wells; plus, 2, its marketing network, "76 Union," of 497 wholesale bulk plants and 4,478 filling stations, chiefly on the West Coast.

Ordinarily, this battle of two major oil companies to buy stock in another would be pounced upon by the Justice Department, which recently blocked a merger between Texas Oil and Superior Oil. Gulf is the second biggest oil company in the USA. Phillips ranks eighth with assets of $1½ billion. Union ranks fifteenth, with assets of $640,000,000. Whichever company controls it could come close to dominating the U. S. oil market.

However, the Justice Department has not moved. Official reason is that the matter is before the Federal Trade Commission Also, the Trade Commission has done almost nothing It has shown itself to be quite susceptible to Republican pressure in the past, such as that in the Sherman Adams - Goldfine wool - labeling case.

But if any pressure has been exerted by Republicans in this battle over oil it certainly has been unsuccessful. Reese Taylor, president of Union Oil and a stanch Republican, has appealed to the Justice Department to invoke the antitrust laws. But there has been no action.

The battle has been won so far by a Democratic attorney, Clark Clifford, one of the shrewdest lawyers in Washington, who has not even bothered to answer Justice Department letters, and has so deftly steered the course of Phillips Petroleum that his client has been unscathed.

This is why Clifford's designation by President-elect Kennedy to handle the take-over from Eisenhower is being watched with such interest by the oil moguls in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The ad is plain. "Santa Clauses—for all Snevets Markets, typical appearance and jolly manner preferred. From Nov. 25th to Dec. 24th, 8-hour days, 7-day week. $1 hour. Apply in person weekdays 9:30-11:30 a. m." Isn't it a beauty? Doesn't it make your heart sing with Christmas spirit?

Just a darn minute, Mr. Snevets. You don't want Santa Clauses, because every child knows that there is only one, and he's busy at the North Pole making ice skates and sleds and dolls. Besides, he only leaves his workshop with the reindeer on Christmas Eve. He's invisible to all who look for him, and he can be seen only by those who go to bed and keep their eyes closed.

What you want are fat grandpas who are out of work. These men imitate Santa, and some of them do a pretty good job, holding their fat tummies up and laughing ho-ho-ho. However, if you expect them to do it for a buck an hour, you're going to hear some pretty hollow ho-ho-ho's. By Christmas some of them are going to look like anemic jockeys.

Your proposition is better than Metracal. Some Santas will be snatching the lollipops from the crying kids. And how, if I'm not being too fresh, are you going to keep them sober? Not the kids. Santa. I've seen some wild ones, my friend. We had a bird in my home town who used to start down Cedar Lane at 9 a. m. roaring "Merry Christmas, kiddies. Tell Santa what you want for Christmas."

He hit every injay illmay on the route. He started off with a bag full of dollar toys donated by the Chamber of Commerce. By the time he skated out of the fourth gin mill, he was trading the toys for rye. When he hit Bogota, he was skidding in high gear and he stopped only to snarl at innocent children: "Aw, wipe your runny nose!"

Have you ever seen one of these jolly Santas in the can, Mr. Snevets? I have. Such beautiful language. It was music to my ears. I saw an old traffic cop break down and cry at the sound of words he had forgotten.

There was one in New York a few years ago who sat on a throne in a department store. The small fry waited in line and, when they sat on his lap, he hugged them to him and slipped a flask out of his red coat and his nose lit up like a blinker on a plane. He did fine until one little boy ran back crying to his mother: "Santa smells like Daddy."

I played Santa once. However, this was not for one clam per tick. My girls were tiny and my wife thought it would be a good idea if I made up to look like Mr. Claus and, while trimming the tree, she would get the children to come out of bed and run downstairs for a fast look at St. Nick.

It was an idea. Not a great one, Mr. Snevets, but an idea. My mother-in-law had bought a couple of bottles of egg nog from the milkman. She was pouring it in stem glasses, sipping it, and saying: "They didn't put anything in it." Well, they did. But it tasted like heavy cream with a lacing of cinnamon, so we added a dollop of kickapoo joy juice.

It tasted fair, but not memorable. So we kept putting more of the booze in it and less of the sticky cream, and at last I suggested that we all kick the egg nog habit together. We did. It was 1 a. m. when I put on the Stanta outfit ($15 rental fee) and it required the services of the two ladies to pour me into it.

By that time, my wife was standing thirty feet from the tree throwing the silver icicles at it and my mother-in-law was puffing trying to get me up on the little kitchen ladder beside the tree. My part wasn't big. All I had to do was to put the big star on top of the tree and, with my back to the youngsters, roar "Merry Christmas everyone and to all a good night."

The children were awakened, and they came down in their nighties. "Look lovey," my mother-in-law said, with a blood pressure of 240 over 130, "there's Santa Claus." My wife was flinging the tinsel at me and I leaned over the tree with the big star and yelled ". . . and to all a good night" and fell right through the branches. Have you ever picked pine needles out of your eyeballs, Mr. Snevets?

My advice is to get a record player, with a lot of Christmas carols, and play them over and over, every day, until the parents go stark raving mad. Don't take chances on those spurious Santas. Why economize, pal? Get the real one for $1.10 an hour . . .

Gnashing The Teeth Can Bring On Headaches

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Headache may stem from disorders of the joints in the lower jaw. These joints are located under the cheeks, halfway between the eyes and ears, and permit the lower jaw to move up and down. They are surrounded by powerful muscles that are visible when the individual chews.

The movements of the lower jaw are similar to those of a trap door. The hinge is easily strained when the teeth do not meet properly due to the loss of certain molars or incisors, malocclusion, or improper chewing.

At any rate, when jaw movements are impaired for any reason, the joint may be displaced and the muscles strained. Pain may be so severe the victim is unable to open the mouth to eat or talk.

In other instances, the distress masquerades as headache, neuralgia, or ear disease. Severe pain may shoot up from the ear to the face or eye and dizziness and head noises may occur. Still others have a dull headache located toward the front, behind the eyes, in the temple area, or in back of the head.

Some of these headache victims unconsciously grind or clench the teeth (bruxism). This is done while sleeping or concentrating on some trying work, especially when upset or irritated. Many develop the habit because of disturbances of the bite. This bad habit serves no purpose and overstrains the jaw muscles. Headache often is noted in the morning after a night of teeth gnashing.

The origin of headache and facial pain should always be considered when these symptoms fail to respond to ordinary measures. This is particularly true when the joint is sore, bruxism exists, or the condition is aggravated by talking or eating. Our oral surgeons and dentists have many ways to correct the condition with special relaxation plates, splints, and other dental procedures.

SHOULDER-HAND PAIN

W. S. R. writes: You recently mentioned the use of the new anti-ringworm medicine for the shoulder-hand syndrome. I have this condition and nothing that has been done has helped. Please tell more about it.

REPLY

This stubborn condition has always been best treated with physical therapy. We are encouraged by the recent report that griseofulvin (the product referred to) was effective in a few cases but let's not get too enthusiastic until the results are confirmed.

IT WON'T FLY OUT

E. T. writes: What happens when a person swallows a live fly?

REPLY

The stomach acid will kill the insect, which then will be digested like any other meat Don't ask me if it is high in cholesterol.

FERTILITY

E. M. G. writes: Is the teeming population explosion in China due to eating mostly carbohydrates?

REPLY

I was not aware of a stepped up population explosion in China. These people have been prolific for centuries and have subsisted on rice—a carbohydrate. The Chinese have loads of children because there are lots of Chinese.

DIGESTION

H. G. writes: Does it take 8 hours to digest a hearty meal?

REPLY

Food remains in the stomach for 2 to 8 hours. Variations occur because of the amounts of food taken and its fat content.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

You married ladies who worry too much about masked prowlers and marauders in the night: could it be that you're neglecting a danger from within?

Sociology Professor Edwin H. Sutherland has assembled some startling statistics which reveal that a woman is in more danger of being attacked by her own husband than by any other assailant. Twice as many women required hospitalization last year from husbands' blows as from all the attacks by gangsters and burglars on the police registers! That shnook of a husband of yours is definitely not as harmless as he looks!

A top man in our Defense Department a couple of decades ago failed to meet the exacting standards of an important English friend — Mr. Winston Churchill.

"That fellow L——," Churchill would grumble, "carries his own precipices around with him." Another time he voiced the suspicion that "L—— throws a banana peel ahead of himself before walking into a conference."

Thanks to new super telescopes some 100,000 million billion stars are known today to astronomers—Factographs. That would seem to be more than enough.

If Uncle Sam has a dark-brown taste in his mouth these days, maybe here's why: The Pan-American Coffee Bureau reports that we Americans are now downing a record 377 million cups of java a day!

Sir Ben Lockspeiser, a British scientist, says a computing machine could write better love letters than men. We can't agree with Sir Ben—how can an electronic gadget put its non-existing heart into the job?

The shortest day of the whole year occurs just before Christmas. This, complains Milt, the sterling printer, certainly doesn't give the holiday shoppers a break!

A MERRIER CHRISTMAS IS IN THE CARDS—Christmas greeting cards have come a long way since the first known card (lower left) was designed in 1843 by John Calcott Horsley, R. A., British painter and illustrator, for Sir Henry Cole. In 1846, 1,000 copies were lithographed, hand-colored and sold in London. The Greeting Card Association of New York City says there are nearly 50,000 different kinds of Christmas card designs this year, predicts nearly three billion greetings will be mailed. (Central Press)

It's Christmas Card Time Once Again

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Better get out last year's Christmas card list and bring it up to date.

Once again it's time to begin addressing those cordial Yuletide greetings to old friends.

Of course it never fails that just when you think you have all your cards addressed and mailed, you receive one during the last-minute rush from someone you have forgotten.

So off to the card shop you dash to look over remnants of the once well-stacked display.

The sending of Christmas cards is a big business nowadays. Approximately two billion are sent out each year in the United States, where the custom was introduced 85 years ago.

Louis Prang, a German emigrant printer, is reported to have introduced the Christmas card to America. However, the origin of the Christmas card is disputed.

According to some, William Egley, an English artist, designed a card in 1842 and had 100 sent to friends.

Others, asserting that Egley's card was produced in 1849, give credit to John C. Horsely who was commissioned by Sir Henry Cole to design a Christmas card for him in 1846.

At the age of 16, Egley, a printer apprentice who worked in a London shop, was reported to have put the wheels in motion. Just before Christmas in 1842 the youthful line engraver hit upon the idea of sending engraved cards to his friends.

He is reported to have designed and printed a series of panels, depicting a children's pary, a Punch and Judy show, a poor family receiving baskets of food, a Yuletide banquet, skaters gliding around a glassy pond, and a band of muffled street musicians serenading in the snow.

Egley is also credited with originating the familiar greeting of "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Birth Of Kennedy Son Reported In 'Variety'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The list of births in this week's issue of the show business trade paper, Variety, included:

"Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, Nov. 25, Washington, a son, John F. Kennedy Jr. Child is grandson of Joseph P. Kennedy, former president of film booking office and RKO Theaters."

Stock Purchased

NEW YORK (UPI) — Schenley Industries, Inc. has announced purchase of 18,183 shares of Radiation Applications, Inc. stock, increasing its equity in Rai to approximately 36 per cent of the outstanding shares. Stone & Co., both directly and through a private placement, also purchased 12,122 shares, and Payson and Trask has an interest amounting to approximately 6 per cent of Rai stock.

If the nation saved the more than 12½ billion dollars it loses annually in accidents, it could build 630 20-million-dollar skyscrapers, 1,680 7½-million-dollar hospitals, 12,600 million-dollar schools and 630,000 homes costing $12,000 each.

Orient Observes Christmas With Peculiar Flavor

TOKYO (UPI) — Christmas means many things to the predominantly non-Christian nations of Asia.

In the Catholic Philippines, Christmas is celebrated with all its religious significance. In Buddhist Japan, it is a time for a rip-roaring night on the town.

In Pakistan, it coincides with the celebration of the birthday of the nation's founder In National ist China, it's a day of friendship.

The Republic of Korea sees Christmas most clearly in the American tradition. Thousands of U.S. servicemen stationed in Korea attend church services, exchange presents, eat the traditional huge Christmas dinner and hold parties at the numerous orphanages throughout the ion.

Filipinos Begin Early

Filipinos start off the Christmas season early on Dec. 16 when they rise early and attend the first of a nine - day series of Masses called "Missa de Gallo." It is climaxed by midnight Mass Christmas Eve and ends Jan. 6, the day the Three Magi visited Jesus in the manger and brought their precious gifts of gold, myrrh and frankincense.

After the ninth day Mass, there is a reunion of all members of the family over a sumptuous table laden with fruits, roast pig and other delicacies in what is known as "noche buena."

In some towns near Manila, an old custom is kept alive. It is called "panunuluyan," or the search for shelter. It depicts the search for shelter by Mary and Joseph in the town of Bethlehem the night Jesus was born.

A Filipino man and woman dressed like the holy couple go around town knocking vainly from door to door while a crowd gathers around. The procession ends when the couple is received at the church where the nativity scene is re-enacted.

Celebrants Crowd Ginza

The atmosphere is completely different in Japan. The most important holiday of the year for Japanese is New Year's Day. In contrast to western New Year's celebrations, Japan is quiet Jan. 1. It is a time to visit relatives and exchange gifts. It is not a time for rousing celebrations.

The Japanese make up for it Christmas Eve. Tokyo's famed Ginza area is crowded with celebrants, and loud speakers blare out Christmas carols.

Not missing a trick, Japan's department stores take advantage of the Christmas season to promote sales. Huge Santa Clauses appear in the stores or sales girls sport Santa Claus uniforms.

Christmas Eve in Japan is the tipplers' delight. There were so many last year that an organization of housewives sent out patrols to remove drunken men from the streets so they wouldn't be injured. Police also send out special drunk patrols that night.

Under the martial law government of Pakistan President Yub Khan, Dec. 25 was declared a national holiday, the birthday of founder Mohammed Ali Jinnah. Dec. 25 has become a day of prayers and visiting of mosques throughout Pakistan. On Dec. 24 all shops are ablaze with colored lights. Government buildings are lighted throughout the night and movie houses, shops and night clubs do a brisk business.

Chinese Make Merry

Although less than 3 per cent of Formosa's population is listed as Christian, many Chinese observe the yuletide with exchange of cards and gay dancing parties Christmas Eve.

The drinking and merry-making suggest the spirit of America's New Year's Eve rather than the Christian holiday.

The Chinese reserve as their major holiday the lunar new year, which falls several weeks after Jan. 1.

But Chinese, long in contact with the western world, exchange Christmas cards illustrated with Santa Claus or the Babe in the manger in a spirit of friendship rather than religious observance.

Semi-tropical Formosa blooms in December with wild - growing poinsettia, a flower symbolic of the Christmas spirit in the U.S.

Fix Up Houses

Singapore Christians celebrate Christmas in much the same manner as in western nations. But it comes during the rainy season when the temperature usually is in the mid-80's.

Children are not taught that Santa comes on Christmas Eve and delivers them presents. They are told that Santa is the spirit of Christmas.

Preparations for Christmas already have begun in Singapore. They include tidying up the house, with every member of the family being assigned a specific task. New paint is applied, old curtains replaced, walls whitewashed and floors polished.

In cosmopolitan Singapore, Christmas is accepted and respected by all non-Christians, many of whom participate in some of the celebrations. Christmas is a national holiday just as are all the major Moslem, Hindu and Chinese holidays. Christmas ranks in importance with Moslem Hari Raya celebrations, but does not have the island-wide impact of the Chinese New Year.

Court Of Claims Is Federal Conscience

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Did you know the U.S. government has a conscience?

Its voice is neither still nor small, but loud and insistent. It is lodged in the U.S. Court of Claims, which has just started its fall session. The court's job is to right the financial wrongs — legal and moral—suffered at the hands of the federal government by individuals and businesses at home and abroad.

The court relies on the principle laid down by President Abraham Lincoln in whose administration the tribunal got its real authority. Lincoln said, "It is as much the duty of government to render prompt justice against itself in favor of its citizens as it is to administer the same between private individuals."

One Judge "Retired"

Members of the court have voiced this philosophy with some dexterity down through the years. Their jurisdiction follows the flag.

Jurists who now point the finger of duty at the U.S. Treasury are Chief Judge Marvin Jones of Texas, former member of Congress and Judges Samuel E. Whitaker, Tennessee lawyer who was once city attorney of Chattanooga and later mayor of Riverview; J. Warren Madden of Illinois, law professor and former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; Don N. Laramore, one-time Indiana state judge; and James R. Durfee of Wisconsin, former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Judge Benjamin H. Littleton of Tennessee, former chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals, still sits on cases quite often, although he retired from the court in 1953.

For years the Claims Court has been housed in a museum-like red brick structure, formerly the Corcoran Art Gallery, located a stone's throw from the White House. It served during the Civil War as a storage place for ammunition. The set for the stage play "Andersonville" showed part of the building.

Plan New Home

Plans now are under way for construction of a new home, which also will accommodate other federal courts.

Aggrieved parties may file their own cases with the Claims Courts and Congress can refer claims there for fact-finding and recommendation. No claim is too small and no subject matter too bizarre for consideration.

For instance, there was the 1924 suit by Herbert S. Ward, an Agriculture Department inspector, for $1.50 lunch money which the comptroller general had disallowed. Ward won, arguing his own case.

In 1918 and 1920 came a federal tax on candy. The court had to decide if the tax applied to the pop corn delicacy known as Cracker Jack. It did.

In 1937 an elderly couple who operated a silver fox farm in Alaska sought damages because of the enlargement of Mount McKinley National Park. The advent of horses, rangers, dogs and tourists created so much confusion the foxes stopped mating. Duke Stubbs and his wife won a $50,000 judgment.

Helps Post Office

About the same time one of the court's most celebrated cases was brought by T. N. Belcher, a Central City, Ky., dealer who supplied $200 worth of coal to the local post office. He borrowed this money at the bank while waiting for the government to pay but was never able to collect.

Belcher died while trying to convince the comptroller general that the debt had not been "paid in full" by the bank. His widow finally sued and got the money.

"This method of settling government obligations is so novel that it should be patentable," the court said in its opinion." (But) that a just government would pursue such a course . . . is almost incredible."

One more recent case that set a legal precedent was brought by Thomas Lee Causby, who operated a chicken farm near the Greensboro, N.C., city airport. The government leased the field and began flying heavy military planes at low altitudes.

Causby's hens stopped laying eggs. The court, upheld in 1946 by the U.S. Supreme Court, ruled that the government had taken an easement over his property and was liable for just compensation.

Turncoats Seek Pay

Not all cases are so folksy. Many involve damages caused by war, allegedly unfair discharges from civil service, Indian claims, government contracts and the like.

Now scheduled for argument before the U.S. Supreme Court is an appeal by three Army privates who defected to the Communist Chinese after the Korean War but returned home later. They sued for $9,256 in prisoner-of-war pay, although while held in Korean prison camps they had fraternized with their captors and informed on fellow prisoners.

This case split the Claims Court. Speaking for the majority Jones said, "It is almost incredible that these men would ask for pay in the light of the conduct disclosed in the record."

However, Madden thought the Army had no legal right to refuse the money, regardless of how "traitorous and contemptible" the conduct of the men had been. They have "incurred the just condemnation of public opinion," he said, but "the courts have nothing to do with that judgment."

The Supreme Court will hear the case some time this term.

There are virtually no taxes in the little Alpine principality of Liechtenstein, which derives most of its income from fees paid by international corporations making it their headquarters.

WOUNDED IN CARACAS RIOTS—Bystanders come to the assistance of a policeman as a man wounded in a Caracas, Venezuela, street battle is carried to an ambulance. Although troops have begun reestablishing order, sporadic outbreaks of violence were reported. At least 10 persons had been killed.

The 132-mile New Jersey Turnpike, jugular vein of Garden State commerce, crosses one of the most highly industrialized areas on earth. Accommodating a million vehicles a week, the superhighway speeds such varied New Jersey products as orchids and soup, hot dogs and beer bottles, electronic brains and frozen broccoli, pen points and rocket engines.

Christmas Far From Jolly For Many, Psychiatrist Says

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Contemporary Scrooges say "humbug" to the view holding that Christmas "'Tis the season to be jolly."

The sight of holly and sound of Santa's bells depresses most of the neurotics. The depression sets in around Thanksgiving and builds up, hitting a peak around December 25.

It usually disappears around the first of the New Year.

Now this psychiatric view of Christmas reactions comes from a team of experts at the University of Utah College of Medicine, Salt Lake City.

In a report on the subject, Dr. Nyla J. Cole, of the medical school's Department of Psychiatry, said that depression — not being joyous — during the Christmas season is common, rather than different or odd.

Regression Is Invited

The experts found that some folks work themselves into trouble around holiday time by figuring that Christmas represents a permission to put aside adult responsibilities, to relax and enjoy oneself — come what may.

As a result, something called regression is invited.

"And, as with any regression, one sees a release of more infantile impulses," Dr. Cole reported. "This release can either lead to gratification if society assumes an accepting attitude, or to censure and conflict, if objections occur."

Take for example those who will put on weight by indulging their oral impulses.

One couple being treated at the medical center's clinic was "a female mountain of fat and a sulky, skinny spouse."

The wife reacted to the approach of Christmas by eating faster and faster. The husband got madder and madder. The holidays were far from jolly in that household.

Some Men Rebel

Dr. Cole said some men, who feel their role as provider a thankless one, may rebel under the additional pressure of the Christmas season.

Take the case of the dad of seven who struggled yearly to buy gifts for his brood, but never received a Christmas present himself.

One recent Christmas, this gent touched off a family crisis by going on a sit-down-strike. He refused to go Christmas shopping.

"The reverse of this," Dr. Cole reported, "is the occasional psychopath who drifts through life in the role of the child, always manipulating to receive, but repudiating the adult role.

He's Cast Aside

"Sooner or later, those who baby him rebel and cast him from the family fold; the holiday time frequently precipitates this.

"These black sheep occasionally then appear in the clinic, repentant and promising to be good."

They're epitomized by the song —"I'm Getting Nuthin' for Christmas, 'Cause I've Been Nuthin' But Bad."

The ritual of Christmas stressing the renewal of family ties and friendliness provok- a number of reactions. Dr. Cole said this burden seems to fall more on the female, who shows the larger proportion of depressive reactions.

"One common dynamic factor involves those women who desire the adult female role but have secret doubts about their abilities to fulfill it," the psychiatrist said.

These females can be expected to react with resentment or depression when, under pressure, they submit to the festivities occurring in other people's homes.

More Colds, Flu Reported In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The arrival of colder weather usually means more colds and flu suffers, and West Virginians are no exceptions.

The State Health Department reported that 349 new flu-like cases were reported last week, 188 from Cabell County. The state's total so far this year now stands at 80,207 compared to 32,342 last year.

The department also reports that only one new polio case was recorded in West Virginia last week, in Hancock County, to bring West Virginia's 1960 total polio count to 59 compared to 187 in 1959.

Honeycomb Paper Decorations Are Ideal For Parties During Christmas Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bees won't tell you, but what's new in honeycomb this Christmas is really honey for the housewife preparing for a party.

Honeycomb is the name for the paper process used in making those old red Christmas bells, which nearly everyone remembers from childhood. Its outstanding characteristic — elasticity — allows it to be pulled back and forth much in the manner of an accordion — and makes it ideal for party decorations.

Whether you're decorating for friends dropping in for eggnog, or a bridge club meeting shortly before Christmas, a handy helper for the Yuletide is a snowman party ensemble complete with invitations, a table centerpiece, plates, cups, place mats, napkins and similar items.

A snowy-white honeycomb snowman with red trimmings sets the mood for the ensemble and the design is carried out in the matching items. Jolly old St. Nicholas also is designed as a centerpiece, from red honeycomb, while a holly designs theme is carried out in an ensemble of snack plates, napkins, table cover, dinner plates, paper cups, aprons and even guest towels.

Honeycomb's versatility makes it easy to style in a variety of designs, many of them circular. There is, for example, a pair of gold-haloed angels styled from white honeycomb that lends a high-fashion air to festive Yule home decorations. Also white is a semi-circular Christmas tree adorned with golden doves and sequins.

Other decorations and designs with Christmas themes — Nativity scenes, a red sleigh card holder, a honeycomb tree base trim, 13-inch green honeycomb Christmas tree, a red Santa door decoration, a 30-inch-tall snowman (he matches the 12-inch-tall table centerpiece), gold foil lanterns, snowflakes, and gold foil door decorations also are new for Christmas this year.

The new decorations serve to give an added touch of festive glow to the table, to the door, or to the mantel.

Land has been acquired off Key Largo in the Atlantic Ocean for Florida's first underwater state park. To be called the Coral Reef Preserve Park, the new attraction will feature coral formations unparalleled anywhere along the North American coast.

There's something basic about bread. Particularly Italian bread.

With all our streamlining we Americans have never made a bread with the earthy goodness of a real Italian loaf. To do it, you have to slow down the clock. And that's what we did with 'taliano—a bread that's actually aged a bit, after mixing, like a fine wine . . . then slow-baked in a hearth.

Try it toasted. Ah, she is so good. So very, very good.

To Make Christmas Card Really Friendly Greeting, Add A Personal Message

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most often asked questions about Christmas cards is, "Is it proper to add a personal note or message?"

The answer is, yes, indeed! There's no reason to leave empty space.

"The idea is to let your Christmas cards carry messages for you—news of you and your family, messages of good wishes," said Mrs. Jeannette Lee, art director for a leading card manufacturer.

Such notes on Christmas cards have become one of the nation's favorite methods of greeting friends near and far, old and new," she said.

"Christmas messages," said Charles Dickens, "are a great accumulation of friendly recollections." And Samuel Johnson, famed 18th century English philosopher noted. "A man should keep his friendships in constant repair."

Fashionable personalized Christmas cards, with your name and return address imprinted, are helping more and more people find time to add personal messages on cards, Mrs. Lee said. These convenient time - savers, plus self-seal envelopes, can cut in half the routine of preparing cards, leaving time for writing warm, personal messages.

The idea of Christmas cards originated with a man who wanted to send season greetings to friends. The year was 1843, the setting London, and the man Henry Cole.

Historians credit Cole with originating Christmas cards when he sent out 1,000 printed season greetings. Her company only recently was successful in obtaining two original specimans of the first Christmas card for its collection of antique greeting cards, Mrs. Lee said.

Your personal handwriting, characteristic of you, should be used for addressing the envelope, as it conveys the warmth of a friendly handshake, Mrs. Lee said.

If you receive a card from friends you've overlooked, it is best to send them a card if it will be received before Christmas. If this is impossible, send a Thank You or New Year's card.

Informality should be used in signing most cards, whether by hand or on imprinted greetings, Mrs. Lee said.

"Mary and John" or "Mary and John Carey" are warmer and more personal than "Mr. and Mrs. John Carey." Children are listed according to age, in this manner: The Careys, Mary and John, David, Judy and Susan."

The wife's name is usually listed first, as a matter of courtesy. However, in some cases the one who signs the card writes her or his name last, Mrs. Lee said. On imprinted cards, the person who writes the note signs his or her name at the end.

Gold is nearly 20 times as heavy as water.

DOUBLE SIZE—8 SERVINGS

Lamb Curry On Rice

The ingredients are:

- 1½ cups quick-cooking rice
- 1½ lbs. boneless lamb shoulder
- 2 tbsp. oil or fat
- 1½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 2 cups water
- 1 tsp. curry powder
- ¼ cup flower
- ¼ cup water
- ½ cup chopped peanuts
- ¼ cup shredded coconut

Cook rice according to directions on package. Place in a 2-quart casserole or shallow baking dish.

Cut lamb into three-quarter-inch pieces and brown in the hot oil in a skillet. Sprinkle salt, pepper, and paprika over the meat. Add onions, celery, and 2 cups water; cover and simmer slowly 1 hour.

Combine curry powder, flour, and ¼ cup water, and add to mixture in skillet. Cook until thickened; then pour over rice in casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 F) 30 minutes, or until bubbly.

Just before serving, sprinkle peanuts and coconut over tops. Serve hot. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Easy No-Bake Fruitcake

Rich, extra-moist and full of flavor, No-Bake Fruitcake has every bit of that old-fashioned goodness, yet is prepared an easy new way . . . without baking! It's made from a base of graham cracker crumbs, marshmallows and fruit juice, blended to elegant perfection with creamy evaporated milk.

Make this festive No-Bake Fruitcake now before the busy holidays begin. It travels well to say "Happy Holiday" to far away friends. It stays fresh and moist in the refrigerator for a month. For longer storage, freeze it!

No-Bake Fruitcake is a holiday treat for the family . . . the season's best greeting for guests. Try it soon.

New No-Bake Fruitcake

- ⅔ cup evaporated milk
- 6 cups miniature marshmallows
- 6 Tablesp. frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted
- ¾ cup cut-up dates
- ¾ cup raisins
- 1 cup broken walnuts
- 1 cup candied fruit
- ¼ cup candied red cherries
- 4 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1 teasp. cinnamon
- 1 teasp. nutmeg
- ½ teasp. cloves

Cook and stir evaporated milk, marshmallows and orange juice concentrate in a 3-quart saucepan over medium heat until marshmallows melt. Take off heat and stir in until well blended dates, raisins, walnuts, candied fruit, candied red crerries and a mixture of graham cracker crumbs, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. Press mixture firmly into a 5 or 6 cup ring mold or 1½-quart loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Cover fruitcake tightly and chill 2 days before serving. Makes 3 lbs.

NOTE: To make large No-Bake Fruitcake double the recipe and press mixture into 9-inch angel cake pan. Makes 6 lbs.

Offbeat Kitchenwares Are Nice Christmas Gifts

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) You can satisfy a yen to grow your own mushrooms indoors this Christmas, courtesy of a mail order kit. All you need to go with the kit are a cellar and patience. Thirty days are required for the kit—with soil and plastic, cover—to produce a crop.

Such off-beat gifts are as common in today's mail order catalogs as wood-burning kitchen ranges were in Grandpa's time.

A New England firm (Breck's of Boston) offering the mushroom kit also sells:

A combination lemon squeezer, nutcracker and olive and cherry pitter that looks like a garlic press and presumably can perform all three services simultaneously; a white porcelain teapot with built-in music box; the tune, naturally, is "Tea for Two," but the pot capacity is 4 to 6 cups.

Spikes Hold Food

A styrene cutting board with hardwood cutting surface and a magnet that holds both metallic and non-metallic surfaces; a heavy aluminum carving plate with one major advantage over conventional well-and-tree platters—spikes in the plate's surface hold food firmly while the carver performs his slippery duty.

Finicky steak eaters who carry their personal pocket steak knife can buy a pocket knife sharpener, a 4-inch steel hone in a leather case. The knife itself is available from a well-known New York housewares store (Hammacher Schlemmer,) which also sells a pocket pepper mill.

This firm's catalog also lists a pair of battery-operated carving knives for men who find carving the holiday bird or roast hard work; an electric fish scaler; an electric silver polisher; a battery-powered swizzler for topers too lazy to stir their own drinks; and a cocktail or wine dispenser resembling an upside-down chemical flask.

Has Butter Curlers

Another New York housewares store (Bazar Francais) has butter curlers; a green bean slicer shaped like a pencil sharpener; strainer-shaped bird's nest fryers for making nests and potato baskets; and three types of equipment to convert European weights to American measurements — a measuring glass, a conventional balance scale with gram weights, and a spoon-shaped balance scale for small quantities.

From a midwestern mail order house, (Miles Kimball, Oshkosh, Wis.), you can order wicker bread baskets with zippered cloth covers to keep the contents warm; a 2½-foot long appliance cord for standard coffeemakers and frypans; candle holders with side stakes to fasten to the sides of cakes; a cup-shaped aluminum butter and chocolate melter that clips onto saucepans to work like a double boiler; a metal device to float on soups and stews to draw off excess fat; and a quadruple-duty ceramic gadget that is a spoon rest, ladle, ashtray and recipe card holder.

Damp clothes which cannot be ironed immediately should be stashed in the refrigerator to prevent mildew.

A MERRIER CHRISTMAS IS IN THE CARDS—Christmas greeting cards have come a long way since the first known card (lower left) was designed in 1843 by John Calcott Horsley, R. A., British painter and illustrator, for Sir Henry Cole. In 1846, 1,000 copies were lithographed, hand-colored and sold in London. The Greeting Card Association of New York City says there are nearly 50,000 different kinds of Christmas card designs this year, predicts nearly three billion greetings will be mailed. (Central Press)

Orient Observes Christmas With Peculiar Flavor

TOKYO (UPI) — Christmas means many things to the predominantly non-Christian nations of Asia.

In the Catholic Philippines, Christmas is celebrated with all its religious significance. In Buddhist Japan, it is a time for a rip-roaring night on the town.

In Pakistan, it coincides with the celebration of the birthday of the nation's founder In National ist China, it's a day of friendship.

The Republic of Korea sees Christmas most clearly in the American tradition. Thousands of U.S. servicemen stationed in Korea attend church services, exchange presents, eat the traditional huge Christmas dinner and hold parties at the numerous orphanages throughout the ion.

Filipinos Begin Early

Filipinos start off the Christmas season early on Dec. 16 when they rise early and attend the first of a nine - day series of Masses called "Missa de Gallo." It is climaxed by midnight Mass Christmas Eve and ends Jan. 6, the day the Three Magi visited Jesus in the manger and brought their precious gifts of gold, myrrh and frankincense.

After the ninth day Mass, there is a reunion of all members of the family over a sumptuous table laden with fruits, roast pig and other delicacies in what is known as "noche buena."

In some towns near Manila, an old custom is kept alive. It is called "panunuluyan," or the search for shelter. It depicts the search for shelter by Mary and Joseph in the town of Bethlehem the night Jesus was born.

A Filipino man and woman dressed like the holy couple go around town knocking vainly from door to door while a crowd gathers around. The procession ends when the couple is received at the church where the nativity scene is re-enacted.

Celebrants Crowd Ginza

The atmosphere is completely different in Japan. The most important holiday of the year for Japanese is New Year's Day. In contrast to western New Year's celebrations, Japan is quiet Jan. 1. It is a time to visit relatives and exchange gifts. It is not a time for rousing celebrations.

The Japanese make up for it Christmas Eve. Tokyo's famed Ginza area is crowded with celebrants, and loud speakers blare out Christmas carols.

Not missing a trick, Japan's department stores take advantage of the Christmas season to promote sales. Huge Santa Clauses appear in the stores or sales girls sport Santa Claus uniforms.

Christmas Eve in Japan is the tipplers' delight. There were so many last year that an organization of housewives sent out patrols to remove drunken men from the streets so they wouldn't be injured. Police also send out special drunk patrols that night.

Under the martial law government of Pakistan President Yub Khan, Dec. 25 was declared a national holiday, the birthday of founder Mohammed Ali Jinnah. Dec. 25 has become a day of prayers and visiting of mosques throughout Pakistan. On Dec. 24 all shops are ablaze with colored lights. Government buildings are lighted throughout the night and movie houses, shops and night clubs do a brisk business.

Chinese Make Merry

Although less than 3 per cent of Formosa's population is listed as Christian, many Chinese observe the yuletide with exchange of cards and gay dancing parties Christmas Eve.

The drinking and merry-making suggest the spirit of America's New Year's Eve rather than the Christian holiday.

The Chinese reserve as their major holiday the lunar new year, which falls several weeks after Jan. 1.

But Chinese, long in contact with the western world, exchange Christmas cards illustrated with Santa Claus or the Babe in the manger in a spirit of friendship rather than religious observance.

Semi-tropical Formosa blooms in December with wild - growing poinsettia, a flower symbolic of the Christmas spirit in the U.S.

Fix Up Houses

Singapore Christians celebrate Christmas in much the same manner as in western nations. But it comes during the rainy season when the temperature usually is in the mid-80's.

Children are not taught that Santa comes on Christmas Eve and delivers them presents. They are told that Santa is the spirit of Christmas.

Preparations for Christmas already have begun in Singapore. They include tidying up the house, with every member of the family being assigned a specific task. New paint is applied, old curtains replaced, walls whitewashed and floors polished.

In cosmopolitan Singapore, Christmas is accepted and respected by all non-Christians, many of whom participate in some of the celebrations. Christmas is a national holiday just as are all the major Moslem, Hindu and Chinese holidays. Christmas ranks in importance with Moslem Hari Raya celebrations, but does not have the island-wide impact of the Chinese New Year.

KIDNAPER IN TOW — FBI agents keep a firm grip on manacled Frank Marrone in taking him from Los Angeles to San Diego, Calif., as mastermind in the $200,000 Anthony Alessio kidnaping.

An automatic testing machine used by a U.S. missile component manufacturer can run a complete test on a complicated assembly in just one hour compared with 32 hours required to check the assembly by manual methods.

It's Christmas Card Time Once Again

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Better get out last year's Christmas card list and bring it up to date.

Once again it's time to begin addressing those cordial Yuletide greetings to old friends.

Of course it never fails that just when you think you have all your cards addressed and mailed, you receive one during the last-minute rush from someone you have forgotten.

So off to the card shop you dash to look over remnants of the once well-stacked display.

The sending of Christmas cards is a big business nowadays. Approximately two billion are sent out each year in the United States, where the custom was introduced 85 years ago.

Louis Prang, a German emigrant printer, is reported to have introduced the Christmas card to America. However, the origin of the Christmas card is disputed.

According to some, William Egley, an English artist, designed a card in 1842 and had 100 sent to friends.

Others, asserting that Egley's card was produced in 1849, give credit to John C. Horsely who was commissioned by Sir Henry Cole to design a Christmas card for him in 1846.

At the age of 16, Egley, a printer apprentice who worked in a London shop, was reported to have put the wheels in motion. Just before Christmas in 1842 the youthful line engraver hit upon the idea of sending engraved cards to his friends.

He is reported to have designed and printed a series of panels, depicting a children's pary, a Punch and Judy show, a poor family receiving baskets of food, a Yuletide banquet, skaters gliding around a glassy pond, and a band of muffled street musicians serenading in the snow.

Egley is also credited with originating the familiar greeting of "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Stock Purchased

NEW YORK (UPI) — Schenley Industries, Inc. has announced purchase of 18,183 shares of Radiation Applications, Inc. stock, increasing its equity in Rai to approximately 36 per cent of the outstanding shares. Stone & Co., both directly and through a private placement, also purchased 12,122 shares, and Payson and Trask has an interest amounting to approximately 6 per cent of Rai stock.

Birth Of Kennedy Son Reported In 'Variety'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The list of births in this week's issue of the show business trade paper, Variety, included:

"Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, Nov. 25, Washington, a son, John F. Kennedy Jr. Child is grandson of Joseph P. Kennedy, former president of film booking office and RKO Theaters."

If the nation saved the more than 12½ billion dollars it loses annually in accidents, it could build 630 20-million-dollar skyscrapers, 1,680 7½-million-dollar hospitals, 12,600 million - dollar schools and 630,000 homes costing $12,000 each.

Apple-Hamburger Balls

Keep it simple but have it fun . . . that's the magic for your main hot buffet dish. These Apple-Hamburger Balls in Pastry are an example.

A tray load of them set out buffet fashion look like fun to eat . . . and most decidedly are. There are good seasonings in those meat balls and tangy canned apple sauce for even more zest.

You can make the meat balls hours ahead of your party, even the day before, tuck them into their pastry jackets and store them in the refrigerator to be brought out and baked in relays as needed. Result . . . to the great pleasure of guests, platter after platter arrives bearing fresh hot meat balls wrapped in tender pastry. Then in the serving, each one is spooned with mushroom gravy. All of which tastes so good, it's a big hurrah all round.

Baffled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Freshman cooks baffled by culinary terminology include an interior decorator friend of Elaine Ross, a food expert and author.

Mrs. Ross reports that a recipe for browning meat elicited this inquiry: "When you say brown, do you mean maple, walnut or mahogany?"

There's now a medical reason for tossing rice at weddings. Apparently, according to science reports, it's good for longevity. The news reports maintain that rice has a beneficial place in diets of persons suffering from high blood pressure, heart, kidney and eye diseases, diabetes and hardening of the arteries.

The Department of Commerce estimates that there will be 114 million motor vehicles on the highways by 1976. There are some 70 million registered now.

How To Make Unusual Favors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Miniature candles that float on "clouds" make distinctive table favors for holiday guests, and they're as easy to prepare as a packaged pie.

Combine two or three cups of soap flakes or detergent with a little water. Beat with a hand or electric mixer until the suds have the consistency of meringue. Drop a tablespoon of suds on waxed paper, foil or cookie sheet, and imbed a three-inch candle in the center. Sprinkle each cloud with gold or silver glitter. If place cards are needed, insert one in front of each candle.

Let the clouds dry at least a day, then lift them carefully from the paper with a spatula and put on the table.

The best way to preserve paint brushes when not in use is to hang them in raw linseed oil in covered containers. Support them from the top so that bristles are covered by the oil yet do not touch the bottom of the can.

Italy Pushing Exports Of Its Famous Cheeses

ROME (UPI) — The odor of a fat green - streaked cheese from the little village of Gorgonzola, Italy, excites controversy wherever the wind carries it.

Many gourmets throughout the world will walk miles for a taste of piquant, sour-sweet gorgonzola. But rumor has it that romances have foundered and marriages broken over its unmistakable aroma

Gorgonzola, however, is only one of the many exciting cheeses that Italy plans to promote on the world market in a bid to overcome a glut of milk at home.

Dairy breeding has boomed in recent years and the milk yield accordingly risen to an annual production of some 10 billion quarts.

This rise was prompted by an increase in spending on foodstuffs by Italians who are now advancing toward a level of consumption nearer the level of other Western European countries. Paradoxically, however, since the level remains very low in some areas, dairy farmers have found that the market is unable to absorb their 4 per cent annual increase.

Part of the surplus has been taken up by growth in the manufacture and consumption of chocolate which reflects the current trend to prosperity. Even so, the farm industry is obliged to engage in the universal struggle to increase exports.

This raises many technical problems, of which the development of improved methods of packing and transporting highly perishable foods over long distances and varying climatic conditions are two important examples.

Mcre difficult perhaps is the fact that the average man is by nature conservative in his eating habits and sticks to what he knows and likes.

The American is sold on packaged cheese. The Briton scarcely has recovered from wartime austerity and "national cheddar" — better known as "mouse trap". The Frenchman votes for camembert, the Greek eats pungent goat's milk feta and the Tibetan, no doubt, still goes for rancid butter.

But Italian exporters need not worry overmuch for the country has a wide range of cheeses to suit almost every taste. They range from the softest, most-easily spread varieties used in sandwiches at cocktail parties in Rome to the rough, pungent goat milk cheeses eaten by the humblest farm laborer.

Italian farmers see increased exports as a way out of their difficulties. Their products compare very favorably in price with those of the countries of the European Common Market, at which their first drive will be aimed.

More Colds, Flu Reported In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The arrival of colder weather usually means more colds and flu suffers, and West Virginians are no exceptions.

The State Health Department reported that 349 new flu-like cases were reported last week, 188 from Cabell County. The state's total so far this year now stands at 80,207 compared to 32,342 last year.

The department also reports that only one new polio case was recorded in West Virginia last week, in Hancock County, to bring West Virginia's 1960 total polio count to 59 compared to 187 in 1959.

Honeycomb Paper Decorations Are Ideal For Parties During Christmas Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bees won't tell you, but what's new in honeycomb this Christmas is really honey for the housewife preparing for a party.

Honeycomb is the name for the paper process used in making those old red Christmas bells, which nearly everyone remembers from childhood. Its outstanding characteristic — elasticity — allows it to be pulled back and forth much in the manner of an accordion — and makes it ideal for party decorations.

Whether you're decorating for friends dropping in for eggnog, or a bridge club meeting shortly before Christmas, a handy helper for the Yuletide is a snowman party ensemble complete with invitations, a table centerpiece, plates, cups, place mats, napkins and similar items.

A snowy-white honeycomb snowman with red trimmings sets the mood for the ensemble and the design is carried out in the matching items. Jolly old St. Nicholas also is designed as a centerpiece, from red honeycomb, while a holly designs theme is carried out in an ensemble of snack plates, napkins, table cover, dinner plates, paper cups, aprons and even guest towels.

Honeycomb's versatility makes it easy to style in a variety of designs, many of them circular. There is, for example, a pair of gold-haloed angels styled from white honeycomb that lends a high-fashion air to festive Yule home decorations. Also white is a semi-circular Christmas tree adorned with golden doves and sequins.

Other decorations and designs with Christmas themes — Nativity scenes, a red sleigh card holder, a honeycomb tree base trim, 13-inch green honeycomb Christmas tree, a red Santa door decoration, a 30-inch-tall snowman (he matches the 12-inch-tall table centerpiece), gold foil lanterns, snowflakes, and gold foil door decorations also are new for Christmas this year.

The new decorations serve to give an added touch of festive glow to the table, to the door, or to the mantel.

Land has been acquired off Key Largo in the Atlantic Ocean for Florida's first underwater state park. To be called the Coral Reef Preserve Park, the new attraction will feature coral formations unparalleled anywhere along the North American coast.

'taliano®

There's something basic about bread. Particularly Italian bread.

With all our streamlining we Americans have never made a bread with the earthy goodness of a real Italian loaf. To do it, you have to slow down the clock. And that's what we did with 'taliano—a bread that's actually aged a bit, after mixing, like a fine wine . . . then slow-baked in a hearth.

Try it toasted. Ah, she is so good. So very, very good.

Meat Cookery Quiz

Q. What is the name of this meat cut?

A. Country Club or Rib Eye Steaks.

Q. Where do they come from and how are they identified?

A. Country club steaks are cut from the eye muscle of a blade rib roast of beef (the 6th and 7th ribs). The eye muscle is attached to the backbone and part of the rib section. The steaks are boneless.

Q. How are they prepared?

A. They are tender and may be broiled or panbroiled. If cut thin, they may be panfried.

Culinary Pep-Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — New canned mushroom gravy is ideal for pepping up holiday leftovers such as roast turkey. The meatless heat-and-serve product also is recommended as an all-occasion gravy and cooking ingredient. The 10½-ounce can contains 1¼ cups of gravy, estimated to serve 4 to 5 persons.

Liquid Diet Fad Has Caught On In Big Way

Are New Liquid Diets Safe?

Dr. Philip L. hite, secretary of the American Medical Association Council on Foods and Nutrition, answers the question this way:

"The use of better grade formula weight reduction products under proper conditions is medically sound. However, the careless use of such formula diets is unsound.

"The short-term use of the 900-calorie formulas will not harm the individual who is just a teeny bit overweight.

"However, such persons will achieve more satisfactory long-term results when they develop and maintain good eating habits — then weight maintenance will no longer be a problem."

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hula hoop fad was small potatoes compared to the proportions of the liquid diet fad.

Secretaries are sipping the "900 calorie" drinks at lunch counters, bosses are drinking them in the privacy of the executive suite, mothers are using the stuff for an emergency meal for the kids.

It's even appearing at cocktail parties!

One of the fluid meals reportedly has made it to the menus at the White House.

And the Quaker Oats Co. announced that its "Quota," in chocolate, vanilla and banana flavored powder form, is being test-marketed in the Midwest and soon will go into supermarkets nationally.

You also can buy tin orange, chocolate, vanilla, butterscotch, and even coffee-flavored. For the dieters who want to wander from the regular flavors, there are other ways of dressing up the drinks.

Add Rum Extract

You make it rum flavored by adding imitation rum extract; get a brandy-flavor by adding imitation brady.

Prices on jars and cans of the compounds in the New York area range from 89 cents to $1.59 for a full day's supply. The lowest price is found at a discount house pushing its own brand of "900 calorie" a day powder.

Competition is so hot in the fluid meal field that the nation's first producer — Mead-Johnson Co. — recently cut its price from $1.59 to $1.29.

Use Clinical Reports

The firm brought out Metrecal in September, 1959, beefing up its sales promotion with clinical reports from doctors who had used the stuff in reducing programs.

Some patients had lost nearly a pound a day. Others lost less, but almost all who stuck to the liquid meals lost some weight.

William De Lay, a spokesman for the Indianapolis firm, said production constantly is being expanded to keep pace with demand.

The pioneer producer also was the first to offer ready-mixed liquid diet in a six-can carton — like beer — making it easier for those who want to tote liquid meals to the office or a cocktail party.

The Mead-Johnson firm has no firm hold on the basic formula, De Lay said. As a result, there now are some 40 brands available.

Gives Extra Energy

Leo Bertish, president of the Whelan Drug Co., said his firm is getting best results with a version of the liquid diet powder that combines coffee and chocolate flavoring. The coffee gives the dieter an extra surge of energy.

Bertish said his firm's compound, like the others, is fortified with essentials needed for nutrition. As a result, the body is not robbed of anything during the liquid diet.

But to keep on the safe side, many makers of liquid diet repeatedly point out that physicians should be consulted on how you should work the liquid diet into your reducing program.

Persons who have heart trouble, kidney ailments and other difficulties are urged to see their doctors before trying liquid diets.

Christmas Table Settings

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's both the big and little touches that make Christmas table settings festive.

The traditionalist who favors a lace or Belgian linen dinner cloth in white or eggshell, the translucence of fine china, the gleam of sterling and the shimmer of crystal will seek subtle decorations in keeping with her tastes.

These might include a planter centerpiece that looks like a foot-tall crystal goblet, filled with holly or pine branches, arranged around a chunky red candle.

For those who prefer the look of Christmas greens laid flat on the table, centered with candles, there are crystal candle holders that look like tall, slender wine glasses, smoked at the top, with clear stems. Available in 10, 12, 15½, 18 and 20-inch heights, the wine-glass candle holders can be used in pairs or groups of several heights.

Low candles for the Christmas board look particularly effective glowing inside silvery - finished tumblers, with red or green metallic interiors.

Even treasured antique silver or brass candle holders or candelabras take on the look of the season when they're decked with "holiday candle trimmers." These are brass rings, rimmed with tiny Christmas balls or Christmas candy on spokes. They slip over candles and rest atop the holders.

Christmas centerpieces for less formal tables can be fashioned from punch bowls, apothecary jars, fish bowls or even huge brandy snifters, filled with multicolored glittering ornaments or Christmas scenes, made with dime store figures and cotton snow.

Splashier Christmas finery for informal table settings includes glasses and platters, painted with candles, Christmas trees and bright Santas and bright red coffee mugs.

Christmas tablecloths run the gamut from solid scarlet or green to Santa prints. There are vibrant, overall floral prints in red and green, too, that look particularly good on the round table, and simple white cloths with striped red, green and gold or holly borders, some now available in practical terrycloth.

For the most informal Christmas tables, there are place mats in the traditional colors of the season, and shaped like bells, Santas and Christmas trees.

Melt butter in the pie pan when mixing graham cracker pie. Add the cracker crumbs and mix. This saves washing an extra pan, and you don't waste any butter.

Holiday Mood

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cranberry conserve pie makes any meal seem like a holiday. Put 2 cups of fresh cranberries, and ½ cup each of raisins and walnuts through a food chopper, using the coarse blade. Blend in 1¾ cups of sugar, 1 tablespoon of flour and 1 teaspoon of salt. Mix thi with fruits, 2 cups of chopped fresh apples, and ½ cup of water. Turn into a pastry-lined 9-inch pie pan and cover with a top crust, vented to let steam escape. Bake 10 minutes in a 425-degree oven. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer, or until pie is browned.

Out Of Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strawberry dessert in midwinter is a cinch when you serve strawberry cream. Dissolve one 3-ounce package of lemon-flavored gelatin in 1 cup of hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Combine with one 10-ounce package of frozen sliced strawberries and ¾ cup of heavy cream, in an electric blender and blend until well mixed. Pour into a serving dish and chill until firm. Whip ¼ cup of heavy cream until stiff and use as garnish.

For a delicate onion flavor, add chives to vegetable salads, egg dishes, and cottage cheese.

Lamb Curry On Rice

The ingredients are:

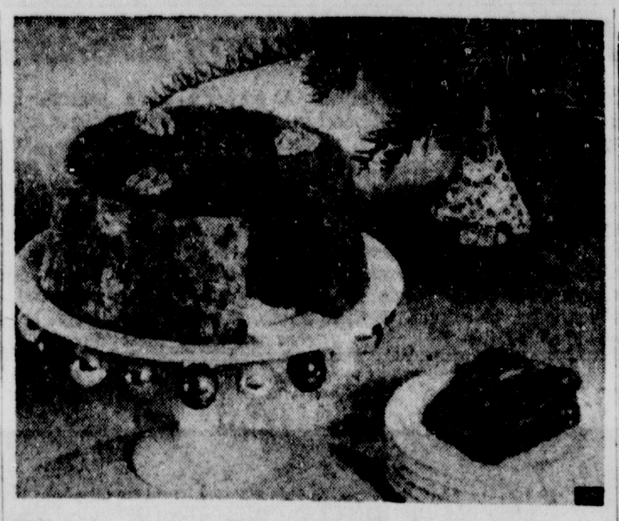
1½ cups quick-cooking rice
1½ lbs. boneless lamb shoulder
2 tbsp. oil or fat
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. paprika
2 medium onions, sliced
1 cup sliced celery
2 cups water
1 tsp. curry powder
¼ cup flower
¼ cup water
½ cup chopped peanuts
¼ cup shredded coconut

Cook rice according to directions on package. Place in a 2-quart casserole or shallow baking dish.

Cut lamb into three-quarter-inch pieces and brown in the hot oil in a skillet. Sprinkle salt, pepper, and paprika over the meat. Add onions, celery, and 2 cups water; cover and simmer slowly 1 hour.

Combine curry powder, flour, and ¼ cup water, and add to mixture in skillet. Cook until thickened; then pour over rice in casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 F) 30 minutes, or until bubbly.

Just before serving, sprinkle peanuts and coconut over tops. Serve hot. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.



Easy No-Bake Fruitcake

Rich, extra-moist and full of flavor, No-Bake Fruitcake has every bit of that old-fashioned goodness, yet is prepared an easy new way . . . without baking! It's made from a base of graham cracker crumbs, marshmallows and fruit juice, blended to elegant perfection with creamy evaporated milk.

Make this festive No-Bake Fruitcake now before the busy holidays begin. It travels well to say "Happy Holiday" to far away friends. It stays fresh and moist in the refrigerator for a month. For longer storage, freeze it!

No-Bake Fruitcake is a holiday treat for the family . . . the season's best greeting for guests. Try it soon.

New No-Bake Fruitcake

⅔ cup evaporated milk
6 cups miniature marshmallows
6 Tablesp. frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted
¾ cup cut-up dates
¾ cup raisins
1 cup broken walnuts
1 cup candied fruit
¼ cup candied red cherries
4 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 teasp. cinnamon
1 teasp. nutmeg
½ teasp. cloves

Cook and stir evaporated milk, marshmallows and orange juice concentrate in a 3-quart saucepan over medium heat until marshmallows melt. Take off heat and stir in until well blended dates, raisins, walnuts, candied fruit, candied red crerries and a mixture of graham cracker crumbs, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. Press mixture firmly into a 5 or 6 cup ring mold or 1½-quart loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Cover fruitcake tightly and chill 2 days before serving. Makes 3 lbs.

NOTE: To make large No-Bake Fruitcake double the recipe and press mixture into 9-inch angel cake pan. Makes 6 lbs.

Offbeat Kitchenwares Are Nice Christmas Gifts

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) You can satisfy a yen to grow your own mushrooms indoors this Christmas, courtesy of a mail order kit. All you need to go with the kit are a cellar and patience. Thirty days are required for the kit—with soil and plastic, cover—to produce a crop.

Such off-beat gifts are as common in today's mail order catalogs as wood-burning kitchen ranges were in Grandpa's time.

A New England firm (Breck's of Boston) offering the mushroom kit also sells:

A combination lemon squeezer, nutcracker and olive and cherry pitter that looks like a garlic press and presumably can perform all three services simultaneously; a white porcelain teapot with built-in music box; the tune, naturally, is "Tea for Two," but the pot capacity is 4 to 6 cups.

Spikes Hold Food

A styrene cutting board with hardwood cutting surface and a magnet that holds both metallic and non - metallic surfaces; a heavy aluminum carving plate with one major advantage over conventional well-and-tree platters —spikes in the plate's surface hold food firmly while the carver performs his slippery duty.

Finicky steak eaters who carry their personal pocket steak knife can buy a pocket knife sharpener, a 4-inch steel hone in a leather case. The knife itself is available from a well-known New York housewares store (Hammacher Schlemmer,) which also sells a pocket pepper mill.

This firm's catalog also lists a pair of battery-operated carving knives for men who find carving the holiday bird or roast hard work; an electric fish scaler; an electric silver polisher; a battery-powered swizzler for topers too lazy to stir their own drinks; and a cocktail or wine dispenser resembling an upside-down chemical flask.

Has Butter Curlers

Another New York housewares store (Bazar Francais) has butter curlers; a green bean slicer shaped like a pencil sharpener; strainer-shaped bird's nest fryers for making nests and potato baskets; and three types of equipment to convert European weights to American measurements — a measuring glass, a conventional balance scale with gram weights, and a spoon-shaped balance scale for small quantities.

From a midwestern mail order house, (Miles Kimball, Oshkosh, Wis.), you can order wicker bread baskets with zippered cloth covers to keep the contents warm; a 2½-foot long appliance cord for standard coffeemakers and frypans; candle holders with side stakes to fasten to the sides of cakes; a cup-shaped aluminum butter and chocolate melter that clips onto saucepans to work like a double boiler; a metal device to float on soups and stews to draw off excess fat; and a quadruple-duty ceramic gadget that is a spoon rest, ladle, ashtray and recipe card holder.

Damp clothes which cannot be ironed immediately should be stashed in the refrigerator to prevent mildew.

21-Year-Old Man Held At Philippi In Dual Shooting

PHILIPPI, W. Va. (UPI)—Barbour County authorities Thursday captured Dorsey Poling, 21, of nearby Sand Run, wanted in connection with a double shooting Monday night. He was arrested at nearby Meadowville.

Deputy Sheriff Claude Boyles said Poling admitted firing three shots at Josephine Upton of Rt. 2, Philippi, Monday night as she ran from his car over to another driven by Glenn Sandy, Mt. Clare, Harrison County. Boyles said Poling also admitted firing two shots at Sandy. Both were wounded but not critically.

Boyles, who said authorities failed to find the .38 caliber pistol with which the two were wounded, said Poling probably would be given a hearing Friday.

Lonaconing Temple Honors Oldest Members

Mrs. Bessie Barclay, Mrs. Margaret Gardner and Miss Reta Jones, were honored by Morning Star Temple No. 1, Pythian Sisters at Lonaconing Monday on the sixtieth anniversary of the temple. Mrs. Barclay is a charter member and was presented a 60-year membership certificate and other gifts. The other two members received recognition for 54 years membership. The only other living charter member besides Mrs. Barclay is Mrs. Margaret McFarland who is confined with illness. Members visited her Sunday and presented awards. Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher who died August 19, 1960, also a charter member was honored with a memorial gift. Mrs. Nellie Miller, supreme representative made the presentations.

Memory Failure Leads Rinard To Jail Term

MOOREFIELD — Carol Rinard, 18, of Wardensville, who had been convicted of hunting deer at night with a spotlight, appeared before Judge H. Gus Muntzing and requested that part of the sentence imposed upon him by Justice of the Peace Maurice Bell, of Wardensville, be changed.

Bell had fined him $100 and costs and sentenced him to 60 days in jail.

Upon recommendation of Bell, and Lewis S. Moomau, Hardy County prosecuting attorney, the youth was placed on probation because he is a student in high school.

He was placed on two years probation by Muntzing, and he must pay the fine, attend school and make passing grades, but he must spend four weeks in jail due to his "refusal and failure of memory" in not naming a companion who was with him when the incident occurred.

If the youth recalls the name of his accomplice, the jail sentence will be suspended.

Rehearsal Tuesday

Apple-Hamburger Balls

Keep it simple but have it fun . . . that's the magic for your main hot buffet dish. These Apple-Hamburger Balls in Pastry are an example.

A tray load of them set out buffet fashion look like fun to eat . . . and most decidedly are. There are good seasonings in those meat balls and tangy canned apple sauce for even more zest.

You can make the meat balls hours ahead of your party, even the day before, tuck them into their pastry jackets and store them in the refrigerator to be brought out and baked in relays as needed. Result . . . to the great pleasure of guests, platter after platter arrives bearing fresh hot meat balls wrapped in tender pastry. Then in the serving, each one is spooned with mushroom gravy. All of which tastes so good, it's a big hurrah all round.

Baffled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Freshman cooks baffled by culinary terminology include an interior decorator friend of Elaine Ross, a food expert and author.

Mrs. Ross reports that a recipe for browning meat elicited this inquiry: "When you say brown, do you mean maple, walnut or mahogany?"

How To Make Unusual Favors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Miniature candles that float on "clouds" make distinctive table favors for holiday guests, and they're as easy to prepare as a packaged pie.

Combine two or three cups of soap flakes or detergent with a little water. Beat with a hand or electric mixer until the suds have the consistency of meringue. Drop a tablespoon of suds on waxed paper, foil or cookie sheet, and imbed a three-inch candle in the center. Sprinkle each cloud with gold or silver glitter. If place cards are needed, insert one in front of each candle.

Let the clouds dry at least a day, then lift them carefully from the paper with a spatula and put on the table.

The best way to preserve paint brushes when not in use is to hang them in raw linseed oil in covered containers. Support them from the top so that bristles are covered by the oil yet do not touch the bottom of the can.

There's now a medical reason for tossing rice at weddings. Apparently, according to science reports, it's good for longevity. The news reports maintain that rice has a beneficial place in diets of persons suffering from high blood pressure, heart, kidney and eye diseases, diabetes and hardening of the arteries.

The Department of Commerce estimates that there will be 114 million motor vehicles on the highways by 1976. There are some 70 million registered now.

Italy Pushing Exports Of Its Famous Cheeses

ROME (UPI) — The odor of a fat green - streaked cheese from the little village of Gorgonzola, Italy, excites controversy wherever the wind carries it.

Many gourmets throughout the world will walk miles for a taste of piquant, sour-sweet gorgonzola. But rumor has it that romances have foundered and marriages broken over its unmistakable aroma

Gorgonzola, however, is only one of the many exciting cheeses that Italy plans to promote on the world market in a bid to overcome a glut of milk at home.

Dairy breeding has boomed in recent years and the milk yield accordingly risen to an annual production of some 10 billion quarts.

This rise was prompted by an increase in spending on foodstuffs by Italians who are now advancing toward a level of consumption nearer the level of other Western European countries. Paradoxically, however, since the level remains very low in some areas, dairy farmers have found that the market is unable to absorb their 4 per cent annual increase.

Part of the surplus has been taken up by growth in the manufacture and consumption of chocolate which reflects the current trend to prosperity. Even so, the farm industry is obliged to engage in the universal struggle to increase exports.

This raises many technical problems, of which the development of improved methods of packing and transporting highly perishable foods over long distances and varying climatic conditions are two important examples.

More difficult perhaps is the fact that the average man is by nature conservative in his eating habits and sticks to what he knows and likes.

The American is sold on packaged cheese. The Briton scarcely has recovered from wartime austerity and "national cheddar" — better known as "mouse trap". The Frenchman votes for camembert, the Greek eats pungent goat's milk feta and the Tibetan, no doubt, still goes for rancid butter.

But Italian exporters need not worry overmuch for the country has a wide range of cheeses to suit almost every taste. They range from the softest, most-easily spread varieties used in sandwiches at cocktail parties in Rome to the rough, pungent goat milk cheeses eaten by the humblest farm laborer.

Italian farmers see increased exports as a way out of their difficulties. Their products compare very favorably in price with those of the countries of the European Common Market, at which their first drive will be aimed.

Barton Girl Is Selected VHS Co-Ed Correspondent

MISS ANN R. LAMBERSON

LONACONING — Miss Ann Roberts Lamberson, daughter of Mrs. Betty Lamberson, Barton, is named "Co-Ed correspondent" by Mrs. JoAnn K. Dawson, Valley High School Junior High Home Economics department. This is the first time "Co-Ed" magazine has assigned correspondents from high schools.

This new program, to give recognition to Home Economics students, is announced by Co-Ed. Mrs. Dawson was invited to select a student to serve as local correspondent.

Miss Lamberson will be a junior editorial advisor and will write articles on student activities in home economics. She will be completing questionnaires twice-a-semester and will make suggestions for continued improvement of the magazine for girls.

A special card and pin will be presented to Valley High School's correspondent. She will receive news bulletins for class room discussion on 'teens trends and new products.

She was chosen for her enthusiasm for home economics and her qualities of leadership. She is an eighth grade scholastic honor student and is a member of the Future Homemakers of America Club.

Football Banquet Poorly Attended

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — The 33rd annual Moorefield High School football banquet was held at Hotel McNeill Tuesday night. Due to the illness of coach George Hott and the Junior Class play held the same evening the attendance was the smallest in years.

Hosts for the banquet were M. A. Bean Motor Company, W. C. Harper, T. J. Hawse and the Moorefield Examiner. Guests included County Superintendent Stanley Hawse, Principal John A. Mathias, and assistant coach Jimmy Vance. Short talks were made by the hosts and guests and Ronnie Crites responded for the football squad.

Mt. Savage Homemakers Complete Band Project

MT. SAVAGE—The Band Parents and Boosters Club of Mt. Savage School met recently. Earl Boyce, president, presided.

A letter was read from the Mt. Savage Homemakers Club in which they stated they had completed an eight-year project of supplying instruments to the school band. A total of $1,025.61 was spent for this project. A vote of thanks was extended to the Homemakers for their assistance.

Plans were made to sell hotdogs, candy and popcorn at the school basketball games. A Christmas party for band members is planned for December 12 at 7:30 p.m. The three bands will play at this affair and all band parents are invited to attend. Parents will be contacted for donations of candy or cookies.

Q. What is the name of this meat cut?
A. Country Club or Rib Eye Steaks.
Q. Where do they come from and how are they identified?
A. Country club steaks are cut from the eye muscle of a blade rib roast of beef (the 6th and 7th ribs). The eye muscle is attached to the backbone and part of the rib section. The steaks are boneless.
Q. How are they prepared?
A. They are tender and may be broiled or panbroiled. If cut thin, they may be panfried.

Culinary Pep-Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — New canned mushroom gravy is ideal for pepping up holiday leftovers such as roast turkey. The meatless heat-and-serve product also is recommended as an all-occasion gravy and cooking ingredient. The 10½-ounce can contains 1¼ cups of gravy, estimated to serve 4 to 5 persons.

Liquid Diet Fad Has Caught On In Big Way

Are New Liquid Diets Safe?

Dr. Philip L. hite, secretary of the American Medical Association Council on Foods and Nutrition, answers the question this way:

"The use of better grade formula weight reduction products under proper conditions is medically sound. However, the careless use of such formula diets is unsound.

"The short-term use of the 900-calorie formulas will not harm the individual who is just a teeny bit overweight.

"However, such persons will achieve more satisfactory long-term results when they develop and maintain good eating habits — then weight maintenance will no longer be a problem."

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hula hoop fad was small potatoes compared to the proportions of the liquid diet fad.

Secretaries are sipping the "900 calorie" drinks at lunch counters, bosses are drinking them in the privacy of the executive suite, mothers are using the stuff for an emergency meal for the kids.

It's even appearing at cocktail parties!

One of the fluid meals reportedly has made it to the menus at the White House.

And the Quaker Oats Co. announced that its "Quota," in chocolate, vanilla and banana flavored powder form, is being test-marketed in the Midwest and soon will go into supermarkets nationally.

You also can buy tin orange, chocolate, vanilla, butterscotch, and even coffee-flavored. For the dieters who want to wander from the regular flavors, there are other ways of dressing up the drinks.

Add Rum Extract

You make it rum flavored by adding imitation rum extract; get a brandy-flavor by adding imitation brady.

Prices on jars and cans of the compounds in the New York area range from 89 cents to $1.59 for a full day's supply. The lowest price is found at a discount house pushing its own brand of "900 calorie" a day powder.

Competition is so hot in the fluid meal field that the nation's first producer — Mead-Johnson Co. — recently cut its price from $1.59 to $1.29.

Use Clinical Reports

The firm brought out Metrecal in September, 1959, beefing up its sales promotion with clinical reports from doctors who had used the stuff in reducing programs.

Some patients had lost nearly a pound a day. Others lost less, but almost all who stuck to the liquid meals lost some weight.

William De Lay, a spokesman for the Indianapolis firm, said production constantly is being expanded to keep pace with demand.

The pioneer producer also was the first to offer ready-mixed liquid diet in a six-can carton — like beer — making it easier for those who want to tote liquid meals to the office or a cocktail party.

The Mead-Johnson firm has no firm hold on the basic formula, De Lay said. As a result, there now are some 40 brands available.

Gives Extra Energy

Leo Bertish, president of the Whelan Drug Co., said his firm is getting best results with a version of the liquid diet powder that combines coffee and chocolate flavoring. The coffee gives the dieter an extra surge of energy.

Bertish said his firm's compound, like the others, is fortified with essentials needed for nutrition. As a result, the body is not robbed of anything during the liquid diet.

But to keep on the safe side, many makers of liquid diet repeatedly point out that physicians should be consulted on how you should work the liquid diet into your reducing program.

Persons who have heart trouble, kidney ailments and other difficulties are urged to see their doctors before trying liquid diets.

Christmas Table Settings

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's both the big and little touches that make Christmas table settings festive.

The traditionalist who favors a lace or Belgian linen dinner cloth in white or eggshell, the translucence of fine china, the gleam of sterling and the shimmer of crystal will seek subtle decorations in keeping with her tastes.

These might include a planter centerpiece that looks like a foot-tall crystal goblet, filled with holly or pine branches, arranged around a chunky red candle.

For those who prefer the look of Christmas greens laid flat on the table, centered with candles, there are crystal candle holders that look like tall, slender wine glasses, smoked at the top, with clear stems. Available in 10, 12, 15½, 18 and 20-inch heights, the wine-glass candle holders can be used in pairs or groups of several heights.

Low candles for the Christmas board look particularly effective glowing inside silvery - finished tumblers, with red or green metallic interiors.

Even treasured antique silver or brass candle holders or candelabras take on the look of the season when they're decked with "holiday candle trimmers." These are brass rings, rimmed with tiny Christmas balls or Christmas candy on spokes. They slip over candles and rest atop the holders.

Christmas centerpieces for less formal tables can be fashioned from punch bowls, apothecary jars, fish bowls or even huge brandy snifters, filled with multicolored glittering ornaments or Christmas scenes, made with dime store figures and cotton snow.

Splashier Christmas finery for informal table settings includes glasses and platters, painted with candles, Christmas trees and bright Santas and bright red coffee mugs.

Christmas tablecloths run the gamut from solid scarlet or green to Santa prints. There are vibrant, overall floral prints in red and green, too, that look particularly good on the round table, and simple white cloths with striped red, green and gold or holly borders, some now available in practical terrycloth.

For the most informal Christmas tables, there are place mats in the traditional colors of the season, and shaped like bells, Santas and Christmas trees.

Melt butter in the pie pan when mixing graham cracker pie. Add the cracker crumbs and mix. This saves washing an extra pan, and you don't waste any butter.

Holiday Mood

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cranberry conserve pie makes any meal seem like a holiday. Put 2 cups of fresh cranberries, and ½ cup each of raisins and walnuts through a food chopper, using the coarse blade. Blend in 1¾ cups of sugar, 1 tablespoon of flour and 1 teaspoon of salt. Mix this with fruits, 2 cups of chopped fresh apples, and ½ cup of water. Turn into a pastry-lined 9-inch pie pan and cover with a top crust, vented to let steam escape. Bake 10 minutes in a 425-degree oven. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer, or until pie is browned.

Out Of Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strawberry dessert in midwinter is a cinch when you serve strawberry cream. Dissolve one 3-ounce package of lemon-flavored gelatin in 1 cup of hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Combine with one 10-ounce package of frozen sliced strawberries and ¾ cup of heavy cream, in an electric blender and blend until well mixed. Pour into a serving dish and chill until firm. Whip ¼ cup of heavy cream until stiff and use as garnish.

For a delicate onion flavor, add chives to vegetable salads, egg dishes, and cottage cheese.

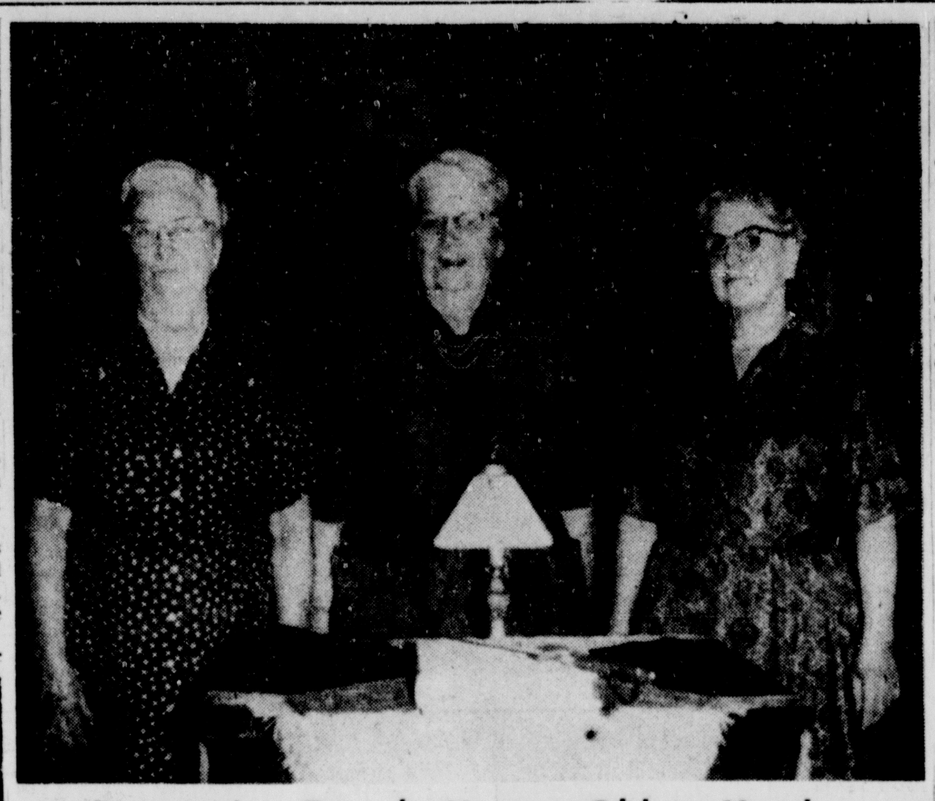
21-Year-Old Man Held At Philippi In Dual Shooting

PHILIPPI, W. Va. (UPI)—Barbour County authorities Thursday captured Dorsey Poling, 21, of nearby Sand Run, wanted in connection with a double shooting Monday night. He was arrested at nearby Meadowville.

Deputy Sheriff Claude Boyles said Poling admitted firing three shots at Josephine Upton of Rt. 2, Philippi, Monday night as she ran from his car over to another driven by Glenn Sandy, Mt. Clare, Harrison County. Boyles said Poling also admitted firing two shots at Sandy. Both were wounded but not critically.

Boyles, who said authorities failed to find the .38 caliber pistol with which the two were wounded, said Poling probably would be given a hearing Friday.



Lonaconing Temple Honors Oldest Members

Mrs. Bessie Barclay, Mrs. Margaret Gardner and Miss Reta Jones, were honored by Morning Star Temple No. 1, Pythian Sisters at Lonaconing Monday on the sixtieth anniversary of the temple. Mrs. Barclay is a charter member and was presented a 60-year membership certificate and other gifts. The other two members received recognition for 54 years membership. The only other living charter member besides Mrs. Barclay is Mrs. Margaret McFarland who is confined with illness. Members visited her Sunday and presented awards. Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher who died August 19, 1960, also a charter member was honored with a memorial gift. Mrs. Nellie Miller, supreme representative made the presentations.

Memory Failure Leads Rinard To Jail Term

MOOREFIELD — Carol Rinard, 18, of Wardensville, who had been convicted of hunting deer at night with a spotlight, appeared before Judge H. Gus Muntzing and requested that part of the sentence imposed upon him by Justice of the Peace Maurice Bell, of Wardensville, be changed.

Bell had fined him $100 and costs and sentenced him to 60 days in jail.

Upon recommendation of Bell, and Lewis S. Moomau, Hardy County prosecuting attorney, the youth was placed on probation because he is a student in high school.

He was placed on two years probation by Muntzing, and he must pay the fine, attend school and make passing grades, but he must spend four weeks in jail due to his "refusal and failure of memory" in not naming a companion who was with him when the incident occurred.

If the youth recalls the name of his accomplice, the jail sentence will be suspended.

Rehearsal Tuesday

Tuohy Backs N&W Move

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Walter J. Tuohy, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, went on record Thursday favoring Norfolk & Western's proposal to consolidate with three other lines.

"This proposal is a constructive and natural step in the unification of eastern railroads," Tuohy said.

Tuohy, whose own line is attempting to negotiate a merger with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, commented after N&W announced a proposal to merge with the Nickel Plate and Sandusky line and lease and eventually merge with the Wabash line.

Tuohy said the N&W announcement should be given "thoughtful attention by those interested in the Baltimore & Ohio's future, primarily the stockholders, who will determine in the next two weeks whether the benefits of B&O-C&O area to be achieved."

PLACEMENTS CLIMB

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Broilers chick placements in West Virginia last week totaled 335,000. This was 14 per cent above the previous week but still considerably below last year's level, the Federal State Crop Reporting Service said Thursday.

Many Truck Faults Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission said Thursday a significant number of trucks using the high speed Pennsylvania Turnpike are not maintained in road-worthy condition, and some are dangerously defective.

The commission made public the results of a spot safety road check on interstate motor freight carriers carried out for three days Oct. 30-Nov. 1 at five locations on the turnpike.

The checks, carried out with the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, did not involve flagging down vehicles. It was confined to sample inspection during routine stops at pull-ins and gas stations.

For this reason, the ICC did not attempt to determine percentages of deficient trucks in relation to total traffic. It noted, however, that among 1,157 vehicles examined, 213 were found to have defects, the most common of which were in the braking systems.

Electricity is found on more than three-fourths of all U. S. farms.

Death Separates Invalid And His Devoted Wife

DETROIT (AP)—An 85-year-old invalid lived for two years in a burned-out home guarded by his wife.

Rudolf F. Karschnik died Wednesday while being taken to a hospital. He had been unconscious for three days. He was on a bed covered with quilts and wore a stocking cap for warmth.

His wife, Lillian, 81, refused to leave him even when she received a telegram from a Detroit hospital asking her to make burial arrangements for her only brother who died Tuesday.

"My duty is with the living," Mrs. Karschnick said.

The couple lived in three rooms of the 12-room house that cost $30,000 when they bought it 30 years ago. The rooms in which they lived were barely warmed by a portable electric heater and the oven of a gas stove.

They used to rent the upper floor of the house as a flat to help meet expenses, but fire destroyed that part of the house and they had no money to repair it. The burned section is open to the snow and frigid winds moan among the skeleton beams and charred roof.

Mrs. Karschnick said her husband had been an invalid for two years. She said she had no children and no close relatives. She added that they lived on Social Security payments.

Adjutant General Attends Convention

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Adj. Gen. William Blake left late Thursday to attend a three-day meeting of the Adjutant Generals Association, opening Friday at Washington.

Blake, who will be accompanied by his assistant, Lt. Col. William Miller, said several "major decisions" will be made at the meeting, including some that will effect the West Virginia National Guard.

Miller is considered to be at the forefront of those persons from whom a new adjutant general will be chosen by governor-elect W. W. Barron. Blake pointed out that the "decisions" made at the conference will carry over into the Bararon administration.

Next Thursday, Blake also will attend a 2nd Army conference at Ft. George G. Meade, near Washington, at which National Guard 1961 field training dates will be determined.

Fraud Trial Ends With Hung Jury

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — A Logan County Circuit Court jury of 11 men and one woman failed to agree on a verdict Thursday in the election fraud trial of Grady Jackson.

Special Judge Stanley Bosworth dismissed the panel after being informed there was no possibility of reaching a verdict. Bosworth was told the panel was split 9-3 in favor of conviction.

Jackson had been charged with illegally casting ballots on a voting machine in the Verdunville precinct in the May 10 primary election. The prosecution attempted to show that he would go into the voting booth with voters and cast a ballot while explaining operation of the machine to the voter.

Immediately following dismissal of the Jackson trial jury, a new panel was picked and another election fraud trial begun. On trial is Floyd Dingess charged with electioneering inside a polling place.

The only witness to testify before court adjourned Thursday was Lester Perry who reported when he went into the voting booth the machine was stuck and he asked Dingess for help. Perry claimed that Dingess attempted to influence him to vote for Okey Justice for sheriff at the time.

But Perry also admitted under questioning that on Wednesday he met Dingess in the court house here and told him he did not make such a charge. The trial continues Friday.

Tickets Available For 'Angel Street'

Tickets are on sale in the school office for the Fort Hill Players production of "Angel Street" to be presented in the Fort Hill auditorium December 9 at 8:15 p.m.

The three-act Victorian thriller was first produced in London under the title "Gas Light." In New York, the play performed as "Angel Street," starred such Broadway greats as Judith Evelyn, Vincent Price, and Leo S. Carroll. Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, and Joseph Cotton starred in the movie version.

Appearing in the Fort Hill presentation are Carol Murray, Linda Miller, Linda Highland, George Smith and William Seiler, all senior members of the Players. Miss Helen Smith is directing the production.

The dingo, or wild dog, of Australia approximates a large police dog in size. Dingos hunt in small packs and have become pests of considerable importance since the introduction of sheep into Australia.

171 Get Licenses For Marriage During November

Issuance of 171 more marriage licenses during November in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, sent to 2,174 the number issued in the first 11 months of 1960 but still 213 shy of the 2,387 obtained during the corresponding period a year ago.

The 171 issued last month were 6.6 per cent fewer than the 183 obtained in November 1959. The 11-month total is running 8.9 per cent behind the level of last year.

During all of 1959 there were 2,569 marriage licenses issued at the Court House. With only one month to go it appears impossible for 1960 to match the marriage license rate of last year. It would take 395 in December to match the 1959 total and the peak month this year was June, when only 268 were obtained.

June, September and October are the only months in 1960 in which more marriage licenses have been issued than a year ago.

The monthly totals, with 1959 listed first and 1960 second in each case:

January—180 and 151; February—201 and 149; March—189 and 159; April—215 and 175; May—198 and 197; June—266 and 268; July—294 and 232; August—264 and 250; September—206 and 217; October—191 and 205; November—183 and 171.

Older Hunters Take To Woods

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It looks like West Virginia's "senior hunters" are taking advantage of a new law which provides that persons 65 or over do not have to buy a hunting license.

The Conservation Commission said Thursday that as a result of the law which became effective this year, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of older hunters this week during deer season.

The commission said there was a particularly large turnout of older nimrods this week in the Buckhannon area.

Improvements For Airport Approved

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI)—A contract for $868,715 worth of improvements at Benedum Airport near Bridgeport will be signed Monday, according to Andrew L. Henry, Fairmont, secretary of the Benedum Airport Authority.

He said the Federal Aviation Agency has given final approval to the plans and the federal government will foot half the cost. Marion and Harrison Counties, which have agreed to share joint responsibility for the airport under the new Airport Authority, will pay the other half.

Maine was named for Maine, an ancient French province.

Forest Funds Distributed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state auditor's office Thursday announced receipt of $175,791 in national forest funds for distribution to the State Road Commission and county boards of education in which the Monongahela National Forest is located.

The money represents collection on certain license sales, etc., of those making use of the forest lands which consist of 903,908 acres.

Eighty per cent of the state's allocation, or $140,633, goes to the boards of education in 11 counties in which the forests is located, while the SRC gets the rest. All of the money must be used for the benefit of the counties involved.

Pocahontas County received the largest amount, $58,840, followed by Randolph with $36,202, Greenbrier $21,013, Tucker $19,744, Pendleton $15,025, Webster $13,741, Nicholas $4,977, Grant $3,000, Hardy $2,294, Preston $826 and Hampshire 125.

W.Va. Economy Closing Its Second-Best Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Chamber of Commerce said Thursday this still will be the state's second - best year economically despite a business drop during October.

"Except for an expected seasonal upturn in retail sales, the economy in October settled on the plateau it reached last spring," the report said.

However the chamber said, "barring a major upset" which it doesn't foresee, November and December business records should show an improvement.

Increases were recorded during the first 10 months of the year in 14 of the 20 categories of business gauged by the chamber.

In October, however, declines occurred in 11 of the divisions from September, and there also were 11 declines from October, 1959. The categories were different in many instances in the over-the-month and over-the-year declines.

Categories showing increases over last year's 10-month period included overall payrolls, miners' pay, manufacturing workers' pay, coal, oil and lumber production, value of manufactured products, rail carloadings, gross sales, consumer sales and gas tax collections.

Natural gas and power production, retail sales, farm income and value of building permits issued were among categories showing declines from last year.

Barton Girl Is Selected VHS Co-Ed Correspondent

MISS ANN R. LAMBERSON

LONACONING — Miss Ann Roberts Lamberson, daughter of Mrs. Betty Lamberson, Barton, is named "Co-Ed correspondent" by Mrs. JoAnn K. Dawson, Valley High School Junior High Home Economics department. This is the first time "Co-Ed" magazine has assigned correspondents from high schools.

This new program, to give recognition to Home Economics students, is announced by Co-Ed. Mrs. Dawson was invited to select a student to serve as local correspondent.

Miss Lamberson will be a junior editorial advisor and will write articles on student activities in home economics. She will be completing questionnaires twice-a-semester and will make suggestions for continued improvement of the magazine for girls.

A special card and pin will be presented to Valley High School's correspondent. She will receive news bulletins for class room discussion on 'teens trends and new products.

She was chosen for her enthusiasm for home economics and her qualities of leadership. She is an eighth grade scholastic honor student and is a member of the Future Homemakers of America Club.

Cast Of Beall High Senior Play In Tournament

Football Banquet Poorly Attended

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — The 33rd annual Moorefield High School football banquet was held at Hotel McNeill Tuesday night. Due to the illness of coach George Hott and the Junior Class play held the same evening the attendance was the smallest in years.

Hosts for the banquet were M. A. Bean Motor Company, W. C. Harper, T. J. Hawse and the Moorefield Examiner. Guests included County Superintendent Stanley Hawse, Principal John A. Mathias, and assistant coach Jimmy Vance. Short talks were made by the hosts and guests and Ronnie Crites responded for the football squad.

Mt. Savage Homemakers Complete Band Project

MT. SAVAGE—The Band Parents and Boosters Club of Mt. Savage School met recently. Earl Boyce, president, presided.

A letter was read from the Mt. Savage Homemakers Club in which they stated they had completed an eight-year project of supplying instruments to the school band. A total of $1,025.61 was spent for this project. A vote of thanks was extended to the Homemakers for their assistance.

Plans were made to sell hotdogs, candy and popcorn at the school basketball games. A Christmas party for band members is planned for December 12 at 7:30 p.m. The three bands will play at this affair and all band parents are invited to attend. Parents will be contacted for donations of candy or cookies.

VICTIM OF TEAR GAS IN CARACAS—Overcome by tear gas as police moved against rioters in Caracas, Venezuela, an unconscious woman is carried to an emergency aid center by a police lieutenant. Seeking the cause of wild street rioting in which eight persons were killed and 200 others wounded in four days, government authorities siezed arms, documents and propaganda material in a series of raids on Communist and leftist centers.

Signboard Artist Says Horses Hardest To Draw

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)— Hans Drude is one artist who never steps back to admire his work. If he did, he'd break his neck.

He usually has to go across the street or up to the next block to get any kind of perspective on his efforts. Even then, fog or drizzle can hamper his vision.

Drude is a Times Square signboard artist, . rooftop Rembrandt who works in oils—by the bucketful.

His creative milieu takes him into a garish nightmare world that would trouble the sleep of a Salvador Dali. Eyeballs five feet in diameter. Ear lobes two feet tall. Horses the size of whales, and whales the size of skating rinks. Neckline cleavages broad enough for the men to work on adjoining scaffols and not meet each other until lunchtime.

As chief portrait artist for Artkraft Strauss, one of the country's leading outdoor advertising firms, Drude is responsible for most of the block-long signs in the theater district. His spectaculars, as they are called in the trade, decorate the building fronts of all of Broadway's first-run movie houses and hawk a variety of products from plays and movies to whisky and cleansing tissues.

On a windy day, Drude frequently finds himself three to four feet away from his work, swaying to and fro on a scaffold five to 10 floors above the street. Pigeons give him more trouble than passersby, but sometimes cops can be more trouble than either.

Drude had no sooner finished putting the final four-inch-wide brush strokes on "The Naked Maja," whose unfettered pelt stretched languourously along Broadway from 45th to 46th streets, than a howl went up from the outraged custodians of public morals.

"Get up there and put some clothes on that dame," a cop ordered as Drude showed up for work next morning. It took him the better part of the day to fashion a filmy covering for the reclining nymph, all six floors of her.

Drude, who learned his art in Hamburg, Germany, and has been in this country four years, can't understand the American attitude toward bare billboard beauties. "Back home you see more outside a theater than you see inside. Brigitte Bardot's architecture is better known than city hall's."

In Germany most display advertising is prepared in a studio and then hung up in sections. In America almost all signs are painted directly on to the billboards and frequently right on the side of the building itself.

One big exception are the 15-foot-high portraits of Jean Simmons, Laurence Olivier, Charles Laughton, Kirk Douglas and Tony Curtis that Drude painted for the world premiere of the movie "Spartacus." These were done on glass at the Artkraft Strauss studios and now occupy two walls of the DeMille theater. Lighted from behind, this monstrous electrical display runs half a block in each direction around a corner and stands nine stories high.

Projection, of course, is everything in signboard art. one square inch of the working model equals anywhere from three to four square feet of signboard, a scale of as much as 48-1. Drude is usually given a 3x4-inch picture of the star or product to be advertised, and then takes it from there.

In addition to tidying up facial shadows in the photographs, Drude often has to fatten up female stars, even those famous for their prodigious facades. "We add a couple of calories here and there to give them that little extra something," the artist explained modestly.

Although Drude has done mammoth portraits of John Wayne, Spencer Tracy, Clark Gable, Doris Day and most of Hollywood's great stars, he has never met any of his subjects face to face. But he can't say the same for horses.

"Horses are much harder to draw than people," he admitted. "I always have to go out in the country and look at them. Working from a picture isn't enough. There's so much expression to be captured."

W. Va. Civil War Group Meets Today

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The West Virginia Centennial Commission will meet Friday at Wheeling.

The commission will exchange ideas with those planning civil war centennial events in Ohio County for next year.

One of the first battles of the Civil War was fought at Philippi, Barbour County, and various events commerating the war will be held in various other states as well as West Virginia.

The centennial commission is planning for West Virginia's 100th birthday in 1963.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Are You The Boss—Or Just Plain Bossy?

At just about the same moment she accepts adult responsibilities, a woman does have to learn to crack the whip with some skill. There is a certain amount of executive ability latent in her that she simply must develop, just to survive in an adult world. It goes without saying that command posts at home or in business life demand even more of her innate talents for control, for organization and planning.

At this precise point begins the fine line that draws the difference between the boss — and the bossy. It's so easy to cross that line, without realizing you are overstepping your bounds . . . and stepping all over your charm at the same time.

Some women just naturally have the makings of a four-star general. They thrive on taking hold of "situations" and directing every detail with passionate care. They are the born managers and the world would certainly limp without them. But, even limping, it wouldn't stop turning. It hasn't yet, not even for history's would-be dictators.

A born manager is ambitious. She has drive enough for everybody. She says she wants her family, her students, her employees to find independence and eventual fulfillment. But can they . . . unless this rising tyrant loves them enough to bottle her desire for their lives for them, to make all their decisions?

There is no excuse for overbearing bossiness. There is a way of achieving high standards without sacrificing people. A gentle approach, a friendly tone of voice, a compliment of encouragement accomplish far more than a strident bellow and a know-it-all manner of fault-flaunting superiority.

What kind of boss are you — around your husband and children . . . at the office . . . among your neighbors, friends and relatives . . . on a committee? Are you apt to confer and share suggestions? Do you teach and guide . . . or do you try to take over! Must everything be done your way? Can you delegate authority or responsibility to someone else without immediately stepping in and running interference for him? Do you turn sulky when people refuse to dance to your tune?

How many times this past week have you heard yourself claim, "I TOLD you so!"—on that certain delicious note of triumph?

Watch it, lady. Change your steamroller tactics . . or, at least, learn where the brake is located. How can you be happy when obedience is blind with fear, deafened by resentment, mute with indifference?

Please, spare yourself the lonely fate that awaits the "indispensable" woman who does everything herself just to make sure it's done right, the officious overseer who grows old worrying over the weakness of dependent children who won't grow up and a henpecked husband who has lost his gumption.

W. Va. Deer Kill Below Last Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Conservation Commission said Thursday this year's West Virginia's deer kill apparently will fall well below the pre-season estimate of 19,500.

A spokesman said that a sampling of 10 per cent of the checking stations in four of the five conservation districts indicated that the kill for the first three days of the season was probably just under 11,000.

The commission said the hunting "pressure" was off by one-half to one-third in some areas compared with the past few years but that this might be partially attributed to a "better distribution" of hunters around the state.

With hunting more limited in the final three days of the season through Saturday, the commission said the Monday-through-Wednesday kill would account for the bulk of the total kill.

In ancient Greece, small pieces of bread were used in place of napkins. They were disposed of by throwing them on the floor for the dogs to eat.

Japan's Inland sea contains more islands than any similar body of water in the world. Estimates of the number of isles in the 250-mile-long sea run as high as 3,000.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The searching eye of Hollywood has lighted on Tammy Grimes and I know two companies which are trying to lure her into the movies. Tammy is New York's sensation. I was in New York for the opening of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," her play, and I've never heard such cheering. The show received mixed reviews, and although Dore Schary has given it deft touches, Tammy is still better than the play. She's something different, and has that magic spark given few actresses.

It seemed almost as if all Hollywood was there. The whole contingent from Capitol Records was in the audience and their applause added to one of the noisiest ovations I've ever heard in any theatre.

In the race for "best actress" Academy honors will be Melina Mercouri who plays the prostitute in "Never On Sunday." As far as I'm concerned, this subject has been far over-exposed in current movies and I'm tired of it. But as a performer, Melina is a standout. As for Jules Dassin, in the same picture, all I can say is that he should stick to directing—he's a terrible actor.

I was interested to learn that "Never on Sunday" will be in the Academy Awards race competing with American movies although it was made in Greece. But Greece will refrain from nominating "Never on Sunday" to remove it from the "foreign film" category. Same thing happened to permit "Room at the Top" to compete in last year's awards in the category of outstanding films, and remember Simone Signoret carried of honors.

Bright and early the telephone operator said "Paris calling," and when I got on the 'phone it was Yvette Mimieux. She sounded like a traveling advertisement for Rome, London and Paris.

"You know, it's my first visit to Europe," she said, "and while we have had a lot of rain which has held up 'Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,' it's been the most wonderful experience of my life."

She said when she comes home she'll report to Hal Wallis for "Summer and Smoke." Yvette will never answer when asked if she's married or not, but it's generally believed that she has a mysterious husband.

Douglas Fairbanks writes that he'll be on the coast from the 12th to the 18th and is staying with the Shirley Burdens. He says he has an old NBC commitment to fulfill and is appearing on the Chevy Show on the 18th. He says he'll drop in to see me after he finishes rehearsals.

Mary Lee, I am sorry to say, isn't coming with Doug. She has been in New York with him, but is returning to London on the 14th to meet their youngest, Melissa, who gets back from boarding school for Christmas. Doug will fly to London after the show to join his family for Christmas.

I always enjoy talking with Robert Mitchum who comes up with some good gag or other. He's home again after being away for nearly a year making "Sundowners" in Australia, and "Grass is Greener" in England. On Monday he starts "The Last Time I Saw Archie" with Jack Webb.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have had shock treatments. Many of my relatives think this means I was insane. They also have the notion that anyone who goes to a psychiatrist is out of his mind.

Why is there so much ignorance about mental health in this day and age? Why do people shun treatment, drag themselves around for years half alive, because they are afraid of what people will think if they get therapy? Two years ago I went into menopause and became so depressed I didn't care if I lived or died. With the help of prayer, a good doctor, and an understanding husband I feel like a human being again.

If I had a million dollars, Ann, I would give it to you to print this letter. That's how badly I want to get this message across. If it could help just ONE person — it would be worth it.—SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED: If you had a million dollars and gave it to me I'd give it back! Here's the letter and it should help more than just one person because about 40 million people will see it. I am grateful to have the chance to print your letter and I hope it will encourage others to seek the help they need.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow in my late 50's but I'm in excellent health and have a variety of interests. I do not care for night-clubs, drinking or gadding about.

My grandchildren laughingly (and lovingly, I might add) call me an antique. They say I ought to streamline my ways a bit so I'll get a man. My own daughter made the serious suggestion that I smoke a cigarette or two in a crowd, and take a highball, just to show folks I'm not a stick-in-the-mud. A friend suggested I darken some of the grey streaks in my hair.

Frankly, none of this appeals to me. Am I wrong?—OLD FASHIONED

DEAR O. F.: No — THEY are. There's a market for fine "antiques", so hold out till you find someone who appreciates your real value.

Smoking, highballing and hair-tinting would be out of character for you. I like these two lines — and maybe you will, too:

Taste or preference we cannot measure.
One man's "junk" is the next man's treasure.

DEAR ANN: Your column hits everyone between the eyes — sooner or later. I got mine this morning, and I hope the parents will listen to the good advice you gave them.

It was about the college boy who wanted to get married and was not of legal age. He was begging his folks to sign for him. You advised the folks to refuse and to be firm about it. You said a boy 19 with one year of college, no job, and no money saved, is in no position to get married.

My own son was 20 and a college sophomore when he put the heat on me to sign for him. I agreed against my better judgment, and the marriage was a disaster. The girl got pregnant, and before the baby was born they were divorced. I know now if I had stuck to my position I could have saved them both plenty of misery.

Keep handing out that solid advice, Ann. If people aren't smart enough to take it, that's their tough luck.—FAILURE

DEAR FAILURE: Thank you for writing. Letters from readers who have survived the trouble always pack a double wallop. Again my thanks.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sondra Rucker, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rucker, Green Ridge, is shown as she will appear on the CBS television show, "Ted Mack and the Original Amateur Hour," Sunday from 5 to 5:30 p. m. The program was taped in advance. Sondra, who auditioned for the show once before, had an eight-week engagement at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City last summer.

Grant County Grand Jury Returns 11 Indictments

PETERSBURG—A Grant County grand jury returned 11 indictments at the November term of Circuit Court which convened here with Judge Ernest A. See presiding.

Felony indictments were found against the following:

Emory Willis Berg, five counts for forgery and false pretense;

Thomas Iman and John Lewis Dodson, breaking and entering;

Ray LaRue and Paul Stonebraker, false pretense, and

Clyde F. Hardy, false pretense.

Misdemeanor indictments were found against the following:

Thomas Iman and John Lewis Dodson, petty larceny;

Lester Crites, carrying a concealed weapon, and

John T. Sites, removing timber from land not his own.

Further court work included the granting of two divorces: Homer Bergdoll vs. Annabelle Bergdoll and Ralph Clinton Alt vs. Anita Alt.

A petit jury has been called for Monday when trial of criminal cases will begin.

Whether or not bridge players, as a whole, are basically respecters of authority seems to me to be a moot point. Try handing them 10 cards of a suit lacking the king and ask them what they would do in an effort to pick up the suit—finesse or swing? It's dollars to rubles they'll play the ace. Yet for 30 years or more standard texts have advised them clearly that the finesse is superior. The argument took another form in today's hand.

The jack of diamonds was opened and it became apparent that declarer must hold his loss in trumps to one trick, inasmuch as two spade losers were inevitable. Declarer, a man of action, was not disposed to postpone the agony. He won with the ace in dummy and forthwith led a trump. East played the five. Declarer let his fortunes ride with the king and lost his contract as West took it with the ace.

As declarer apologized for his "misguess" North pointed out that he had not chosen the better play, that the finesse of the jack was superior.

South insisted that the chances were even, that if West had held the lone ace, declarer would have won the hand. North proceeded to clinch his argument in a straightforward manner. While the play of the king wins when East has ace-small, it loses when East has queen-small. These two situations balance each other, because the frequency of occurrence is equal. All other situations are immaterial since it will be seen that both plays win, or both lose. But there is one holding, in addition, on which the play of the jack wins while the king loses. It is where East has ace-queen-small. It is this one holding that renders the play of the jack slightly superior on percentage.

Note, however, that percentages should be resorted to only where there is no better evidence. Where the bidding suggests that East has the ace, then the king play becomes more inviting.

Tuohy Backs N&W Move

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Walter J. Tuohy, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, went on record Thursday favoring Norfolk & Western's proposal to consolidate with three other lines.

"This proposal is a constructive and natural step in the unification of eastern railroads," Tuohy said.

Tuohy, whose own line is attempting to negotiate a merger with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, commented after N&W announced a proposal to merge with the Nickel Plate and Sandusky line and lease and eventually merge with the Wabash line.

Tuohy said the N&W announcement should be given "thoughtful attention by those interested in the Baltimore & Ohio's future, primarily the stockholders, who will determine in the next two weeks whether the benefits of B&O-C&O area to be achieved."

PLACEMENTS CLIMB

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Broilers chick placements in West Virginia last week totaled 335,000. This was 14 per cent above the previous week but still considerably below last year's level, the Federal State Crop Reporting Service said Thursday.

Many Truck Faults Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission said Thursday a significant number of trucks using the high speed Pennsylvania Turnpike are not maintained in road-worthy condition, and some are dangerously defective.

The commission made public the results of a spot safety road check on interstate motor freight carriers carried out for three days Oct. 30-Nov. 1 at five locations on the turnpike.

The checks, carried out with the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, did not involve flagging down vehicles. It was confined to sample inspection during routine stops at pull-ins and gas stations.

For this reason, the ICC did not attempt to determine percentages of deficient trucks in relation to total traffic. It noted, however, that among 1,157 vehicles examined, 213 were found to have defects, the most common of which were in the braking systems.

Electricity is found on more than three-fourths of all U. S. farms.

Death Separates Invalid And His Devoted Wife

DETROIT (AP)—An 85-year-old invalid lived for two years in a burned-out home guarded by his wife.

Rudolf F. Karschnik died Wednesday while being taken to a hospital. He had been unconscious for three days. He was on a bed covered with quilts and wore a stocking cap for warmth.

His wife, Lillian, 81, refused to leave him even when she received a telegram from a Detroit hospital asking her to make burial arrangements for her only brother who died Tuesday.

"My duty is with the living," Mrs. Karschnick said.

The couple lived in three rooms of the 12-room house that cost $30,000 when they bought it 30 years ago. The rooms in which they lived were barely warmed by a portable electric heater and the oven of a gas stove.

They used to rent the upper floor of the house as a flat to help meet expenses, but fire destroyed that part of the house and they had no money to repair it. The burned section is open to the snow and frigid winds moan among the skeleton beams and charred roof.

Mrs. Karschnick said her husband had been an invalid for two years. She said she had no children and no close relatives. She added that they lived on Social Security payments.

Fraud Trial Ends With Hung Jury

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — A Logan County Circuit Court jury of 11 men and one woman failed to agree on a verdict Thursday in the election fraud trial of Grady Jackson.

Special Judge Stanley Bosworth dismissed the panel after being informed there was no possibility of reaching a verdict. Bosworth was told the panel was split 9-3 in favor of conviction.

Jackson had been charged with illegally casting ballots on a voting machine in the Verdunville precinct in the May 10 primary election. The prosecution attempted to show that he would go into the voting booth with voters and cast a ballot while explaining operation of the machine to the voter.

Immediately following dismissal of the Jackson trial jury, a new panel was picked and another election fraud trial begun. On trial is Floyd Dingess charged with electioneering inside a polling place.

The only witness to testify before court adjourned Thursday was Lester Perry who reported when he went into the voting booth the machine was stuck and he asked Dingess for help. Perry claimed that Dingess attempted to influence him to vote for Okey Justice for sheriff at the time.

But Perry also admitted under questioning that on Wednesday he met Dingess in the court house here and told him he did not make such a charge. The trial continues Friday.

Adjutant General Attends Convention

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Adj. Gen. William Blake left late Thursday to attend a three-day meeting of the Adjutant Generals Association, opening Friday at Washington.

Blake, who will be accompanied by his assistant, Lt. Col. William Miller, said several "major decisions" will be made at the meeting, including some that will effect the West Virginia National Guard.

Miller is considered to be at the forefront of those persons from whom a new adjutant general will be chosen by governor-elect W. W. Barron. Blake pointed out that the "decisions" made at the conference will carry over into the Bararon administration.

Next Thursday, Blake also will attend a 2nd Army conference at Ft. George G. Meade, near Washington, at which National Guard 1961 field training dates will be determined.

Tickets Available For 'Angel Street'

Tickets are on sale in the school office for the Fort Hill Players production of "Angel Street" to be presented in the Fort Hill auditorium December 9 at 8:15 p.m.

The three-act Victorian thriller was first produced in London under the title "Gas Light." In New York, the play performed as "Angel Street," starred such Broadway greats as Judith Evelyn, Vincent Price, and Leo S. Carroll. Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, and Joseph Cotton starred in the movie version.

171 Get Licenses For Marriage During November

Issuance of 171 more marriage licenses during November in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, sent to 2,174 the number issued in the first 11 months of 1960 but still 213 shy of the 2,387 obtained during the corresponding period a year ago.

The 171 issued last month were 6.6 per cent fewer than the 183 obtained in November 1959. The 11-month total is running 8.9 per cent behind the level of last year.

During all of 1959 there were 2,569 marriage licenses issued at the Court House. With only one month to go it appears impossible for 1960 to match the marriage license rate of last year. It would take 395 in December to match the 1959 total and the peak month this year was June, when only 268 were obtained.

June, September and October are the only months in 1960 in which more marriage licenses have been issued than a year ago.

The monthly totals, with 1959 listed first and 1960 second in each case:

January—180 and 151; February—201 and 149; March—189 and 159; April—215 and 175; May—198 and 197; June—266 and 268; July—294 and 232; August—264 and 250; September—206 and 217; October—191 and 205; November—183 and 171.

Older Hunters Take To Woods

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It looks like West Virginia's "senior hunters" are taking advantage of a new law which provides that persons 65 or over do not have to buy a hunting license.

The Conservation Commission said Thursday that as a result of the law which became effective this year, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of older hunters this week during deer season.

The commission said there was a particularly large turnout of older nimrods this week in the Buckhannon area.

Improvements For Airport Approved

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI)—A contract for $868,715 worth of improvements at Benedum Airport near Bridgeport will be signed Monday, according to Andrew L. Henry, Fairmont, secretary of the Benedum Airport Authority.

He said the Federal Aviation Agency has given final approval to the plans and the federal government will foot half the cost. Marion and Harrison Counties, which have agreed to share joint responsibility for the airport under the new Airport Authority, will pay the other half.

Maine was named for Maine, an ancient French province.

Forest Funds Distributed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state auditor's office Thursday announced receipt of $175,791 in national forest funds for distribution to the State Road Commission and county boards of education in which the Monongahela National Forest is located.

The money represents collection on certain license sales, etc., of those making use of the forest lands which consist of 903,908 acres.

Eighty per cent of the state's allocation, or $140,633, goes to the boards of education in 11 counties in which the forests is located, while the SRC gets the rest. All of the money must be used for the benefit of the counties involved.

Pocahontas County received the largest amount, $58,840, followed by Randolph with $36,202, Greenbrier $21,013, Tucker $19,744, Pendleton $15,025, Webster $13,741, Nicholas $4,977, Grant $3,000, Hardy $2,294, Preston $826 and Hampshire 125.

W.Va. Economy Closing Its Second-Best Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Chamber of Commerce said Thursday this still will be the state's second - best year economically despite a business drop during October.

"Except for an expected seasonal upturn in retail sales, the economy in October settled on the plateau it reached last spring," the report said.

However the chamber said, "barring a major upset" which it doesn't foresee, November and December business records should show an improvement.

Increases were recorded during the first 10 months of the year in 14 of the 20 categories of business gauged by the chamber.

In October, however, declines occurred in 11 of the divisions from September, and there also were 11 declines from October, 1959. The categories were different in many instances in the over-the-month and over-the-year declines.

Categories showing increases over last year's 10-month period included overall payrolls, miners' pay, manufacturing workers' pay, coal, oil and lumber production, value of manufactured products, rail carloadings, gross sales, consumer sales and gas tax collections.

Natural gas and power production, retail sales, farm income and value of building permits issued were among categories showing declines from last year.

Also attending the meeting in City Hall were City Attorney William R. Carscaden and Assistant City Engineer Charles Scarlett, for the city; Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, and Leonard Neff, director of the Cumberland Industrial Development Company.

Members of the Planning Commission present included Mr. Paye, James Alfred Avirett and George O. Hollar.

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

FROM THE IOWA cornfields came Buck Shaw those many years ago to play a star tackle at Notre Dame although he weighed only 175 pounds.

And now, these many years later, Lawrence Timothy (Buck) Shaw, head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, plans to call a long and glamorous football career quits at the end of the season—a season which may be the best he's ever had in a fabulous career.

Buck Shaw

A striking figure on or off the field with his silvery-gray hair and appearing much younger than his 61 years, Shaw was born to be a coach, perhaps, and no sooner had he departed from the Notre Dame scene in 1921 after three years on the varsity that he got himself a coaching job as an assistant at Nevada.

Then followed a succession of coaching jobs which took him to North Carolina State, Santa Clara, the University of California, the San Francisco 49ers and the Air Force Academy until he came to the Eagles in 1958 to weld a disorganized squad into a tie for second last year and what appears to be a world's championship in this, his last year.

• • •

HIS GREATEST success came at a school which has abandoned football, Santa Clara. Shaw became an assistant there in 1929 and took over as head coach in 1936. At the time, Santa Clara was one of the nation's major teams and its intersectional games were of national importance.

In seven seasons at Santa Clara his teams won 47 games, lost only 10 and twice he took his clubs to the Sugar Bowl to whip Louisiana State both times.

When Santa Clara abandoned football in 1942, Shaw stayed on for awhile to direct the physical training for the students in the military program.

In 1945 he took a temporary spot as head coach at California and the next year he was picked to coach the San Francisco 49ers in the new All-America Football conference. He stayed on here until 1954 and then, in 1955, he went to the Air Force Academy, first as a civilian consultant to the department of athletics, and then as head coach.

• • •

THROUGH his career Shaw has been an exponent of offensive football. He early learned that football, in addition to the end result, winning, has to be interesting and entertaining. He made his 49ers one of the most popular teams in the league and his Eagles have come along now to where they are among the top attractions.

When the season ends Shaw plans to retire to his home at Menlo Park, Calif.

Cal Griffith's Third Indemnity Offer Rejected

Charleston May Lose A.A. Berth

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — American Association officials Thursday rejected Calvin Griffith's third indemnity offer for the Minneapolis-St. Paul territory but indicated some compromise might be reached.

Griffith's latest offer of $200,000 was turned down by American Association officials as being "not reasonable in light of the damages." League President Jim Burris said, however, "we now feel there is a possibility of getting together when negotiations reach a reasonable stage."

The league originally had asked $1,600,000 as indemnity but Burris revealed it has come down from that figure.

The offer by Griffith Thursday represented an increase of $150,000 from his original one of $50,000 made to the league last month. He increased that offer to $90,000 Tuesday night and then more than doubled it last night.

If Griffith and the American Association cannot agree on a mutually acceptable figure, a seven-man arbitration board will hear arguments from both sides and decide on how much the payment should be.

The American Association faced still another problem in the possible loss of the Charleston (W.Va.) club for lack of major league backing. Washington had a working agreement with Charleston last year but Griffith said his "new" club, the Minnesota Twins, would not do so. Griffith also declined to buy the Charleston club for $35,000.

A Charleston group which operated the club last season promised to sell $75,000 in season tickets if the Twins would buy the franchise but Griffith said he couldn't be induced into such a proposition. Charleston still owes $32,000 from 1960.

If the American Association cannot find a backer for Charleston, it will operate as a six-team league in 1961. The St. Paul franchise has been transferred to Omaha.

Maphis Gets 31 As WVU Freshmen Post 109-68 Win

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Former Romney high school star Bill Maphis led the West Virginiaa University freshman basketball team to a raunaway 109-68 victory over the Wesleyan reserves here Thursday night.

It was the opening game of the season for the Little Mountaineers who showed signs of taking up where their counterparts of a year ago left off. The 1959-60 frosh team went unbeaten.

Maphis scored 31 points on 15 field goals and 1-for-2 at the foul line.

Wesleyan was never in the game and trailed 49-32 at halftime. Last year's WVU frosh quintet downed the Wesleyan reserves 110-65.

Courrier Scores 23 Points For Tornado

Sparked by a 23-point performance by guard Jim Courrier, Coach "Eck" Miers Keyser High School floormen opened their basketball campaign with a 52-48 victory over the Alumni basketeers.

Courrier dumped in seven field goals and converted nine of 12 shots at the charity line to lead the scorers of both teams.

Keyser High trailed 13-12 at the quarter but held a 28-25 lead at halftime and 43-36 at the conclusion of the third period.

Gary Keedy and Ralph Wimer were the "big guns" for the Alumni with 16 and 13 markers. Keedy scored six field goals and Wimer had five to his credit.

Keyser had a 20-17 edge in field goals but was outpointed at the foul line, 18 to 12.

Murff To Scout For Houston Club

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — John R. (Red) Murff, one of the Texas League's greatest pitchers in the post-war period, Thursday was signed as a scout with the Houston National League club.

Houston general manager Gabe Paul said Murff would concentrate his activities in the Gulf Coast area, but would be available for scouting assignments elsewhere if needed.

Murff managed the Jacksonville club in the South Atlantic League last season for the Houston Sports Association, which owns the National League franchise here.

Ewbank And Howell To Coach Bowl Teams

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — W. C. (Weeb) Ewbank, coach of the defending world champion Baltimore Colts and Jim Lee Howell of the New York Giants were named Thursday as coaches for the annual Senior Bowl football game here Jan. 7.

Howell, whose Giants took the Eastern Division title in the NFL last year, coached the North squad to a 26-7 win last year over Ewbank's Southerners. The win narrowed the South's edge in the series to 6-5.

The post-season classic will renew a coaching rivalry which has seen Ewbank and Howell clash for the NFL championship for the past two years.

VICTIM OF TEAR GAS IN CARACAS—Overcome by tear gas as police moved against rioters in Caracas, Venezuela, an unconscious woman is carried to an emergency aid center by a police lieutenant. Seeking the cause of wild street rioting in which eight persons were killed and 200 others wounded in four days, government authorities siezed arms, documents and propaganda material in a series of raids on Communist and leftist centers.

Signboard Artist Says Horses Hardest To Draw

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)— Hans Drude is one artist who never steps back to admire his work. If he did, he'd break his neck.

He usually has to go across the street or up to the next block to get any kind of perspective on his efforts. Even then, fog or drizzle can hamper his vision.

Drude is a Times Square signboard artist, . rooftop Rembrandt who works in oils—by the bucketful.

His creative milieu takes him into a garish nightmare world that would trouble the sleep of a Salvador Dali. Eyeballs five feet in diameter. Ear lobes two feet tall. Horses the size of whales, and whales the size of skating rinks. Neckline cleavages broad enough for the men to work on adjoining scaffols and not meet each other until lunchtime.

As chief portrait artist for Artkraft Strauss, one of the country's leading outdoor advertising firms, Drude is responsible for most of the block-long signs in the theater district. His spectaculars, as they are called in the trade, decorate the building fronts of all of Broadway's first-run movie houses and hawk a variety of products from plays and movies to whisky and cleansing tissues.

On a windy day, Drude frequently finds himself three to four feet away from his work, swaying to and fro on a scaffold five to 10 floors above the street. Pigeons give him more trouble than passersby, but sometimes cops can be more trouble than either.

Drude had no sooner finished putting the final four-inch-wide brush strokes on "The Naked Maja," whose unfettered pelt stretched languourously along Broadway from 45th to 46th streets, than a howl went up from the outraged custodians of public morals.

"Get up there and put some clothes on that dame," a cop ordered as Drude showed up for work next morning. It took him the better part of the day to fashion a filmy covering for the reclining nymph, all six floors of her.

Drude, who learned his art in Hamburg, Germany, and has been in this country four years, can't understand the American attitude toward bare billboard beauties. "Back home you see more outside a theater than you see inside. Brigitte Bardot's architecture is better known than city hall's."

In Germany most display advertising is prepared in a studio and then hung up in sections. In America almost all signs are painted directly on to the billboards and frequently right on the side of the building itself.

One big exception are the 15-foot-high portraits of Jean Simmons, Laurence Olivier, Charles Laughton, Kirk Douglas and Tony Curtis that Drude painted for the world premiere of the movie "Spartacus." These were done on glass at the Artkraft Strauss studios and now occupy two walls of the DeMille theater. Lighted from behind, this monstrous electrical display runs half a block in each direction around a corner and stands nine stories high.

Projection, of course, is everything in signboard art. one square inch of the working model equals anywhere from three to four square feet of signboard, a scale of as much as 48-1. Drude is usually given a 3x4-inch picture of the star or product to be advertised, and then takes it from there.

In addition to tidying up facial shadows in the photographs, Drude often has to fatten up female stars, even those famous for their prodigious facades. "We add a couple of calories here and there to give them that little extra something," the artist explained modestly.

Although Drude has done mammoth portraits of John Wayne, Spencer Tracy, Clark Gable, Doris Day and most of Hollywood's great stars, he has never met any of his subjects face to face. But he can't say the same for horses.

"Horses are much harder to draw than people," he admitted. "I always have to go out in the country and look at them. Working from a picture isn't enough. There's so much expression to be captured."

W. Va. Civil War Group Meets Today

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The West Virginia Centennial Commission will meet Friday at Wheeling.

The commission will exchange ideas with those planning civil war centennial events in Ohio County for next year.

One of the first battles of the Civil War was fought at Philippi, Barbour County, and various events commerating the war will be held in various other states as well as West Virginia.

The centennial commission is planning for West Virginia's 100th birthday in 1963.

Tom Miller Story

Goldberg Retires

Basketball Records

By C. V. BURNS

BY ARRANGING a home-and-home series, both LaSalle and Bayard now have enough games on their schedules to qualify for the Potomac Valley Conference championship race.

Conference rules specify that a school must play a minimum of eight games to qualify and they must be home-and-home contests with four schools.

LaSalle meets Beall, Ridgeley, Paw Paw and Bayard each twice and has a single game with Fort Ashby. Bayard lists home-and-home engagements with Petersburg, Elk Garden, Southern and LaSalle.

Bayard came into the P.V.C. last season but could get booking with only two schools — Petersburg and Elk Garden. Coach Francis Maleonskie's quint swept both two-game series. The Grant Countians won 19 of 22 games last season.

It is believed that LaSalle is the first Cumberland high school ever to appear on a Bayard basketball schedule.

IT WAS JUST ten years that Tom Miller was struck by a taxicab on Walnut street, knocked 50 feet, suffered a fractured skull and spent five weeks, including Christmas, in Allegany Hospital.

Tom was only 7 years old at that time, was a pupil at St. Patrick's School and was on his way to the store when the accident occurred.

The same Tom Miller sparkled in the Allegany High School backfield this season, won the individual scoring championship of the C.V.A. League, made the all-C.V.A.L. first team and wound up his senior year in high school on a team that won ten consecutive games.

Tom's uncle, Francis Chapman, was one of LaSalle's basketball and football greats of about 20 years ago and earned a scholarship to Notre Dame University.

ONE of the best known football officials in nearby Pennsylvania is calling it quits after 33 years of service.

Dr. Dick Goldberg, Johnstown dentist, has decided he's had enough of whistle-tooting on the gridiron. He retired from the basketball scene three years ago.

A graduate of Pitt, Dr. Goldberg officiated in the Fort Hill-Allegany Thanksgiving Day games in 1943, 1944 and 1945. He teamed up with Bruce Fisher and Les Weigle in two games and with Fisher and "Tuffy" Baker in the other.

EMPLOYES of the Baltimore News-Post are very much interested in the forthcoming middleweight scrap at Boston between Terry Downes, the British champion, and Paul Pender, because Downes was once a copy boy on the Baltimore newspaper and used to spar on the roof with fellow employes.

WITH the basketball season now under way in the tri-state area here's a gander at some of the past team and individual records:

Most points scored by Cumberland high school player over regular 21-game schedule — Tommy Smith, Carver High, 495 in 1955. Also highest average 23.5.

Most points scored by Cumberland player in more than 21 games — Mickey Scaletta, LaSalle, 1960, total 520 in 24 games.

Highest point total in area for regular season — Bill Maphis, Romney, 652 in 21 games, 1958-59.

Highest average for one season in area — Bill Maphis, Romney, 31.5 in 1959-60. Scored 629 points in 20 games.

Most points scored in one season by P.V.C. player — Bill Maphis, Romney, 534 in 17 games, 1959-60.

Highest average for P.V.C. player — Bill Maphis, Romney, 31.4 in 1959-60.

Most points scored in P.V.C. game — Carl Hartman, Ridgeley, 62 in 1951.

Most field goals scored in P.V.C game — Carl Hartman, Ridgeley, 29 in 1951.

Highest score in P.V.C. game — Fort Ashby 130, Capon Bridge 52 in 1957-58.

Most points scored in game by W.M.I. League player — John J. Long, Allegany, 52, at Greene street gym in 1924.

Most points in W.M.I. League season — Robert Kirk, Barton, 235 in 10 games, 1953. Also highest average 23.5.

Highest foul shooting average by W.M.I. League player — Jim Hansel, Beall, 33 out of 37 for .892 in 1959 season.

Highest score in W.M.I. League game — Barton 132, Midland 10, January 11, 1927.

Highest score by Cumberland school — LaSalle 129, Barton 33, in 1945.

Most points scored by player in high school career — Bill Maphis, Romney, 2,181 in 81 regular season games for 26.9 average. Including tournaments his 4-year total is 2,504 points for 92 games.

Longest winning streak by boys team in W.M.I. League — 44 games by Allegany, 1944 to 1948.

Lowest scoring game in modern basketball — Piedmont 10, Ridgeley 7, January 19, 1960 at Ridgeley.

Only undefeated team in tri-State area — Romney High School, 1959-60. Won 21 games during the regular season. Wound up with 27-0, including tournament games.

Highest score credited to girls team in area — Central of Lonaconing, 152, Ursuline Academy 3, in 1924.

Most points scored by girl player in one game — Marie Boyd, Central High, Lonaconing, 156 in 1924.

Longest winning streak by girls team in area — 65 games by Central of Lonaconing, ending in 1924. Modern record of 53 games by Fort Hill, ended in 1958-59 season.

the Cas Taylors

The final nominee for this year's Cas Taylors' Hall of Fame has been selected and he is . . . Robert "Bob" Gaffney, Allegany High School, and the sport, naturally, is football.

With the selection of Bob the committee has closed nominations for this year . . . Previously nominated were: John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, baseball; Cecil Grimes, softball; and, George "Joe" Wolfe, golf. From among these four will be chosen the first member of The Cas Taylors' Hall of Fame. The winner will be selected sometime in mid-January.

Just as with the Hall of Fame . . . there always is something interesting "doing" at The Cas Taylors'. The food and drinks are superb . . . color TV good . . . package and carryout service, fine . . . and always, always there is delightful or intriguing or stimulating (as you prefer) conversation about . . . well, about nearly everything. Join us in fun at The Cas Taylors' corner N. Mechanic and Valley Streets!

Record Of 343 Set Here First Day Last Year

Allegany County's 623, Garrett's 701 Best Season Marks

Maryland's seven-day gunning season for deer gets under way tomorrow at sunrise and winds up one week later.

The first of the seven-day seasons was launched a year ago when 611 whitetails were slain in Garrett county and 571 in Allegany.

A new single day record was established in Allegany when 343 whitetails were bagged on the first Saturday. This represented sixty per cent of the seven-day kill.

All other records in Western Maryland were set during six-day seasons. Allegany's highest total was 623 in 1957. Garrett's all-time high was 701 in 1958 while 320 were bagged the same year in Washington county.

Starting with 1955, Garrett county's kill has exceeded the 600 mark for five consecutive years. The five-year total is 3,289 for 31 hunting days.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, calls the attention of hunters to the calendar of hunting hours which appears in the hunting guide issued each hunting license holder.

Deer stamps must be purchased by hunters this year for the first time and must be pasted on the back of the license.

The four checking stations in Allegany county are located at Westernport Police Station, La-Vale Barracks of the Maryland State Police, Shipway's Inn, at Green Ridge and Hess' Service Station at Oldtown. This is the first time in ten years that Melvin Lewis' Store at Oldtown has not been designated as a checking station.

Garrett county's checking stations are at Edwards' Garage, Grantsville; Murphy's Service Station, Friendsville; Carroll Miller's Service Station, Oakland, and Matt Storey's, Deep Creek Lake.

Navy Will Open Drills Next Week For Bowl Battle

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Navy's football squad will open drills next Thursday for its Orange Bowl game with Missouri, working eight days here before taking a break for Christmas leave Dec. 17.

The Middies will regroup at Miami, Fla. at 6 p.m. Christmas Day, work out twice daily Dec. 26 and 27 and then once a day until the Jan. 2 game.

A Naval Academy official said Thursday efforts are being made to arrange for special round-trip train trips from this area for midshipmen to attend the game at their own expense, but that no final arrangements have been made.

Approximately 500 middies of the 3,600 then in the brigade, went to the Sugar Bowl when Navy played there Jan. 1, 1955. That was Navy's first bowl appearance in 32 years. The Middies defeated Mississippi 21-0.

The 1957 team played in the Cotton Bowl and defeated Rice 20-7. Navy's only other bowl appearance was in the Rose Bowl, Jan. 1, 1923, when it tied Washington 14-14.

Yankees Renew Pact

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The New York Yankees have renewed their working agreement with St. Petersburg of the Florida State League according to a joint announcement made Thursday by Yankee farm director Johnny Johnson and President Herb Smith of the Saints.

Set Record

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — William & Mary's Indians set a team scoring record Thursday night as they routed Hampden-Sydney's Tigers 113-73 in their 1960-61 basketball debut.

Kentucky Wins

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—The Kentucky Wildcats brushed past pesky Virginia Military Institute Thursday to open their schedule with a 72-56 victory and preserve a 33-game home opener win record.

Roger Newman, who started the game at guard and sparked the late drive after being moved to a forward spot, was high scorer with 20 points. Forward Joe Gedro was high for the Keydets with 14.

George Bayer Leads Florida Golf Tourney

Shoots Sub-Par 65 For 3-Stroke Edge

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—George Bayer, an early starter, blasted his way around the West Palm Beach Country Club course in a 7-under-par 65 Thursday and his score stood up for a 3-stroke lead in the first round of the West Palm Beach Open golf tournament.

The massive pro from Glen-eagles, Ill., carded a sizzling 6-under-par 30 on the out nine of the 6,745-yard course, and slipped off his other stroke with a birdie on the 10th.

Tied at 68 were Sam Snead of Boca Raton, Fla.; Joe Taylor of Charleston, W. Va., and Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla. One stroke behind that trio were Ted Kroll, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Bob Shave Jr., Willoughby, Ohio; Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa.; Tommy Aarons, Gainesville, Ga., and Henry Castillo, Tampa, Fla.

A total of 25 players bettered par, with five more at par figures. Arnold Palmer, who last Sunday captured the Mobile, Ala., Open to become the biggest one-year money winner with a total $73,716, was tied with 12 others in the 71 bracket, five strokes off the pace.

$50,000-$100,000 — The New York Yankees paid "one of our largest bonuses ever" estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000—to sign Howard Kitt, 18-year-old left-handed pitcher sought by every major league club. The 6-foot, 3-inch, 195-pound sophomore at Columbia University had a career record of 40 victories and one defeat while pitching for his Oceanside, N.Y., High School and sandlot teams. He is signing autographs for neighborhood youngsters.

All U. S. Final Is First In 80 Years In Victorian

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis won their semi-final matches in the Victorian tennis championships Thursday to set up the first All-American final in the 80-year history of the tournament.

However, the day's activity once again was marred by a threat from the Italian team to withdraw from the rest of the tourney.

MacKay defeated Mike Sangster of England, 6-4, 10-8, 12-10, and Buchholz rallied from a two-set deficit to eliminate Chuck McKinley, also of St. Louis, 3-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

McKinley wasa the innocent cause of the trouble involving the Italian squad, when, during his quarter-final match against Nicola Pietrangeli, he asked referee Harold Cornish for permission to wear spikes.

Cornish refused at the time, but then acceded to a second request by McKinley after the first game of the fourth set. Pietrangeli insisted that Cornish should have waited until after the second game. Pietrangeli stalked off the court and the match was forfeited to McKinley. The Italian was leading two sets to one.

Pietrangeli and teammate Orlando Sirola are scheduled to play Australians Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson Saturday for the doubles title, but Jaroslav Drobny captain of the Italian Davis Cup team which plays the U. S. in the interzone final, threatened to withdraw his players from the Victorian tournament.

Drobny was upset over an article written for the Melbourne Sun Pictorial by Harry Hopman in which the manager of the Australian Davis Cup team criticized Drobny and Pietrangeli for forfeiting the match against McKinley.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Are You The Boss—Or Just Plain Bossy?

At just about the same moment she accepts adult responsibilities, a woman does have to learn to crack the whip with some skill. There is a certain amount of executive ability latent in her that she simply must develop, just to survive in an adult world. It goes without saying that command posts at home or in business life demand even more of her innate talents for control, for organization and planning.

At this precise point begins the fine line that draws the difference between the boss — and the bossy. It's so easy to cross that line, without realizing you are overstepping your bounds . . . and stepping all over your charm at the same time.

Some women just naturally have the makings of a four-star general. They thrive on taking hold of "situations" and directing every detail with passionate care. They are the born managers and the world would certainly limp without them. But, even limping, it wouldn't stop turning. It hasn't yet, not even for history's would-be dictators.

A born manager is ambitious. She has drive enough for everybody. She says she wants her family, her students, her employees to find independence and eventual fulfillment. But can they . . . unless this rising tyrant loves them enough to bottle her desire for their lives for them, to make all their decisions?

There is no excuse for overbearing bossiness. There is a way of achieving high standards without sacrificing people. A gentle approach, a friendly tone of voice, a compliment of encouragement accomplish far more than a strident bellow and a know-it-all manner of fault-flaunting superiority.

What kind of boss are you — around your husband and children . . . at the office . . . among your neighbors, friends and relatives . . . on a committee? Are you apt to confer and share suggestions? Do you teach and guide . . . or do you try to take over! Must everything be done your way? Can you delegate authority or responsibility to someone else without immediately stepping in and running interference for him? Do you turn sulky when people refuse to dance to your tune?

How many times this past week have you heard yourself claim, "I TOLD you so!"—on that certain delicious note of triumph?

Watch it, lady. Change your steamroller tactics . . or, at least, learn where the brake is located. How can you be happy when obedience is blind with fear, deafened by resentment, mute with indifference?

Please, spare yourself the lonely fate that awaits the "indispensable" woman who does everything herself just to make sure it's done right, the officious overseer who grows old worrying over the weakness of dependent children who won't grow up and a henpecked husband who has lost his gumption.

W. Va. Deer Kill Below Last Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Conservation Commission said Thursday this year's West Virginia's deer kill apparently will fall well below the pre-season estimate of 19,500.

A spokesman said that a sampling of 10 per cent of the checking stations in four of the five conservation districts indicated that the kill for the first three days of the season was probably just under 11,000.

The commission said the hunting "pressure" was off by one-half to one-third in some areas compared with the past few years but that this might be partially attributed to a "better distribution" of hunters around the state.

With hunting more limited in the final three days of the season through Saturday, the commission said the Monday-through-Wednesday kill would account for the bulk of the total kill.

In ancient Greece, small pieces of bread were used in place of napkins. They were disposed of by throwing them on the floor for the dogs to eat.

Japan's Inland sea contains more islands than any similar body of water in the world. Estimates of the number of isles in the 250-mile-long sea run as high as 3,000.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The searching eye of Hollywood has lighted on Tammy Grimes and I know two companies which are trying to lure her into the movies. Tammy is New York's sensation. I was in New York for the opening of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," her play, and I've never heard such cheering. The show received mixed reviews, and although Dore Schary has given it deft touches, Tammy is still better than the play. She's something different, and has that magic spark given few actresses.

It seemed almost as if all Hollywood was there. The whole contingent from Capitol Records was in the audience and their applause added to one of the noisiest ovations I've ever heard in any theatre.

In the race for "best actress" Academy honors will be Melina Mercouri who plays the prostitute in "Never On Sunday." As far as I'm concerned, this subject has been far over-exposed in current movies and I'm tired of it. But as a performer, Melina is a standout. As for Jules Dassin, in the same picture, all I can say is that he should stick to directing—he's a terrible actor.

I was interested to learn that "Never on Sunday" will be in the Academy Awards race competing with American movies although it was made in Greece. But Greece will refrain from nominating "Never on Sunday" to remove it from the "foreign film" category. Same thing happened to permit "Room at the Top" to compete in last year's awards in the category of outstanding films, and remember Simone Signoret carried off honors.

Bright and early the telephone operator said "Paris calling," and when I got on the 'phone it was Yvette Mimieux. She sounded like a traveling advertisement for Rome, London and Paris.

"You know, it's my first visit to Europe," she said, "and while we have had a lot of rain which has held up 'Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,' it's been the most wonderful experience of my life."

She said when she comes home she'll report to Hal Wallis for "Summer and Smoke." Yvette will never answer when asked if she's married or not, but it's generally believed that she has a mysterious husband.

Douglas Fairbanks writes that he'll be on the coast from the 12th to the 18th and is staying with the Shirley Burdens. He says he has an old NBC commitment to fulfill and is appearing on the Chevy Show on the 18th. He says he'll drop in to see me after he finishes rehearsals.

Mary Lee, I am sorry to say, isn't coming with Doug. She has been in New York with him, but is returning to London on the 14th to meet their youngest, Melissa, who gets back from boarding school for Christmas. Doug will fly to London after the show to join his family for Christmas.

I always enjoy talking with Robert Mitchum who comes up with some good gag or other. He's home again after being away for nearly a year making "Sundowners" in Australia, and "Grass is Greener" in England. On Monday he starts "The Last Time I Saw Archie" with Jack Webb.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have had shock treatments. Many of my relatives think this means I was insane. They also have the notion that anyone who goes to a psychiatrist is out of his mind.

Why is there so much ignorance about mental health in this day and age? Why do people shun treatment, drag themselves around for years half alive, because they are afraid of what people will think if they get therapy? Two years ago I went into menopause and became so depressed I didn't care if I lived or died. With the help of prayer, a good doctor, and an understanding husband I feel like a human being again.

If I had a million dollars, Ann, I would give it to you to print this letter. That's how badly I want to get this message across. If it could help just ONE person — it would be worth it.—SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED: If you had a million dollars and gave it to me I'd give it back! Here's the letter and it should help more than just one person because about 40 million people will see it. I am grateful to have the chance to print your letter and I hope it will encourage others to seek the help they need.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow in my late 50's but I'm in excellent health and have a variety of interests. I do not care for night-clubs, drinking or gadding about.

My grandchildren laughingly (and lovingly, I might add) call me an antique. They say I ought to streamline my ways a bit so I'll get a man. My own daughter made the serious suggestion that I smoke a cigarette or two in a crowd, and take a highball, just to show folks I'm not a stick-in-the-mud. A friend suggested I darken some of the grey streaks in my hair.

Frankly, none of this appeals to me. Am I wrong?—OLD FASHIONED

DEAR O. F.: No — THEY are. There's a market for fine "antiques", so hold out till you find someone who appreciates your real value.

Smoking, highballing and hair-tinting would be out of character for you. I like these two lines — and maybe you will, too:

Taste or preference we cannot measure.
One man's "junk" is the next man's treasure.

DEAR ANN: Your column hits everyone between the eyes — sooner or later. I got mine this morning, and I hope the parents will listen to the good advice you gave them.

It was about the college boy who wanted to get married and was not of legal age. He was begging his folks to sign for him You advised the folks to refuse and to be firm about it. You said a boy 19 with one year of college, no job, and no money saved, is in no position to get married.

My own son was 20 and a college sophomore when he put the heat on me to sign for him. I agreed against my better judgment, and the marriage was a disaster. The girl got pregnant, and before the baby was born they were divorced. I know now if I had stuck to my position I could have saved them both plenty of misery.

Keep handing out that solid advice, Ann. If people aren't smart enough to take it, that's their tough luck.—FAILURE

DEAR FAILURE: Thank you for writing. Letters from readers who have survived the trouble always pack a double wallop. Again my thanks.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Grant County Grand Jury Returns 11 Indictments

PETERSBURG—A Grant County grand jury returned 11 indictments at the November term of Circuit Court which convened here with Judge Ernest A. See presiding.

Felony indictments were found against the following:

Emory Willis Berg, five counts for forgery and false pretense;

Thomas Iman and John Lewis Dodson, breaking and entering;

Ray LaRue and Paul Stonebraker, false pretense, and

Clyde F. Hardy, false pretense.

Misdemeanor indictments were found against the following:

Thomas Iman and John Lewis Dodson, petty larceny;

Lester Crites, carrying a concealed weapon, and

John T. Sites, removing timber from land not his own.

Further court work included the granting of two divorces: Homer Bergdoll vs. Annabelle Bergdoll and Ralph Clinton Alt vs. Anita Alt.

A petit jury has been called for Monday when trial of criminal cases will begin.

Whether or not bridge players, as a whole, are basically respecters of authority seems to me to be a moot point. Try handing them 10 cards of a suit lacking the king and ask them what they would do in an effort to pick up the suit—finesse or swing? It's dollars to rubles they'll play the ace. Yet for 30 years or more standard texts have advised them clearly that the finesse is superior. The argument took another form in today's hand.

The jack of diamonds was opened and it became apparent that declarer must hold his loss in trumps to one trick, inasmuch as two spade losers were inevitable. Declarer, a man of action, was not disposed to postpone the agony. He won with the ace in dummy and forthwith led a trump. East played the five. Declarer let his fortunes ride with the king and lost his contract as West took it with the ace.

As declarer apologized for his "misguess" North pointed out that he had not chosen the better play, that the finesse of the jack was superior.

South insisted that the chances were even, that if West had held the lone ace, declarer would have won the hand. North proceeded to clinch his argument in a straightforward manner. While the play of the king wins when East has ace-small, it loses when East has queen-small. These two situations balance each other, because the frequency of occurrence is equal. All other situations are immaterial since it will be seen that both plays win, or both lose. But there is one holding, in addition, on which the play of the jack wins while the king loses. It is when East has ace-queen-small. It is this one holding that renders the play of the jack slightly superior on percentage.

Note, however, that percentage should be resorted to only when there is no better evidence. When the bidding suggests that East has the ace, then the king play becomes more inviting.

The Liberty Bell in Philadelphia's Independence hall cracked in 1835 when it tolled at the funeral procession of Chief Justice John Marshall of the United States Supreme court.

Red Wings' Frey Takes Swat Title

Rochester Player Has .317 Average

MONTREAL (UPI) — Jimmy Frey, a stocky left-handed hitting outfielder, was officially certified Thursday as the first Rochester Red Wing in six years to win an International League batting championship.

The 5-foot, 8-inch, 170-pound native of Cleveland finished the season with a .317 average, according to official figures released Thursday, and was one of only two players who batted .300 or better this year. Outfielder Jim Pendleton of Jersey City, with a .302 mark, was the other.

Frey, who played in 125 games for the third-place Red Wings, batted 441 times and made 140 hits, including 21 doubles, four triples and 16 homers. He knocked in 66 runs, drew 48 walks and struck out only 33 times. He's Rochester's first batting champion since Bill Virdon in 1954.

Outfielder Don Landrum of the Buffalo Bisons was the leader in four other departments while first-baseman Joe Altobelli of the Montreal Royals won the home run and runs batted in crowns.

Landrum, 24, topped the circuit with 112 runs scored, 178 hits, 35 doubles and 287 total bases. Altobelli's leading figures in the two key power departments were 31 homers and 105 runs batted in.

Jersey City's Louis Jackson led in triples with 12 and Bobby Morgan of Buffalo led in bases on balls with 81.

Jersey City had the best team batting average, .258, but the Bisons' offense actually was the league's most potent. The Bisons led the team figures with 236 doubles, were second in homers with 140 and led in runs scored with 689. Rochester was the team home run leader with 142.

Steve Brooks Posts Triple At Pimlico

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 1 (AP) — Veteran Steve Brooks starred here at the remodeled Pimlico race course today when he rode three winners, including Thomas W. Baker, Jr.'s Fresh Marble, who took the featured Sparrows Point Purse.

Working under topweight of 122 pounds in the seven-horse field, Fresh Marble had the lead soon after the break and led throughout while turning six furlongs in 1.12 1/5, despite bucking a strong headwind in the stretch.

Held down to $4.40 in the mutuel pool, Fresh Marble came to the finish line about two lengths in front of Idle Hour Farm's Idle Star, who placed about a half length to the good of Micahel Sakele's Saferris, the paddock tip of the field.

Brooks' previous winners were Weather Lady, who returned $13.80 in the fourth race, and Sun Spirit, who took the second heat at $9.00 for $2. He now has sixteen wins for the sixteen-day-old meeting.

Hartack Rides Three Winners

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Bill Hartack, aiming at a fourth national riding title, scored a triple before 7,371 fans at Tropical Park today, including the featured seventh race aboard Kentucky Bandit.

Kentucky Bandit, the 7-5 favorite, broke on the lead in the mile-and-70 yard race; opened up a big lead and then just lasted to score by a neck over Cosmic Boy. Cosmic Boy finished second, five lengths in front of Pinch of Fudge.

Hartack's other winners were High Spy ($7.10) in the first race and Statesmanship ($12.40) in the third.

Maryland State Is Grid Champ

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP)—Maryland State College has been declared 1960 football champion of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The Hawks finished the season with a 5-0-1 conference record and a Dickinson rating of 26.52. North Carolina A&T, defeated by North Carolina College Thanksgiving day, finished second with a 4-1-1 conference mark and a rating of 24.62.

The championship was the fourth for Maryland State grid teams. The school won the CIAA crown in 1954, 1955 and 1957.

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

FROM THE IOWA cornfields came Buck Shaw those many years ago to play a star tackle at Notre Dame although he weighed only 175 pounds.

And now, these many years later, Lawrence Timothy (Buck) Shaw, head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, plans to call a long and glamorous football career quits at the end of the season—a season which may be the best he's ever had in a fabulous career.

Buck Shaw

A striking figure on or off the field with his silvery-gray hair and appearing much younger than his 61 years, Shaw was born to be a coach, perhaps, and no sooner had he departed from the Notre Dame scene in 1921 after three years on the varsity that he got himself a coaching job as an assistant at Nevada.

Then followed a succession of coaching jobs which took him to North Carolina State, Santa Clara, the University of California, the San Francisco 49ers and the Air Force Academy until he came to the Eagles in 1958 to weld a disorganized squad into a tie for second last year and what appears to be a world's championship in this, his last year.

• • •

HIS GREATEST success came at a school which has abandoned football, Santa Clara. Shaw became an assistant there in 1929 and took over as head coach in 1936. At the time, Santa Clara was one of the nation's major teams and its intersectional games were of national importance.

In seven seasons at Santa Clara his teams won 47 games, lost only 10 and twice he took his clubs to the Sugar Bowl to whip Louisiana State both times.

When Santa Clara abandoned football in 1942, Shaw stayed on for awhile to direct the physical training for the students in the military program.

In 1945 he took a temporary spot as head coach at California and the next year he was picked to coach the San Francisco 49ers in the new All-America Football conference. He stayed on here until 1954 and then, in 1955, he went to the Air Force Academy, first as a civilian consultant to the department of athletics, and then as head coach.

• • •

THROUGH his career Shaw has been an exponent of offensive football. He early learned that football, in addition to the end result, winning, has to be interesting and entertaining. He made his 49ers one of the most popular teams in the league and his Eagles have come along now to where they are among the top attractions.

When the season ends Shaw plans to retire to his home at Menlo Park, Calif.

Cal Griffith's Third Indemnity Offer Rejected

Charleston May Lose A.A. Berth

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — American Association officials Thursday rejected Calvin Griffith's third indemnity offer for the Minneapolis-St. Paul territory but indicated some compromise might be reached.

Griffith's latest offer of $200,000 was turned down by American Association officials as being "not reasonable in light of the damages." League President Jim Burris said, however, "we now feel there is a possibility of getting together when negotiations reach a reasonable stage."

The league originally had asked $1,600,000 as indemnity but Burris revealed it has come down from that figure.

The offer by Griffith Thursday represented an increase of $150,000 from his original one of $50,000 made to the league last month. He increased that offer to $90,000 Tuesday night and then more than doubled it last night.

If Griffith and the American Association cannot agree on a mutually acceptable figure, a seven-man arbitration board will hear arguments from both sides and decide on how much the payment should be.

The American Association faced still another problem in the possible loss of the Charleston (W.Va.) club for lack of major league backing. Washington had a working agreement with Charleston last year but Griffith said his "new" club, the Minnesota Twins, would not do so. Griffith also declined to buy the Charleston club for $35,000.

A Charleston group which operated the club last season promised to sell $75,000 in season tickets if the Twins would buy the franchise but Griffith said he couldn't be induced into such a proposition. Charleston still owes $32,000 from 1960.

If the American Association cannot find a backer for Charleston, it will operate as a six-team league in 1961. The St. Paul franchise has been transferred to Omaha.

Maphis Gets 31 As WVU Freshmen Post 109-68 Win

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Former Romney high school star Bill Maphis led the West Virginiaa University freshman basketball team to a raunaway 109-68 victory over the Wesleyan reserves here Thursday night.

It was the opening game of the season for the Little Mountaineers who showed signs of taking up where their counterparts of a year ago left off. The 1959-60 frosh team went unbeaten.

Maphis scored 31 points on 15 field goals and 1-for-2 at the foul line.

Wesleyan was never in the game and trailed 49-32 at halftime. Last year's WVU frosh quintet downed the Wesleyan reserves 110-65.

Courrier Scores 23 Points For Tornado

Sparked by a 23-point performance by guard Jim Courrier, Coach "Eck" Miers Keyser High School floormen opened their basketball campaign with a 52-48 victory over the Alumni basketeers.

Courrier dumped in seven field goals and converted nine of 12 shots at the charity line to lead the scorers of both teams.

Keyser High trailed 13-12 at the quarter but held a 28-25 lead at halftime and 43-36 at the conclusion of the third period.

Gary Keedy and Ralph Wimer were the "big guns" for the Alumni with 16 and 13 markers. Keedy scored six field goals and Wimer had five to his credit.

Keyser had a 20-17 edge in field goals but was outpointed at the foul line, 18 to 12.

Murff To Scout For Houston Club

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — John R. (Red) Murff, one of the Texas League's greatest pitchers in the post-war period, Thursday was signed as a scout with the Houston National League club.

Houston general manager Gabe Paul said Murff would concentrate his activities in the Gulf Coast area, but would be available for scouting assignments elsewhere if needed.

Murff managed the Jacksonville club in the South Atlantic League last season for the Houston Sports Association, which owns the National League franchise here.

Ewbank And Howell To Coach Bowl Teams

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — W. C. (Weeb) Ewbank, coach of the defending world champion Baltimore Colts and Jim Lee Howell of the New York Giants were named Thursday as coaches for the annual Senior Bowl football game here Jan. 7.

Howell, whose Giants took the Eastern Division title in the NFL last year, coached the North squad to a 26-7 win last year over Ewbank's Southerners. The win narrowed the South's edge in the series to 6-5.

The post-season classic will renew a coaching rivalry which has seen Ewbank and Howell clash for the NFL championship for the past two years.

Ridgeley High School Cops PVC Cage Opener, 77-41

Romney High And Ridgeley Play Tonight

Piedmont To Visit Elk Garden; Cats Invade Fairmont

Roger Parker makes his bow as coach of the Romney High School Pioneers tonight when they oppose the Ridgeley Blackhawks in a Potomac Valley Conference game at Romney.

Graduation took Romney's entire squad of last season when the Hampshire Countians captured 27 consecutive games, including 17 in the conference, and Parker has a rebuilding task on his hands.

Ridgeley kicked off the lid last night by playing the West Virginia School for the Deaf.

Piedmont Opens Season

Piedmont High School, another team hard hit by graduation, launches its campaign tonight by meeting Paul Kalbaugh's Elk Garden High School quint on the latter's court. The Lions of Coach William "Huck" Miers captured 21 out of 23 games last season and finished as runners-up to unbeaten Romney in the P.V.C. Elk Garden dropped 15 of 21 contests last season.

Another new cage mentor gets his baptism of fire tonight when Harlan Hott leads his Franklin Panthers into action against Marlinton High School at Franklin. The Pendleton countians won 16 of 22 games last season under Curtis "Gus" Smith, who resigned after four seasons at the helm.

In other Friday night action, Arno Hott's Capon Bridge High floormen entertain Musselman High School, Berlin-Brothersvalley High tackles Hyndman High School at the latter place, "Pete" Vance's Wardensville High Warriors host Berkeley Springs High and the Alumni plays at Fort Ashby High School

Potomac At Fairmont

Potomac State College, winner of 26 out of 31 games last season, plays the first of six consecutive road games tonight with the Fairmont State College Falcons at Fairmont. This is the first of eight West Virginia State Conference for Coach Dana "Horse" Lough Catamounts. Tomorrow night Potomac opposes the Salem Tigers on the latter's court.

Giardello Upset By Peter Mueller

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI)—Peter Mueller of Cologne scored a major upset Thursday night when he outpointed Joey Giardello of New York in a 10-round bout at the Cologne Stadium.

Mueller, 33, weighed 156¼ pounds while Giardello tipped the scales at 157.

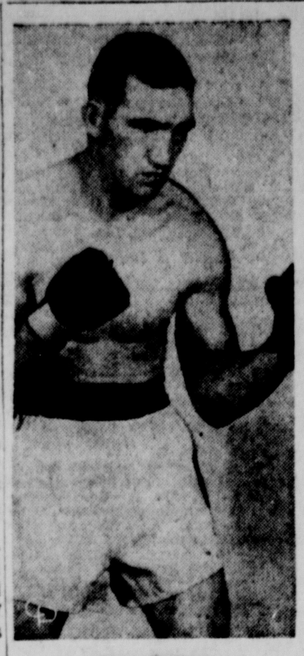
Mueller set the pace for virtually the entire bout. Giardello rallied strongly in the ninth but Mueller resumed his long-range stabbing attack in the 10th and won the decision easily.

Knicks Turn Back Celtics, 116-111

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The New York Knickerbockers snapped Boston's nine-game winning streak Thursday night by defeating the Celtics, 116-111, in the opener of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at Convention Hall.

New York broke a 55-55 tie just before the half and increased its margin to 81 - 63 midway through the thisd period. But the Knicks had to fight off a determined Boston rally which cut the lead to 107-103 with four minutes remaining.

Willie Naulls, who was high scorer in the game with 25 points, Kenny Sears, who had 23, and Richie Guerin with 20, gathered the Knicks forces together and pulled out a 116-107 edge with 30 seconds to go. This was enough to insure New York's fourth consecutive triumph.



Gene Fullmer

Sugar Ray Robinson

ONCE AGAIN—For the third time, Gene Fullmer, recognized as the middleweight king by the NBA, and Sugar Ray Robinson, former champ, meet in an NBA title bout December 3 in Los Angeles. Ray has won the title five times.

Ray Robinson Is Reported In Top Condition

Fullmer 3-1 Choice In Saturday Fight

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There will be no alibis from Sugar Ray Robinson if champion Gene Fullmer whips him in their 15-round fight for the National Boxing Association version of the world middleweight title.

"We will have no excuses," declared Robinson's manager, George Gainsford. Thursday as Fullmer, from West Jordan, Utah, remained a 3-1 betting favorite in the nationally televised match Saturday night.

"Robinson trained harder in the last week than he did the entire time for the fight with Paul Pender," George said.

Pender, of Boston, twice outpointed Robinson earlier this year in bouts for the so-called world title recognized in Massachusetts and New York.

The two fighters stayed pretty well out of sight Thursday, 29-year-old Gene at his hideout in Los Angeles and 39-year-old Sugar Ray at his retreat east of here at Gilman Hot Springs.

"We are satisfied with Gene's condition. He's ready and there has been no recurrence of the muscle injury in his leg," said Manager Marv Jensen.

A pulled muscle in the right leg forced postponement from the original date in early October.

This will be Fullmer's fourth defense of the title he acquired in his fight for the then-vacant crown with Carmen Basilio in San Francisco Aug. 28, 1959.

Last year the NBA withdrew recognition of Robinson as champion for failure to defend the title. New York and Massachusetts withdrew from the NBA and recognized Robinson as the titleholder. Pender then defeated Robinson—in 10 rounds—to become the two-state champion.

William Kincaid Rolls "300" Game On Club Alleys

William F. "Bill" Kincaid, 20, of Ridgeley, W. Va., rolled a perfect 300 game last night while duckpin bowling with his brother Charles on the Club Recreation Alleys, North Mechanic Street. There were several other witnesses to the performance.

Kincaid is in the U. S. Navy.

He is the eighth person to bowl a perfect game in the long history of the Club lanes. Eddie McKay rolled two 300 games there while the others with perfect games were Lou Bell, Eddie Conn, "Bud" McClellan, Thomas Mothersole and Dick Wotring.

Royals Lose, 137-136,

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Syracuse Nationals came from behind in the third quarter to win their third straight game Thursday night with a 137-126 victory over the Cincinnati Royals despite 41 points by Oscar Robertson.

Down 11 points at 95 - 84 with five minutes left in the quarter, the Nas outscored Cincinnati, 19-6 the rest of the period to take a 103-101 lead into the final period, then fattened the lead into a game-winning 11-point margin of their own.

Blackhawks Defeat Deaf School Team

Frank Lambert Gets 14 Goals, 29 Points For O'Connor Quint

Frank Lambert connected on 14 shots from the field and scored a total of 29 points last night in leading the Ridgeley High School Blackhawks to a 77-41 triumph over the West Virginia School for the Deaf in the opening game of the basketball season for both teams at Romney.

Coach Tom O'Connor's floormen jumped off to a 16-9 lead in the first period and never were headed. The Hawks held a 39-24 advantage at intermission and were in front 58-29 when the third quarter ended.

Delford Schoonover was runner-up to Lambert in scoring with 11 tallies.

Moses Vance paced the Lions in scoring with 13 tallies while Babby Frazier garnered 11 and Jerry Musick had ten to his credit.

The Blackhawks outscored the home team by 36 to 17 from the field. Ridgeley meshed 5 of 11 foul shots and the Lions converted 7 of 15 tosses.

Vance exited on personal fouls.

This was the first game of the season in the Potomac Valley Conference.

In the preliminary game, Ridgeley Junior High defeated the West Virginia School for the Deaf by the score of 43-23.

Buckeyes Triumph

ATHENS, Ohio (UPI) — NCAA champion Ohio State and All-America Jerry Lucas took up Thursday night where they left off last season, blitzing to an 85-64 win over state neighbor, Ohio University.

Lucas, a 6-8 center who starred with the victorious U.S. Olympic team in Rome this summer, scored 29 points as the Buckeyes opened their season in sparkling fashion.

Bunky Adams, a 6-2 senior forward, led the Bobcats with 18 points.

Penn State Quint Loses To Maryland

Terps Open Season With 64-47 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland held Penn State's scoring star to eight points Thursday night and defeated the Nittany Lions 64-47 in the basketball season opener for both schools.

Mark Dumars, a 5-10 senior who averaged 21.3 points per game for Penn State last season, was held to four goals on 18 attempts two Maryland sophomores who had the assignment at different times, Bob Eicher and George Hodor.

The first half was close all the way with the Terps never leading by more than five points. Penn State, ahead only twice very early in the game, was just one point back with five minutes gone in the second half when Maryland went on an eight-point scoring spree to pull ahead to stay.

Bill Stasiulatis of Maryland led all scorers with 19 points as he started for the Terps' Paul Jelus, last year's high scorer with a 12.5 average, who didn't start because of an injured ankle but played about five minutes of the second half. Jack Trueblood led Penn State with 11 points.

Maryland out - rebounded Penn State 54-49. Penn State had three men with four personal fouls with eight minutes remaining in the game, including Dumars who sat out 13 minutes all told, but only Earl Hoffman fouled out of the game.

Bally Ache's Owners Will Collect Million

NEW YORK (UPI)—They pay off the $1,000,000 on Bally Ache Friday.

Milton M. Weiss, president of the Animal Insurance Company of America, which carried the big policy on the horse, has the largest payment in insurance history on the life of an animal ready to be turned over to the syndicate which owned Bally Ache.

Leonard Fruchtman of Toledo, Ohio, who originally purchased Bally Ache for $2,600 and sold him to the syndicate for $1,250,000 but retained an interest, is expected at the insurance company office Friday to collect the check.

Bally Ache, winner of six stakes this year before he suffered an injury in training, died on Oct. 28 after he was shipped to Kentucky.

Gamecocks To Play Virginia Saturday

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Cool, brisk weather greeted the South Carolina Gamecocks Thursday as they went through their last major practice before finishing out the football season against Virginia here Saturday.

Coach Warren Giese warned his charges not to take the winless Cavaliers lightly.

Explorers Qualify Tom Miller Story

Goldberg Retires Basketball Records

By C. V. BURNS

BY ARRANGING a home-and-home series, both LaSalle and Bayard now have enough games on their schedules to qualify for the Potomac Valley Conference championship race.

Conference rules specify that a school must play a minimum of eight games to qualify and they must be home-and-home contests with four schools.

LaSalle meets Beall, Ridgeley, Paw Paw and Bayard each twice and has a single game with Fort Ashby. Bayard lists home-and-home engagements with Petersburg, Elk Garden, Southern and LaSalle.

Bayard came into the P.V.C. last season but could get booking with only two schools — Petersburg and Elk Garden. Coach Francis Maleonskie's quint swept both two-game series. The Grant Countians won 19 of 22 games last season.

It is believed that LaSalle is the first Cumberland high school ever to appear on a Bayard basketball schedule.

IT WAS JUST ten years that Tom Miller was struck by a taxi-cab on Walnut street, knocked 50 feet, suffered a fractured skull and spent five weeks, including Christmas, in Allegany Hospital.

Tom was only 7 years old at that time, was a pupil at St. Patrick's School and was on his way to the store when the accident occurred.

The same Tom Miller sparkled in the Allegany High School backfield this season, won the individual scoring championship of the C.V.A. League, made the all-C.V.A.L. first team and wound up his senior year in high school on a team that won ten consecutive games.

Tom's uncle, Francis Chapman, was one of LaSalle's basketball and football greats of about 20 years ago and earned a scholarship to Notre Dame University.

ONE of the best known football officials in nearby Pennsylvania is calling it quits after 33 years of service.

Dr. Dick Goldberg, Johnstown dentist, has decided he's had enough of whistle-tooting on the gridiron. He retired from the basketball scene three years ago.

A graduate of Pitt, Dr. Goldberg officiated in the Fort Hill-Allegany Thanksgiving Day games in 1943, 1944 and 1945. He teamed up with Bruce Fisher and Les Weigle in two games and with Fisher and "Tuffy" Baker in the other.

EMPLOYES of the Baltimore News-Post are very much interested in the forthcoming middleweight scrap at Boston between Terry Downes, the British champion, and Paul Pender, because Downes was once a copy boy on the Baltimore newspaper and used to spar on the roof with fellow employes.

WITH the basketball season now under way in the tri-state area here's a gander at some of the past team and individual records:

Most points scored by Cumberland high school player over regular 21-game schedule — Tommy Smith, Carver High, 495 in 1955. Also highest average 23.5.

Most points scored by Cumberland player in more than 21 games — Mickey Scaletta, LaSalle, 1960, total 520 in 24 games.

Highest point total in area for regular season — Bill Maphis, Romney, 652 in 21 games, 1958-59.

Highest average for one season in area — Bill Maphis, Romney, 31.5 in 1959-60. Scored 629 points in 20 games.

Most points scored in one season by P.V.C. player — Bill Maphis, Romney, 534 in 17 games, 1959-60.

Highest average for P.V.C. player — Bill Maphis, Romney, 31.4 in 1959-60.

Most points scored in P.V.C. game — Carl Hartman, Ridgeley, 62 in 1951.

Most field goals scored in P.V.C. game — Carl Hartman, Ridgeley, 29 in 1951.

Highest score in P.V.C. game — Fort Ashby 130, Capon Bridge 52 in 1957-58.

Most points scored in game by W.M.I. League player — John J. Long, Allegany, 52, at Greene street gym in 1924.

Most points in W.M.I. League season — Robert Kirk, Barton, 235 in 10 games, 1953. Also highest average 23.5.

Highest foul shooting average by W.M.I. League player — Jim Hansel, Beall, 33 out of 37 for .892 in 1959 season.

Highest score in W.M.I. League game — Barton 132, Midland 10, January 11, 1927.

Highest score by Cumberland school — LaSalle 129, Barton 33, in 1945.

Most points scored by player in high school career — Bill Maphis, Romney, 2,181 in 81 regular season games for 26.9 average. Including tournaments his 4-year total is 2,504 points for 92 games.

Longest winning streak by boys team in W.M.I. League — 44 games by Allegany, 1944 to 1948.

Lowest scoring game in modern basketball — Piedmont 10, Ridgeley 7, January 19, 1960 at Ridgeley.

Only undefeated team in tri-State area — Romney High School, 1959-60. Won 21 games during the regular season. Wound up with 27-0, including tournament games.

Highest score credited to girls team in area — Central of Lonaconing, 162, Ursuline Academy 3, in 1924.

Most points scored by girl player in one game — Marie Boyd, Central High, Lonaconing, 156 in 1924.

Longest winning streak by girls team in area — 65 games by Central of Lonaconing, ending in 1924. Modern record of 33 games by Fort Hill, ended in 1958-59 season.

the Cas Taylors

The final nominee for this year's Cas Taylors' Hall of Fame has been selected and he is . . . Robert "Bob" Gaffney, Allegany High School, and the sport, naturally, is football.

With the selection of Bob the committee has closed nominations for this year . . . Previously nominated were: John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, baseball; Cecil Grimes, softball; and, George "Joe" Wolfe, golf. From among these four will be chosen the first member of The Cas Taylors' Hall of Fame. The winner will be selected sometime in mid-January.

Just as with the Hall of Fame . . . there always is something interesting "doing" at The Cas Taylors'. The food and drinks are superb . . . color TV good . . . package and carryout service, fine . . . and always, always there is delightful or intriguing or stimulating (as you prefer) conversation about . . . well, about nearly everything. Join us in fun at The Cas Taylors' corner N. Mechanic and Valley Streets!

Record Of 343 Set Here First Day Last Year

Allegany County's 623, Garrett's 701 Best Season Marks

Maryland's seven-day gunning season for deer gets under way tomorrow at sunrise and winds up one week later.

The first of the seven-day seasons was launched a year ago when 611 whitetails were slain in Garrett county and 571 in Allegany.

A new single day record was established in Allegany when 343 whitetails were bagged on the first Saturday. This represented sixty per cent of the seven-day kill.

All other records in Western Maryland were set during six-day seasons. Allegany's highest total was 623 in 1957. Garrett's all-time high was 701 in 1958 while 320 were bagged the same year in Washington county.

Starting with 1955, Garrett county's kill has exceeded the 600 mark for five consecutive years. The five-year total is 3,289 for 31 hunting days.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, calls the attention of hunters to the calendar of hunting hours which appears in the hunting guide issued each hunting license holder.

Deer stamps must be purchased by hunters this year for the first time and must be pasted on the back of the license.

The four checking stations in Allegany county are located at Westernport Police Station, La-Vale Barracks of the Maryland State Police, Shipway's Inn, at Green Ridge and Hess' Service Station at Oldtown. This is the first time in ten years that Melvin Lewis' Store at Oldtown has not been designated as a checking station.

Garrett county's checking stations are at Edwards' Garage, Grantsville; Murphy's Service Station, Friendsville; Carroll Miller's Service Station, Oakland, and Matt Storey's, Deep Creek Lake.

Navy Will Open Drills Next Week For Bowl Battle

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Navy's football squad will open drills next Thursday for its Orange Bowl game with Missouri, working eight days here before taking a break for Christmas leave Dec. 17.

The Middies will regroup at Miami, Fla. at 6 p.m. Christmas Day, work out twice daily Dec. 26 and 27 and then once a day until the Jan. 2 game.

A Naval Academy official said Thursday efforts are being made to arrange for special round-trip train trips from this area for midshipmen to attend the game at their own expense, but that no final arrangements have been made.

Approximately 500 middies of the 3,600 then in the brigade, went to the Sugar Bowl when Navy played there Jan. 1, 1955. That was Navy's first bowl appearance in 32 years. The Middies defeated Mississippi 21-0.

The 1957 team played in the Cotton Bowl and defeated Rice 20-7. Navy's only other bowl appearance was in the Rose Bowl, Jan. 1, 1923, when it tied Washington 14-14.

Yankees Renew Pact

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The New York Yankees have renewed their working agreement with St. Petersburg of the Florida State League according to a joint announcement made Thursday by Yankee farm director Johnny Johnson and President Herb Smith of the Saints.

Set Record

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — William & Mary's Indians set a team scoring record Thursday night as they routed Hampden-Sydney's Tigers 113-73 in their 1960-61 basketball debut.

Kentucky Wins

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—The Kentucky Wildcats brushed past pesky Virginia Military Institute Thursday to open their schedule with a 72-56 victory and preserve a 33-game home opener win record.

Roger Newman, who started the game at guard and sparked the late drive after being moved to a forward spot, was high scorer with 20 points. Forward Joe Gedro was high for the Keydets with 14.

George Bayer Leads Florida Golf Tourney

Shoots Sub-Par 65 For 3-Stroke Edge

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—George Bayer, an early starter, blasted his way around the West Palm Beach Country Club course in a 7-under-par 65 Thursday and his score stood up for a 3-stroke lead in the first round of the West Palm Beach Open golf tournament.

The massive pro from Glen-eagles, Ill., carded a sizzling 6-under-par 30 on the out nine of the 6,745-yard course, and slipped off his other stroke with a birdie on the 10th.

Tied at 68 were Sam Snead of Boca Raton, Fla.; Joe Taylor of Charleston, W. Va., and Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla. One stroke behind that trio were Ted Kroll, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Bob Shave Jr., Willoughby, Ohio; Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa.; Tommy Aarons, Gainesville, Ga., and Henry Castillo, Tampa, Fla.

A total of 25 players bettered par, with five more at par figures. Arnold Palmer, who last Sunday captured the Mobile, Ala., Open to become the biggest one-year money winner with a total $73,716, was tied with 12 others in the 71 bracket, five strokes off the pace.

$50,000-$100,000 — The New York Yankees paid one of our largest bonuses ever" estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000—to sign Howard Kitt, 18-year-old left-handed pitcher sought by every major league club. The 6-foot, 3-inch, 195-pound sophomore at Columbia University had a career record of 40 victories and one defeat while pitching for his Oceanside, N.Y., High School and sandlot teams. He is signing autographs for neighborhood youngsters.

All U. S. Final Is First In 80 Years In Victorian

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) —Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis won their semi-final matches in the Victorian tennis championships Thursday to set up the first All-American final in the 80-year history of the tournament.

However, the day's activity once again was marred by a threat from the Italian team to withdraw from the rest of the tourney.

MacKay defeated Mike Sangster of England, 6-4, 10-8, 12-10, and Buchholz rallied from a two-set deficit to eliminate Chuck McKinley, also of St. Louis, 3-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

McKinley wasa the innocent cause of the trouble involving the Italian squad, when, during his quarter-final match against Nicola Pietrangeli, he asked referee Harold Cornish for permission to wear spikes.

Cornish refused at the time, but then acceded to a second request by McKinley after the first game of the fourth set. Pietrangeli insisted that Cornish should have waited until after the second game. Pietrangeli stalked off the court and the match was forfeited to McKinley. The Italian was leading two sets to one.

Pietrangeli and teammate Orlando Sirola are scheduled to play Australians Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson Saturday for the doubles title, but Jaroslav Drobny captain of the Italian Davis Cup team which plays the U. S. in the interzone final, threatened to withdraw his players from the Victorian tournament.

Drobny was upset over an article written for the Melbourne Sun Pictorial by Harry Hopman in which the manager of the Australian Davis Cup team criticized Drobny and Pietrangeli for forfeiting the match against McKinley.

Market Declines But Late Rally Cuts Down Losses

NEW YORK (UPI) — After taking it on the chin most of the day stocks rallied in the late rounds to shave their losses by a considerable margin.

The Dow-Jones industrial average, down close to 5½ points at one time, finished 2.66 lower at 594.56 while utility stocks rose rose 0.29 to 95.48. Rail issues, however, were belted for a large 1.46 to 127.88. Volume ran to 3,090,000 shares against 3,080,000 Wednesday.

Steel shares were hit the hardest as a group, most losing a point or more while Bethlehem dropped ⅛ point to 37⅞ and another new low. Chrysler, which declared a 50 cent extra dividend after the close, bucked the motor group by adding ⅛. American Motors fell 1⅛ despite a dividend boost Thursday but the firm reported lower earnings.

Ford dropped ½ point on news that the Treasury Department was reported to have asked the company to drop its plans to buy $359 million worth of stock of its British subsidiary.

Cities Service lost 2⅛ in the oils where Jersey managed to remain even at 38⅜.

A total of 1,220 issues were traded Thursday including 640 losers, 332 gainers and 248 which did not change. New lows climbed to 66 while new highs amounted to 13.

American Motors was the most actively traded stock followed by Jersey Standard Universal Oil Products up ½. NAFI up 2 and Studebaker-Packard off ⅛.

Red Wings' Frey Takes Swat Title

Rochester Player Has .317 Average

MONTREAL (UPI) — Jimmy Frey, a stocky left-handed hitting outfielder, was officially certified Thursday as the first Rochester Red Wing in six years to win at International League batting championship.

The 5-foot, 8-inch, 170-pound native of Cleveland finished the season with a .317 average, according to official figures released Thursday, and was one of only two players who batted .300 or better this year. Outfielder Jim Pendleton of Jersey City, with a .302 mark, was the other.

Frey, who played in 125 games for the third-place Red Wings, batted 441 times and made 140 hits, including 21 doubles, four triples and 16 homers. He knocked in 66 runs, drew 48 walks and struck out only 33 times. He's Rochester's first batting champion since Bill Virdon in 1954.

Outfielder Don Landrum of the Buffalo Bisons was the leader in four other departments while first-baseman Joe Altobelli of the Montreal Royals won the home run and runs batted in crowns.

Landrum, 24, topped the circuit with 112 runs scored, 178 hits, 35 doubles and 287 total bases. Altobelli's leading figures in the two key power departments were 31 homers and 105 runs batted in.

Jersey City's Louis Jackson led in triples with 12 and Bobby Morgan of Buffalo led in bases on balls with 81.

Jersey City had the best team batting average, .258, but the Bisons' offense actually was the league's most potent. The Bisons led the team figures with 236 doubles, were second in homers with 140 and led in runs scored with 689. Rochester was the team home run leader with 142.

Steve Brooks Posts Triple At Pimlico

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 1 (AP) — Veteran Steve Brooks starred here at the remodeled Pimlico race course today when he rode three winners, including Thomas W. Baker, Jr.'s Fresh Marble, who took the featured Sparrows Point Purse.

Working under topweight of 122 pounds in the seven-horse field, Fresh Marble had the lead soon after the break and led throughout while turning six furlongs in 1.12 1/5, despite bucking a strong headwind in the stretch.

Held down to $4.40 in the mutuel pool, Fresh Marble came to the finish line about two lengths in front of Idle Hour Farm's Idle Star, who placed about a half length to the good of Micahel Sakele's Saferris, the paddock tip of the field.

Brooks' previous winners were Weather Lady, who returned $13.80 in the fourth race, and Sun Spirit, who took the second heat at $9.00 for $2. He now has sixteen wins for the sixteen-day-old meeting.

Hartack Rides Three Winners

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Bill Hartack, aiming at a fourth national riding title, scored a triple before 7,371 fans at Tropical Park today, including the featured seventh race aboard Kentucky Bandit.

Kentucky Bandit, the 7-5 favorite, broke on the lead in the mile-and-70 yard race; opened up a big lead and then just lasted to score by a neck over Cosmic Boy. Cosmic Boy finished second, five lengths in front of Pinch of Fudge.

Hartack's other winners were High Spy ($7.10) in the first race and Statesmanship ($12.40) in the third.

Phils Sign Vincent

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies Thursday signed Al Vincent as a coach. He replaces Andy Cohen, released at the end of the 1960 season. Vincent managed the Miami Marlins in the International League last year.

Maryland State Is Grid Champ

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP)—Maryland State College has been declared 1960 football champion of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The Hawks finished the season with a 5-0-1 conference record and a Dickinson rating of 26.52. North Carolina A&T, defeated by North Carolina College Thanksgiving day, finished second with a 4-1-1 conference mark and a rating of 24.62.

The championship was the fourth for Maryland State grid teams. The school won the CIAA crown in 1954, 1955 and 1957.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to take this means of thanking all of our relatives, friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, John E. Kight. Also we wish to express our thanks to the Rev. Louis Emerick, Mrs. Martha Grimes, the pallbearers, those who furnished cars, those who sent flowers and cards, or contributed in any way.
Signed
Wife, Children and Sister

We desire to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of Martin J. Breighner. We especially wish to thank Rev. Tinsman, the organist and choir, those who sent floral tributes, the pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, we are indeed grateful.
MRS. MARTIN J. BREIGHNER AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary E. Breighner, who passed away 22 years ago, Dec. 2, 1938.
Twenty-two years have passed
Since that sad day,
When our dear mother was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts, she liveth still.
Sadly missed by her daughters,
MARY KOONTZ AND GRACE WAGNER

Ridgeley High School Cops PVC Cage Opener, 77-41

Romney High And Ridgeley Play Tonight

Piedmont To Visit Elk Garden; Cats Invade Fairmont

Roger Parker makes his bow as coach of the Romney High School Pioneers tonight when they oppose the Ridgeley Blackhawks in a Potomac Valley Conference game at Romney.

Graduation took Romney's entire squad of last season when the Hampshire Countians captured 27 consecutive games, including 17 in the conference, and Parker has a rebuilding task on his hands.

Ridgeley kicked off the lid last night by playing the West Virginia School for the Deaf.

Piedmont Opens Season

Piedmont High School, another team hard hit by graduation, launches its campaign tonight by meeting Paul Kalbaugh's Elk Garden High School quint on the latter's court. The Lions of Coach William "Huck" Miers captured 21 out of 23 games last season and finished as runners-up to unbeaten Romney in the P.V.C. Elk Garden dropped 15 of 21 contests last season.

Another new cage mentor gets his baptism of fire tonight when Harlan Hott leads his Franklin Panthers into action against Marlinton High School at Franklin. The Pendleton countians won 16 of 22 games last season under Curtis "Gus" Smith, who resigned after four seasons at the helm.

In other Friday night action, Arno Hott's Capon Bridge High floormen entertain Musselman High School, Berlin-Brothersvalley High tackles Hyndman High School at the latter place, "Pete" Vance's Wardensville High Warriors host Berkeley Springs High and the Alumni plays at Fort Ashby High School

Potomac At Fairmont

Potomac State College, winner of 26 out of 31 games last season, plays the first of six consecutive road games tonight with the Fairmont State College Falcons at Fairmont. This is the first of eight West Virginia State Conference for Coach Dana "Horse" Lough Catamounts. Tomorrow night Potomac opposes the Salem Tigers on the latter's court.

Giardello Upset By Peter Mueller

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI)—Peter Mueller of Cologne scored a major upset Thursday night when he outpointed Joey Giardello of New York in a 10-round bout at the Cologne Stadium.

Mueller, 33, weighed 156¼ pounds while Giardello tipped the scales at 157.

Mueller set the pace for virtually the entire bout. Giardello rallied strongly in the ninth but Mueller resumed his long-range stabbing attack in the 10th and won the decision easily.

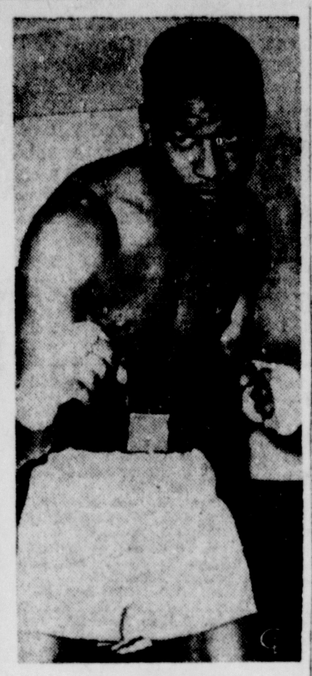
Knicks Turn Back Celtics, 116-111

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The New York Knickerbockers snapped Boston's nine-game winning streak Thursday night by defeating the Celtics, 116-111, in the opener of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at Convention Hall.

New York broke a 55-55 tie just before the half and increased its margin to 81 - 63 midway through the thisd period. But the Knicks had to fight off a determined Boston rally which cut the lead to 107-103 with four minutes remaining.

Willie Naulls, who was high scorer in the game with 25 points, Kenny Sears, who had 23, and Richie Guerin with 20, gathered the Knicks forces together and pulled out a 116-107 edge with 50 seconds to go. This was enough to insure New York's fourth consecutive triumph.

Gene Fullmer



Sugar Ray Robinson

ONCE AGAIN—For the third time, Gene Fullmer, recognized as the middleweight king by the NBA, and Sugar Ray Robinson, former champ, meet in an NBA title bout December 3 in Los Angeles. Ray has won the title five times.

Ray Robinson Is Reported In Top Condition

Fullmer 3-1 Choice In Saturday Fight

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There will be no alibis from Sugar Ray Robinson if champion Gene Fullmer whips him in their 15-round fight for the National Boxing Association version of the world middleweight title.

"We will have no excuses," declared Robinson's manager, George Gainsford, Thursday as Fullmer, from West Jordan, Utah, remained a 3-1 betting favorite in the nationally televised match Saturday night.

"Robinson trained harder in the last week than he did the entire time for the fight with Paul Pender," George said.

Pender, of Boston, twice outpointed Robinson earlier this year in bouts for the so-called world title recognized in Massachusetts and New York.

The two fighters stayed pretty well out of sight Thursday, 29-year-old Gene at his hideout in Los Angeles and 39-year-old Sugar Ray at his retreat east of here at Gilman Hot Springs.

"We are satisfied with Gene's condition. He's ready and there has been no recurrence of the muscle injury in his leg," said Manager Marv Jensen.

A pulled muscle in the right leg forced postponement from the original date in early October.

This will be Fullmer's fourth defense of the title he acquired in his fight for the then-vacant crown with Carmen Basilio in San Francisco Aug. 28, 1959.

Last year the NBA withdrew recognition of Robinson as champion for failure to defend the title. New York and Massachusetts withdrew from the NBA and recognized Robinson as the titleholder. Pender then defeated Robinson—in 10 rounds—to become the two-state champion.

William Kincaid Rolls "300" Game On Club Alleys

William F. "Bill" Kincaid, 20, of Ridgeley, W. Va., rolled a perfect 300 game last night while duckpin bowling with his brother Charles on the Club Recreation Alleys, North Mechanic Street. There were several other witnesses to the performance.

Kincaid is in the U. S. Navy.

He is the eighth person to bowl a perfect game in the long history of the Club lanes. Eddie McKay rolled two 300 games there while the others with perfect games were Lou Bell, Eddie Conn, "Bud" McClellan, Thomas Mothersole and Dick Wotring.

Royals Lose, 137-136,

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Syracuse Nationals came from behind in the third quarter to win their third straight game Thursday night with a 137-126 victory over the Cincinnati Royals despite 41 points by Oscar Robertson.

Down 11 points at 95 - 84 with five minutes left in the quarter, the Nas outscored Cincinnati, 19-6 the rest of the period to take a 103-101 lead into the final period, then fattened the lead into a game-winning 11-point margin of their own.

Blackhawks Defeat Deaf School Team

Frank Lambert Gets 14 Goals, 29 Points For O'Connor Quint

Frank Lambert connected on 14 shots from the field and scored a total of 29 points last night in leading the Ridgeley High School Blackhawks to a 77-41 triumph over the West Virginia School for the Deaf in the opening game of the basketball season for both teams at Romney.

Coach Tom O'Connor's floormen jumped off to a 16-9 lead in the first period and never were headed. The Hawks held a 39-24 advantage at intermission and were in front 58-29 when the third quarter ended.

Delford Schoonover was runner-up to Lambert in scoring with 11 tallies.

Moses Vance paced the Lions in scoring with 13 tallies while Babby Frazier garnered 11 and Jerry Musick had ten to his credit.

The Blackhawks outscored the home team by 36 to 17 from the field. Ridgeley meshed 5 of 11 foul shots and the Lions converted 7 of 15 tosses.

Vance exited on personal fouls.

This was the first game of the season in the Potomac Valley Conference.

In the preliminary game, Ridgeley Junior High defeated the West Virginia School for the Deaf by the score of 43-23.

Buckeyes Triumph

ATHENS, Ohio (UPI) — NCAA champion Ohio State and All-America Jerry Lucas took up Thursday night where they left off last season, blitzing to an 85-64 win over state neighbor, Ohio University.

Lucas, a 6-8 center who starred with the victorious U.S. Olympic team in Rome this summer, scored 29 points as the Buckeyes opened their season in sparkling fashion.

Bunky Adams, a 6-2 senior forward, led the Bobcats with 18 points.

Touch Grid Champs Presented Trophy

The High School Touch Football Champs, the Independents, were presented with a team trophy and each member was presented an individual award at City Hall on Thursday by C. Eugene Mason, Recreation Director.

The Independents won the championship by defeating Allegany Hi-Y in the playoffs in first season for the High School Division of the league.

Penn State Quint Loses To Maryland

Terps Open Season With 64-47 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland held Penn State's scoring star to eight points Thursday night and defeated the Nittany Lions 64-47 in the basketball season opener for both schools.

Mark Dumars, a 5-10 senior who averaged 21.3 points per game for Penn State last season, was held to four goals on 18 attempts two Maryland sophomores who had the assignment at different times, Bob Eicher and George Hodor.

The first half was close all the way with the Terps never leading by more than five points. Penn State, ahead only twice very early in the game, was just one point back with five minutes gone in the second half when Maryland went on an eight-point scoring spree to pull ahead to stay.

Bill Stasiulatis of Maryland led all scorers with 19 points as he started for the Terps' Paul Jelus, last year's high scorer with a 12.5 average, who didn't start because of an injured ankle but played about five minutes of the second half. Jack Trueblood led Penn State with 11 points.

Maryland out - rebounded Penn State 54-49. Penn State had three men with four personal fouls with eight minutes remaining in the game, ineluding Dumars who sat out 13 minutes all told, but only Earl Hoffman fouled out of the game.

Bally Ache's Owners Will Collect Million

NEW YORK (UPI)—They pay off the $1,000,000 on Bally Ache Friday.

Milton M. Weiss, president of the Animal Insurance Company of America, which carried the big policy on the horse, has the largest payment in insurance history on the life of an animal ready to be turned over to the syndicate which owned Bally Ache.

Leonard Fruchtman of Toledo, Ohio, who originally purchased Bally Ache for $2,600 and sold him to the syndicate for $1,250,000 but retained an interest, is expected at the insurance company office Friday to collect the check.

Bally Ache, winner of six stakes this year before he suffered an injury in training, died on Oct. 28 after he was shipped to Kentucky.

Gamecocks To Play Virginia Saturday

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Cool, brisk weather greeted the South Carolina Gamecocks Thursday as they went through their last major practice before finishing out the football season against Virginia here Saturday.

Coach Warren Giese warned his charges not to take the winless Cavaliers lightly.

Car Production Tops Same Week Of 1959

DETROIT (UPI)—Car production in the United States this week was estimated Thursday by Automotive News at 141,000 units, a 26.9 per cent increase over last week's holiday-curtailed production.

Production for the same week last year was 55,525 units.

The trade paper said compacts would account for 33.3 per cent of this week's output.

Truck production for this week was estimated at 21,819 units, compared with 17,077 last week and 11,391 in the same week a year ago.

PX Off-Limits For Scotch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Thursday halted sales of Scotch, Canadian and other foreign liquors in U. S. military echanges overseas to help stem the flow of dollars to other countries.

But it indicated it might continue to permit the sale of foreign alcoholic beverages in officers' and non-commissioned officers' clubs at home and abroad so long as the liquor is consumed on the premises.

The action was part of the administration's sweeping ban on sale of foreign goods in post exchanges and similar commercial establishments of the military. Also affected are such items as Swiss watches, British sweaters and Oriental jewelry.

The order will hit liquor-consuming servicemen in the pocketbook. American military stores overseas long have sold foreign beverages at low, tax-free prices.

But as soon as present stocks are ehausted, such potables as Scotch and Canadian whisky, French cognac, British gin, and Danish and Dutch beer will disappear from the shelves of military stores.

They are a casualty of President Eisenhower's program for slowing down the flow of dollars to foreign countries. Under the program, the President has ordered the number of servicemen's dependents overseas cut from 484,000 to 200,000.

Health Department Merger Backed

BALTIMORE (AP)—A plan to put the State departments of health and mental hygiene under a single board received tentative approval Thursday from the directors of both agencies.

A proposal last spring would have installed a director over both departments. The latest plan would leave both directors in their present jobs but would have them report to a single board charged with policy matters.

Dr. Isadore Tuerk, commissioner of mental hygiene whose objections blocked action on the previous proposal, said his only concern "was that it might mean the down-grading" of some functions. He said the new approach seemed to offer "a chance to eplore what can be achieved by unified activity."

Dr. Perry F. Prather, chairman of the State Board of Health, said "Dr. Tuerk and I agree on this as a phase-in or trial approach."

Cocke Will Become FDIC Boss On Jan. 20

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Erle Cocke Sr. of Atlanta, a director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., will become chairman on Jan. 20 with the inauguration of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

This was announced Thursday by Jesse P. Wolcott, the present chairman, who will remain as a director of the government agency.

Cocke, a Democrat, and Wolcott, a Republican, are presidential appointees. The third director is the comptroller of the currency, Ray M. Gidney.

Democrats To Start Hiring In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Democrats probably will be hired by one state agency to fill vacancies even before the Republican chief of the department leaves office.

West Virginia Commissioner Morris C. Shawkey said Thursdaya he would seek recommendations from Democratic county chairmen for jobs in liquor stores, etc., in the final month and a half of the state GOP administration.

Shawkey emphasized that Republicans would continue to get first call for the jobs but doubted there would be many, if any, takers with so little tenure guaranteed before the Barron administration takes over.

Shawkey said there would be an advantage to employing Democrats in that it would make for a more efficient turnover of the administration.

Market Declines But Late Rally Cuts Down Losses

NEW YORK (UPI) — After taking it on the chin most of the day stocks rallied in the late rounds to shave their losses by a considerable margin.

The Dow-Jones industrial average, down close to 5½ points at one time, finished 2.66 lower at 594.56 while utility stocks rose rose 0.29 to 95.48. Rail issues, however, were belted for a large 1.46 to 127.88. Volume ran to 3,090,000 shares against 3,080,000 Wednesday.

Steel shares were hit the hardest as a group, most losing a point or more while Bethlehem dropped ⅛ point to 37⅞ and another new low. Chrysler, which declared a 50 cent extra dividend after the close, bucked the motor group by adding ⅛. American Motors fell 1⅛ despite a dividend boost Thursday but the firm reported lower earnings.

Ford dropped ½ point on news that the Treasury Department was reported to have asked the company to drop its plans to buy $359 million worth of stock of its British subsidiary.

Cities Service lost 2⅛ in the oils where Jersey managed to remain even at 38⅜.

A total of 1,220 issues were traded Thursday including 640 losers, 332 gainers and 248 which did not change. New lows climbed to 66 while new highs amounted to 13.

American Motors was the most actively traded stock followed by Jersey Standard Universal Oil Products up ½, NAFI up 2 and Studebaker-Packard off ⅛.

Local Woman Hurt Seriously In Hit-Run Case

Miss Fahey Taken To Sacred Heart

Miss Marguerite C. Fahey, 56, of 447 Cumberland Street, was struck and seriously injured by a hit-and-run driver in the first block of Cumberland Street shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday.

City police had been unable late last night to find any eyewitness to the accident. Edwin Hartman, 1083 McMullen Highway, who was driving along Cumberland Street between Washington and Fayette streets behind the Algonquin Hotel, was the first witness to observe Miss Fahey lying in the street about four or five feet from the curb, near the point where Fayete Street begins.

Another motorist driving in the same direction, Albert D. Darby, a neighbor of Miss Fahey who lives at 507 Cumberland Street and is a reporter for The Cumberland News, arrived immediately after Mr. Hartman.

Calls For Ambulance

Mr. Hartman got a taxi driver, stopped in front of Hirsch Brothers, 109 Cumberland Street, to radio his office and request an ambulance at the scene while Mr. Darby kept traffic away from the injured woman, who was lying curled up in the street.

The passing motorists had been attracted to the scene first by some of Miss Fahey's packages which were blowing around in the street. One was a topcoat, which apparently had just been cleaned, and was wrapped in the usual cleaner's bag which had been torn in the impact.

Another passing motorist who offered first aid until the ambulance arrived was Dr. Thomas F. Lewis, who had just left his office in the nearby Algonquin Hotel.

Police Officer William A. Norris was the first law enforcement officer to arrive on the scene. He measured skid marks, apparently laid down by the hit-and-run car, at about 45 feet. Miss Fahey was lying about 10 feet from the point where the skidmarks ended.

Clues Being Checked

Detective Kenneth W. Morrissey and Police Officer Harold E. Gibson arrived a short time later. They found fragments of green paint in the street which they believe may have come from the missing vehicle. A little girl living in the house at 32 Cumberland Street said she heard screeching brakes outside her residence about 5:10 p. m. and police figure that was about the time of the accident.

Miss Fahey apparently had walked to the point from the E. V. Coyle Furniture Company, 45 Baltimore Street, where she was employed as a saleswoman. The store closed at 5 p. m.

Lying some distance from her were her shoes, the coat and torn cleaning sack, a package from a downtown department store, her pocketbook and wallet.

When she regained consciousness, she first asked what she was doing in the street. Then she asked Dr. Lewis whether she would be able to work today.

At Sacred Heart Hospital, where she was taken in shock, her injuries were described as chin and neck cuts, brush burns, possible compound fracture of her left leg and possible internal injuries.

Salvation Army Carolers

These Salvation Army workers began a Christmas carol program in two neighborhoods of the city last night, accompanied by Sarah May Price, left, and Patricia Shadwell, who sold copies of the War Cry. The musicians are Mrs. Lt. Ronald Alexander, Patricia Capel, George Price and Lt. Ronald Alexander. The carols will be presented again tonight.

Study Commission Head Has Varied Background

Edwin Warfield III, the Howard County farmer and publisher who was appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes as chairman of the state commission to study the problem of the expansion of the University of Maryland, has had a colorful career in his fewer than 40 years.

Mr. Warfield will be in Cumberland Monday to discuss the recommendations of the so-called Warfield Commission at a meeting of the Allegany County PTA Council at 7:30 p. m. at West Side School.

The visiting speaker will be introduced by J. Goodloe Jackson, who is president of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Mr. Jackson explained that Mr. Warfield began his collegiate education at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. After his Air Force service in World War II, he transferred to the University of Maryland, from which he was graduated in 1950.

During World War II he was shot down in the Tokyo Bay while on a strafing mission and spent four days on a life raft battling a tropical storm and hungry sharks. He eventually was rescued by a Navy patrol bomber.

After his graduation from the University of Maryland he intended a career in farming on the family's 1,300-acre farm near Lisbon in Howard County. The death of his father plunged him into the responsibilities of publishing the Daily Record, the daily publication for lawyers and businessmen in Baltimore and elsewhere in Maryland.

Mr. Warfield also serves as commander of the State Air National Guard.

The commission which bears his name is remembered primarily for its recommendation that the state teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury be converted into the branches of the University of Maryland. This proposal has met with objection, particularly from the State Board of Education, which has come up with an alternate plan. Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, addressed the County PTA Council recently in Mt. Savage on the State Board of Education's plan.

New Airline To Base Planes In Cumberland

Algonquin Airlines, which started scheduled service between Washington and Cumberland November 9, is revising its schedule so planes can be based at the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

T. J. Whelan, general manager of the lines, told the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce yesterday that the new schedule will become effective Monday and that the change is being made so planes can leave for Washington earlier in the morning.

The Monday through Friday schedule, beginning December 5, follows:

Morning Flights

Leave Cumberland 8:15 a.m., arrive at Washington National Airport 9 a.m.

Leave Washington 9:15 a.m., arrive in Cumberland 10 a.m.

Afternoon Flights

Leave Cumberland 4 p.m., arrive Washington 5 p.m.

Leave Washington 5:30 p.m., arrive in Cumberland 6:20 p.m.

No service is planned on Saturdays and only afternoon flights will be scheduled on Sundays, the Chamber of Commerce was told.

May Boost Use

The change in the schedule is expected to boost use of the air service, as it will give business and professional people more time to transact business in Washington and Baltimore.

Officials of the new airline conferred with Civil Aeronautics Board officials on Tuesday to seek the subsidy held by Allegany Airlines, which halted service to the Cumberland Municipal Airport early in 1959.

The meeting was arranged by U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, who announced plans for asking the postmaster general to transfer Allegheny's mail subsidy shortly after the line decided to halt Cumberland service.

Algonquin Airlines purchased two DeHavilland Doves to provide the Cumberland air service.

Boy, 16, Dies; Rabbit Fever Is Suspected

Berlin, Pa., Youth Buried Yesterday

A 16-year-old Berlin, Pa., youth died Monday in Meyersdale Community Hospital and tularemia, or rabbit fever, is suspected as the cause of his death, attending physicians said.

Robert Lee Rhodes, RD 2, Berlin, was buried yesterday in the Odd Fellows Cemetery there following services which were conducted by Rev. Herald V. Seese at the Johnson and Son Funeral Home in Berlin.

The youth became ill on November 12 after he had killed and cleaned several rabbits he shot while hunting. His condition became steadily worse and he was admitted to the hospital where he succumbed November 28.

The disease, rare and accompanied by high and irregular fever, is caused by microorganisms transmitted to animals by insects. It is not contagious but human beings can catch the disease by handling infected animals. The fever, not always fatal, lasts two or three weeks and aftereffects sometimes remain for months.

Physicians who attended the boy said an autopsy was performed, but added it will be several days before laboratory tests can ascertain if rabbit fever actually was the cause of death.

Meanwhile, many nimrods in the Berlin area are foregoing rabbit and squirrel hunting in the event the disease may be prevalent in animals throughout the area.

Young Rhodes was a son of Henry W. and Katherin (Wyand) Rhodes and was a member of the Trinity Church of Christ of Berlin, the Berlin - Brothersvalley High School band, the 4-H Club and the Future Farmers of America of Berlin.

He is survived by his parents; a brother, Harry E. Rhodes, Fort Knox, Ky.; a sister, Adeline Rhodes, St. Louis, Mo.; and his maternal grandfather, Harry Wyand of Berlin.

LaVale Gets Custom Fire Engine

LaVale Volunteer Fire Company last night received its new $22,000 custom-built fire engine which members drove here from the factory in Kenosha, Wis.

Chief James Loar and three others left last weekend for Wisconsin and drove the vehcile back, stopping for two days at College Park where the engine was fully equipped.

The new engine, a 2½-ton truck, will be taken to Bedford, Pa., this morning for a motor check. It will be returned to the LaVale station Saturday evening and is expected to be put into service following the fire underwriters' tests on Wednesday.

The new truck has a 750-gallon-per-minute pump; a 600-gallon booster pump; 1,200 feet of 2½-inch hose, 600 feet of 1½-inch hose; a 2,500-watt power plant with three lights; two booster reels with 200 feet of hose on each reel; compartments across the back and along the sides; and will utilize the new penetrator-type siren and radio-loudspeaker system.

The fire company has recently conducted a fund drive, held auctions and varous dances and sales to help defray the cost of the new engine.

Chief Loar said George Boch, William Detrick and Vincent Self accompanied him on the trip. The group took 24 hours to drive from Wisconsin to College Park and another four hours to return to LaVale.

Weather-Delayed Express Riders Reach Romney

Two Pony Express riders, slowed by winter weather and the mountains of West Virginia, passed through Romney last evening about 7:30 p.m., State Police reported.

The two riders had been expected to arrive in the Hampshire County seat about noon yesterday but experienced considerable difficulty getting over the mountains, they said.

The Pony Express delivery originated in Los Angeles on Veterans Day and is scheduled to terminate in Washington, D.C.

Sponsored by the American Legion the modern version of the old-time mail delivery is made up of six riders who hope to deliver a message to President Eisenhower on December 7, the 19th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

The message, inscribed on leather and written by a West Coast minister, urges the administration to take a strong stand against Communism and calls for a renewed faith in God and the principles of freedom.

Gas Rate Hike Is Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Power Commission Thursday suspended until May 1 a proposed $3,552,000, or 5.8 per cent, annual wholesale natural gas rate increase by Hope Natural Gas Co., Clarksburg, W. Va.

Hope had proposed to make the higher rates effective Thursday. They would affect six utility customers in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

World Service Center Truck To Be Here

A relief truck from the Church World Service Center at New Windsor will collect materials Monday or Tuesday at Living Stone Church of the Brethren, West Second and North Cedar streets.

Rev. Connell T. Chaney, pastor, said clothing, shoes, and bedding are especially needed.

Master Plan Needed For Urban Renewal

Engineering Firm Outlines Program

The passage of the Urban Renewal referendum will make it possible for Cumberland to participate—"but you must have a master plan," James J. O'Donnell, chairman of the State Planning Department, said here last night.

Mr. O'Donnell and Richard Gucker, planning engineer for the department, made the statement at a meeting with the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and representatives of the Mayor and Council.

He said half of the cost of such a study could be secured from the government under the Federal 701 program, which is handled through the State Planning Department.

A number of Maryland cities, including Laurel, Annapolis and Frederick, have already started such a plan.

He told the Planning Commission the city will have to make an analysis of what it has and what it wants to achieve.

Cost Is Shared

Mr. O'Donnell said the local participation in the cost of making a master plan is about 35 per cent, since his department contributes services which represent about 15 per cent of the cost.

It was pointed out that the 701 program is available only to units of less than 50,000, so that Allegany County would not qualify for federal help on planning.

Mr. O'Donnell stressed that it would be a great benefit if planning efforts of the city and county were coordinated.

There was some discussion on the possibility of having the same staff do the planning for the city and county in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Needs Own Plan

Albert S. Paye, Planning Commission chairman, said having the same staff to do the work would be a neat solution.

Cumberland, of course, would have to have its own plan, and it was pointed out that the question of priorities might arise if one staff was doing the work for both units.

Mr. O'Donnell told the city delegation his department will be glad to help in any way it could.

Earlier yesterday, the state officials, together with James B. Woglom and George C. Wefing, of the Morris Knowles Inc., planning engineering firm, toured the city to get a picture of current problems.

Cites Possibilities

Mr. Wefling said the tour indicated the possibility of urban renewal for revitalizing the main business area and providing an industrial park complex, and that any plan should take the above possibilities into account.

For an Urban Renewal program, he said, Cumberland will have to have a Workable Program for the elimination of blighted areas, comprehensive community planning, plans for rehousing of families affected, financing and codes and ordinances, and a plan of action.

Mr. Woglom outlined the work a consulting firm such as he represents would do to come up with a master plan, and promised to present to the commission early in January a proposal for the planning work.

To Give Report

There will be no cost to the city, he said, for the preliminary report.

While here, the representatives of the planning firm were presented with all existing data, including the master plan made some years ago by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore.

This firm, Mr. Paye reported, has asked to meet with city officials in the interest of making a master plan.

Mr. Paye said a meeting with the Baltimore firm will be set during the next few weeks.

Street Commissioner John J. Long said he was "much interested" and that such a long-range plan should have been made many

NELSON T. OFFUTT

Garrett County Man Heads Md. Heart Campaign

A prominent Maryland insurance executive, Nelson T. Offutt, will lead the 1961 Heart Fund Drive in Maryland. Mr. Offutt's acceptance of the post was announced by James W. Bishop, president of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association.

Mr. Offutt is a past-president of the Heart Association of Maryland, and is a native of and frequent visitor to Garrett County.

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Offutt pointed out that local Heart Fund contributions will make possible the support of heart research in Maryland, and aid scientists in clinics and university laboratories throughout the nation.

This year, the Heart Association is providing $130,000 for the support of research projects in Maryland laboratories.

Research, Mr. Offutt said, has top priority in the Heart Association's program, and in the past 12 years has been responsible for great progress in saving hearts through new methods of diagnosis, treatment and prevention. Additionally, he said, Heart Fund dollars support broad programs of public and professional education and community service "which bring the benefits of research back to all of us."

Mr. Offutt will direct the work of an estimated 30,000 volunteers in Maryland communities expected to take part in the state's 13th Heart Fund campaign.

The Heart Fund has grown spectacularly, according to Mr. Offutt, since the first Maryland campaign in 1949. "This growth is a reflection of increasing public confidence that heart and blood vessel diseases can be overcome," he said. "Although great scientific advances have given new hope that further controls and possible prevention of some heart disorders will be achieved within the present decade, deaths from cardiovascular diseases each year still exceed the number of deaths from all other causes combined."

Mr. Offutt, who served as president of the Maryland Heart unit in 1958-59, is an alumnus of the University of Virginia, and a member of the Elkridge and Maryland clubs. He is a member of the campaign advisory committee of the American Heart Association. He has been a member of the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland since 1953, and served as chairman of the association's finance committee from 1956 through 1958.

Mr. Offutt received the distinguished service medal of the American Heart Association and Heart Association of Maryland in 1959.

Speaker Gets Kiwanians In Outer Space

William Ellerbe Buford, head of the flight mechanics section of the Dyna-Soar program of The Martin Company in Baltimore, figuratively got members of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club into outer space yesterday with a somewhat baffling comparison of the ICBM and the space airplane.

Mr. Buford pointed out that intercontinental ballistic missiles such as the Titan, which Martin produces, are primarily weapons. The ultimate objective of an ICBM is to take an atomic warhead to the target.

However, with a space airplane such as the Dyna-Soar, the primary object is exploration possibly leading to eventual interplanetary travel. He did mention that it could be used as a weapon although that is not its main purpose. The Martin Company is developing the booster for the Dyna-Soar and is working in conjunction with the Boeing Aircraft Corporation.

Another contrast between the two outer space facilities is that safety is given much greater emphasis in the Dyna-Soar development because it is designed to carry a man and the designers certainly want to bring the space pioneer back to earth.

Mr Buford told the Kiwanians that the Dyna-Soar is really a glider as it has no engine for thrust. It is equipped with a small engine for escape possibilities in case of trouble.

He would not give an answer when questioned as to when the Dyna-Soar might become operational.

Winter Takes Toehold In Garrett Co.

Highways Covered, Travel Dangerous

Winter weather began taking a toehold in Western Maryland yesterday, and, as usual, Garrett County bore the brunt of the wind, biting cold and snow.

Snow which began falling Wednesday continued throughout yesterday, piling to a depth of eight inches in the Oakland and Grantsville areas.

It was still snowing last night and continued flurries are expected today. The snow also is expected eastward into Allegany County today.

Highways are treacherous in Garrett County and parts of Allegany County. State Police recommended that motorists use chains or snow tires. Some freezing also is reported in the mountains.

Trucks, Equipment Out

The State Roads Commission had 35 men and 18 pieces equipment salting and cindering roads in Garrett County yesterday. A patrol truck and two crews worked throughout the night.

West of Guntertown in Garrett County, U.S. Route 40 was reported only about 30 per cent bare and U.S. 50 about 40 per cent bare. All of the county's secondary roads are almost completely covered with snow.

Big Savage Mountain had temperatures of 18 degrees with about six inches of snow. The snow measured only about 3½ inches east of Guntertown into Frostburg in Allegany County.

Highways in Allegany County are about 75 per cent clear, police said, although snow treads and chains are urged for the Frostburg area where streets became glazed with a thin covering of snow.

Cumberland Has Flurries

Cumberland, meanwhile, had only snow flurries with temperatures ranging from a low of 26 degrees to a high of 31. Some wind gusts up to 35 miles per hour were recorded in the Queen City.

Garrett County temperatures ranged from 17 to 22 degrees throughout the day. Readings elsewhere were in the high 20s and low 30s. Some snow was reported in Pennsylvania, but clearing was noted there last night.

West Virginia mountains were snow-covered and roads were dangerous along the slopes. The West Virginia lowlands reported snow flurries and high winds during the day with temperatures in the low 30s.

Two inches of snow fell in Elkins, W.Va., and from two to three inches were reported in Thomas, W. Va., and Deal, Pa.

Forecast for today is fair skies and slightly warmer with afternoon temperatures ranging from 30 degrees in Garrett County to the low 40s elsewhere.

Chamber Names Local Downtown Renewal Unit

C. William Gilchrist has accepted the chairmanship of the downtown renewal committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, according to C. M. Sanner, president.

The newly appointed committee, Mr. Gilchrist said, will develop a practical course of action which can show some immediate results. The over-all purpose of the committee is to make the downtown cleaner, better looking and easier to move about it.

"Our job," Mr. Gilchrist said yesterday, "is to examine the physical condition of the area, block by block, and develop a plan for improvement. We will have to determine what financing is necessary and what part the individual and government agencies can assume in making the necessary changes."

"Recent suggestions made by the Chamber for improvement of the appearance and upkeep of curbs, sidewalks and streets is the first step. Unless we can make everyone aware of the problem and the importance of doing this job, it will be too big a task. A few people cannot do it. It will take a lot of doing with many people helping."

In announcing the appointment R. C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber, said several local wags have suggested that the fastest way to get this project under way is with a good fire, but "we are convinced the job can be done just as effectively, if a little slower, by Mr. Gilchrist, his committee and many others who will be asked for their help."

Others on the committee are Irwin Pariser, co-chairman, former Judge George Henderson, Dr. William T. Fridinger, Charles L. George, Mayor J. Edwin Keech, John H. Mosner, Earl M. Nonenmann, Albert S. Paye, Simon Rosenbaum, G. Louis Spoerl, E. A. Lindsay, Dr. Leo H. Ley, Hugh D. Shires and Morton Peskin.

Boy, 14, Fourth Heart Victim In Family

A 14-year-old Allegany High School student became the fourth member of his family to die of a heart condition within eight years.

The victim, John Michael McFarlane of 705 Gephart Drive, succumbed last night in Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient since Saturday. He had been ill about 10 days.

The ninth-grade student was a member of Centre Street Methodist Church. He apparently had a heart condition from rheumatic fever, a similar condition which took the lives of an older brother and sister.

The boy's father, David McFarlane, also died of a heart attack.

Each of the three died in April, the brother, David C. McFarlane succumbing on April 10, 1952 at the age of eight. The sister, Judy McFarlane, died April 24, 1956 at the age of seven; and the father was 44 when he died on April 13, 1957.

J. Michael McFarlane was born June 9, 1946, in Cumberland, a son of Mrs. Helen (Kershen) McFarlane, and the late David McFarlane.

Besides his mother he is survived by a sister, Melva Suzzane McFarlane, at home.

The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Fellowship Event Set By Bible Class

The annual fellowship dinner of the Duke Memorial Bible Class will be held today at 6 p.m. in Central YMCA.

Rev. Carlton M. Harris, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church will be the principal speaker at the event which will be attended by more than 75 persons.

Members of the Duke Memorial Bible Class Orchestra, directed by Russell Paupe, will be special guests at the dinner.

Music will include "Bless This House," and "I Walk Where Jesus Walked," sung by Mrs. Jacqua Day, accompanied by Miss Mary Elizabeth Weese.

H. Scott Oster, president of the class, will welcome guests and J. Walter McKee, secretary, will be the toastmaster.

Discuss Planning Problems

Albert S. Paye, right, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, points out one of the city's planning problems to Street Commissioner John J. Long, left. George O. Hollar, commission member, and James J. O'Donnell, chairman of the State Planning Commission, during a meeting in City Hall last night. Mr. O'Donnell pledged full cooperation with the city in planning work. Development of a master plan for the city's future was discussed last night.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to take this means of thanklug all of our relatives, friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, John E. Kight. Also we wish to express our thanks to the Rev. Louis Emerick, Mrs. Martha Grimes, the pallbearers, those who furnished cars, those who sent flowers and cards, or contributed in any way.
Signed
Wife, Children and Sister

We desire to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of Martin J. Breighner. We especially wish to thank Rev. Tinsman, the organist and choir, those who sent floral tributes, the pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, we are indeed grateful.
MRS. MARTIN J. BREIGHNER AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary E. Breighner, who passed away 22 years ago, Dec. 2, 1938.
Twenty-two years have passed
Since that sad day,
When our dear mother was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts, she liveth still.
Sadly missed by her daughters,
MARY KOONTZ AND GRACE WAGNER

Car Production Tops Same Week Of 1959

DETROIT (UPI)—Car production in the United States this week was estimated Thursday by Automotive News at 141,000 units, a 26.9 per cent increase over last week's holiday-curtailed production.

Production for the same week last year was 55,525 units.

The trade paper said compacts would account for 33.3 per cent of this week's output.

Truck production for this week was estimated at 21,819 units, compared with 17,077 last week and 11,391 in the same week a year ago.

PX Off-Limits For Scotch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Thursday halted sales of Scotch, Canadian and other foreign liquors in U. S. military echanges overseas to help stem the flow of dollars to other countries.

But it indicated it might continue to permit the sale of foreign alcoholic beverages in officers' and non-commissioned officers' clubs at home and abroad so long as the liquor is consumed on the premises.

The action was part of the administration's sweeping ban on sale of foreign goods in post echanges and similar commercial establishments of the military. Also affected are such items as Swiss watches, British sweaters and Oriental jewelry.

The order will hit liquor - consuming servicemen in the pocketbook. American military stores overseas long have sold foreign beverages at low, tax-free prices.

But as soon as present stocks are ehausted, such potables as Scotch and Canadian whisky, French cognac, British gin, and Danish and Dutch beer will disappear from the shelves of military stores.

They are a casualty of President Eisenhower's program for slowing down the flow of dollars to foreign countries. Under the program, the President has ordered the number of servicemen's dependents overseas cut from 484,000 to 200,000.

Health Department Merger Backed

BALTIMORE (AP)—A plan to put the State departments of health and mental hygiene under a single board received tentative approval Thursday from the directors of both agencies.

A proposal last spring would have installed a director over both departments. The latest plan would leave both directors in their present jobs but would have them report to a single board charged with policy matters.

Dr. Isadore Tuerk, commissioner of mental hygiene whose objections blocked action on the previous proposal, said his only concern "was that it might mean the down-grading" of some functions. He said the new approach seemed to offer "a chance to eplore what can be achieved by unified activity."

Dr. Perry F. Prather, chairman of the State Board of Health, said "Dr. Tuerk and I agree on this as a phase-in or trial approach."

Cocke Will Become FDIC Boss On Jan. 20

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Erle Cocke Sr. of Atlanta, a director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., will become chairman on Jan. 20 with the inauguration of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

This was announced Thursday by Jesse P. Wolcott, the present chairman, who will remain as a director of the government agency.

Cocke, a Democrat, and Wolcott, a Republican, are presidential appointees. The third director is the comptroller of the currency, Ray M. Gidney.

Democrats To Start Hiring In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Democrats probably will be hired by one state agency to fill vacancies even before the Republican chief of the department leaves office.

West Virginia Commissioner Morris C. Shawkey said Thursday he would seek recommendations from Democratic county chairmen for jobs in liquor stores, etc., in the final month and a half of the state GOP administration.

Shawkey emphasized that Republicans would continue to g t first call for the jobs but doubted there would be many, if any, takers with so little tenure guaranteed before the Barron administration takes over.

Shawkey said there would be an advantage to employing Democrats in that it would make for aaa more efficient turnover of the administration.

Local Woman Hurt Seriously In Hit-Run Case

Miss Fahey Taken To Sacred Heart

Miss Marguerite C. Fahey, 56, of 447 Cumberland Street, was struck and seriously injured by a hit-and-run driver in the first block of Cumberland Street shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday.

City police had been unable late last night to find any eyewitness to the accident. Edwin Hartman, 1083 McMullen Highway, who was driving along Cumberland Street between Washington and Fayette streets behind the Algonquin Hotel, was the first witness to observe Miss Fahey lying in the street about four or five feet from the curb, near the point where Fayete Street begins.

Another motorist driving in the same direction, Albert D. Darby, a neighbor of Miss Fahey who lives at 507 Cumberland Street and is a reporter for The Cumberland News, arrived immediately after Mr. Hartman.

Calls For Ambulance

Mr. Hartman got a taxi driver, stopped in front of Hirsch Brothers, 109 Cumberland Street, to radio his office and request an ambulance at the scene while Mr. Darby kept traffic away from the injured woman, who was lying curled up in the street.

The passing motorists had been attracted to the scene first by some of Miss Fahey's packages which were blowing around in the street. One was a topcoat, which apparently had just been cleaned, and was wrapped in the usual cleaner's bag which had been torn in the impact.

Another passing motorist who offered first aid until the ambulance arrived was Dr. Thomas F. Lewis, who had just left his office in the nearby Algonquin Hotel.

Police Officer William A. Norris was the first law enforcement officer to arrive on the scene. He measured skid marks, apparently laid down by the hit-and-run car, at about 45 feet. Miss Fahey was lying about 10 feet from the point where the skidmarks ended.

Clues Being Checked

Detective Kenneth W. Morrissey and Police Officer Harold E. Gibson arrived a short time later. They found fragments of green paint in the street which they believe may have come from the missing vehicle. A little girl living in the house at 32 Cumberland Street said she heard screeching brakes outside her residence about 5:10 p. m. and police figure that was about the time of the accident.

Miss Fahey apparently had walked to the point from the E. V. Coyle Furniture Company, 45 Baltimore Street, where she was employed as a saleswoman. The store closed at 5 p. m.

Lying some distance from her were her shoes, the coat and torn cleaning sack, a package from a downtown department store, her pocketbook and wallet.

When she regained consciousness, she first asked what she was doing in the street. Then she asked Dr. Lewis whether she would be able to work today.

At Sacred Heart Hospital, where she was taken in shock, her injuries were described as chin and neck cuts, brush burns, possible compound fracture of her left leg and possible internal injuries.

Boy, 14, Fourth Heart Victim In Family

A 14-year-old Allegany High School student became the fourth member of his family to die of a heart condition within eight years.

The victim, John Michael McFarlane of 705 Gephart Drive, succumbed last night in Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient since Saturday. He had been ill about 10 days.

The ninth-grade student was a member of Centre Street Methodist Church. He apparently had a heart condition from rheumatic fever, a similar condition which took the lives of an older brother and sister.

The boy's father, David McFarlane, also died of a heart attack.

Each of the three died in April, the brother, David C. McFarlane succumbing on April 10, 1952 at the age of eight. The sister, Judy McFarlane, died April 24, 1956 at the age of seven; and the father was 44 when he died on April 13, 1957.

J. Michael McFarlane was born June 9, 1946, in Cumberland, a son of Mrs. Helen (Kershen) McFarlane, and the late David McFarlane.

Besides his mother he is survived by a sister, Melva Suzzane McFarlane, at home.

The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Salvation Army Carolers

These Salvation Army workers began a Christmas carol program in two neighborhoods of the city last night, accompanied by Sarah May Price, left, and Patricia Shadwell, who sold copies of the War Cry. The musicians are Mrs. Lt. Ronald Alexander, Patricia Capel, George Price and Lt. Ronald Alexander. The carols will be presented again tonight.

Study Commission Head Has Varied Background

Edwin Warfield III, the Howard County farmer and publisher who was appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes as chairman of the state commission to study the problem of the expansion of the University of Maryland, has had a colorful career in his fewer than 40 years.

Mr. Warfield will be in Cumberland Monday to discuss the recommendations of the so-called Warfield Commission at a meeting of the Allegany County PTA Council at 7:30 p. m. at West Side School.

The visiting speaker will be introduced by J. Goodloe Jackson, who is president of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Mr. Jackson explained that Mr. Warfield began his collegiate education at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. After his Air Force service in World War II, he transferred to the University of Maryland, from which he was graduated in 1950.

During World War II he was shot down in the Tokyo Bay while on a strafing mission and spent four days on a life raft battling a tropical storm and hungry sharks. He eventually was rescued by a Navy patrol bomber.

After his graduation from the University of Maryland he intended a career in farming on the family's 1,300-acre farm near Lisbon in Howard County. The death of his father plunged him into the responsibilities of publishing the Daily Record, the daily publication for lawyers and businessmen in Baltimore and elsewhere in Maryland.

Mr. Warfield also serves as commander of the State Air National Guard.

The commission which bears his name is remembered primarily for its recommendation that the state teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury be converted into the branches of the University of Maryland. This proposal has met with objection, particularly from the State Board of Education, which has come up with an alternate plan. Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, addressed the County PTA Council recently in Mt. Savage on the State Board of Education's plan.

New Airline To Base Planes In Cumberland

Algonquin Airlines, which started scheduled service between Washington and Cumberland November 9, is revising its schedule so planes can be based at the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

T. J. Whelan, general manager of the lines, told the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce yesterday that the new schedule will become effective Monday and that the change is being made so planes can leave for Washington earlier in the morning.

The Monday through Friday schedule, beginning December 5, follows:

Morning Flights

Leave Cumberland 8:15 a.m., arrive at Washington National Airport 9 a.m.

Leave Washington 9:15 a.m., arrive in Cumberland 10 a.m.

Afternoon Flights

Leave Cumberland 4 p.m., arrive Washington 5 p.m.

Leave Washington 5:30 p.m., arrive in Cumberland 6:20 p.m.

No service is planned on Saturdays and only afternoon flights will be scheduled on Sundays, the Chamber of Commerce was told.

May Boost Use

The change in the schedule is expected to boost use of the air service, as it will give business and professional people more time to transact business in Washington and Baltimore.

Officials of the new airline conferred with Civil Aeronautics Board officials on Tuesday to seek the subsidy held by Allegany Airlines, which halted service to the Cumberland Municipal Airport early in 1959.

The meeting was arranged by U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, who announced plans for asking the postmaster general to transfer Allegheny's mail subsidy shortly after the line decided to halt Cumberland service.

Algonquin Airlines purchased two DeHavilland Doves to provide the Cumberland air service.

Fellowship Event Set By Bible Class

The annual fellowship dinner of the Duke Memorial Bible Class will be held today at 6 p.m. in Central YMCA.

Rev. Carlton M. Harris, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church will be the principal speaker at the event which will be attended by more than 75 persons.

Members of the Duke Memorial Bible Class Orchestra, directed by Russell Paupe, will be special guests at the dinner.

Music will include "Bless This House," and "I Walk Where Jesus Walked," sung by Mrs. Jacqua Day, accompanied by Miss Mary Elizabeth Weese.

H. Scott Oster, president of the class, will welcome guests and J. Walter McKee, secretary, will be the toastmaster.

Boy, 16, Dies; Rabbit Fever Is Suspected

Berlin, Pa., Youth Buried Yesterday

A 16-year-old Berlin, Pa., youth died Monday in Meyersdale Community Hospital and tularemia, or rabbit fever, is suspected as the cause of his death, attending physicians said.

Robert Lee Rhodes, RD 2, Berlin, was buried yesterday in the Odd Fellows Cemetery there following services which were conducted by Rev. Herald V. Seese at the Johnson and Son Funeral Home in Berlin.

The youth became ill on November 12 after he had killed and cleaned several rabbits he shot while hunting. His condition became steadily worse and he was admitted to the hospital where he succumbed November 28.

The disease, rare and accompanied by high and irregular fever, is caused by microorganisms transmitted to animals by insects. It is not contagious but human beings can catch the disease by handling infected animals. The fever, not always fatal, lasts two or three weeks and aftereffects sometimes remain for months.

Physicians who attended the boy said an autopsy was performed, but added it will be several days before laboratory tests can ascertain if rabbit fever actually was the cause of death.

Meanwhile, many nimrods in the Berlin area are foregoing rabbit and squirrel hunting in the event the disease may be prevalent in animals throughout the area.

Young Rhodes was a son of Henry W. and Katherin (Wyand) Rhodes and was a member of the Trinity Church of Christ of Berlin, the Berlin - Brothersvalley High School band, the 4-H Club and the Future Farmers of America of Berlin.

He is survived by his parents; a brother, Harry E. Rhodes, Fort Knox, Ky.; a sister, Adeline Rhodes, St. Louis, Mo.; and his maternal grandfather, Harry Wyand of Berlin.

Gas Rate Hike Is Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Power Commission Thursday suspended until May 1 a proposed $3,552,000, or 5.8 per cent, annual wholesale natural gas rate increase by Hope Natural Gas Co., Clarksburg, W. Va.

Hope had proposed to make the higher rates effective Thursday. They would affect six utility customers in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

World Service Center Truck To Be Here

A relief truck from the Church World Service Center at New Windsor will collect materials Monday or Tuesday at Living Stone Church of the Brethren, West Second and North Cedar streets.

Rev. Connell T. Chaney, pastor, said clothing, shoes, and bedding are especially needed.

LaVale Gets Custom Fire Engine

LaVale Volunteer Fire Company last night received its new $22,000 custom-built fire engine which members drove here from the factory in Kenosha, Wis.

Chief James Loar and three others left last weekend for Wisconsin and drove the vehcile back, stopping for two days at College Park where the engine was fully equipped.

The new engine, a 2½-ton truck, will be taken to Bedford, Pa., this morning for a motor check. It will be returned to the LaVale station Saturday evening and is expected to be put into service following the fire underwriters' tests on Wednesday.

The new truck has a 750-gallon-per-minute pump; a 600-gallon booster pump; 1,200 feet of 2½-inch hose, 600 feet of 1½-inch hose; a 2,500-watt power plant with three lights; two booster reels with 200 feet of hose on each reel; compartments across the back and along the sides; and will utilize the new penetrator-type siren and radio-loudspeaker system.

The fire company has recently conducted a fund drive, held auctions and varous dances and sales to help defray the cost of the new engine.

Chief Loar said George Boch, William Detrick and Vincent Self accompanied him on the trip. The group took 24 hours to drive from Wisconsin to College Park and another four hours to return to LaVale.

Weather-Delayed Express Riders Reach Romney

Two Pony Express riders, slowed by winter weather and the mountains of West Virginia, passed through Romney last evening about 7:30 p.m., State Police reported.

The two riders had been expected to arrive in the Hampshire County seat about noon yesterday but experienced considerable difficulty getting over the mountains, they said.

The Pony Express delivery originated in Los Angeles on Veterans Day and is scheduled to terminate in Washington, D.C.

Sponsored by the American Legion the modern version of the old-time mail delivery is made up of six riders who hope to deliver a message to President Eisenhower on December 7, the 19th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

The message, inscribed on leather and written by a West Coast minister, urges the administration to take a strong stand against Communism and calls for a renewed faith in God and the principles of freedom.

Master Plan Needed For Urban Renewal

Engineering Firm Outlines Program

The passage of the Urban Renewal referendum will make it possible for Cumberland to participate—"but you must have a master plan," James J. O'Donnell, chairman of the State Planning Department, said here last night.

Mr. O'Donnell and Richard Gucker, planning engineer for the department, made the statement at a meeting with the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and representatives of the Mayor and Council.

He said half of the cost of such a study could be secured from the government under the Federal 701 program, which is handled through the State Planning Department.

A number of Maryland cities, including Laurel, Annapolis and Frederick, have already started such a plan.

He told the Planning Commission the city will have to make an analysis of what it has and what it wants to achieve.

Cost Is Shared

Mr. O'Donnell said the local participation in the cost of making a master plan is about 35 per cent, since his department contributes services which represent about 15 per cent of the cost.

It was pointed out that the 701 program is available only to units of less than 50,000, so that Allegany County would not qualify for federal help on planning.

Mr. O'Donnell stressed that it would be a great benefit if planning efforts of the city and county were coordinated.

There was some discussion on the possibility of having the same staff do the planning for the city and county in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Needs Own Plan

Albert S. Paye, Planning Commission chairman, said having the same staff to do the work would be a neat solution.

Cumberland, of course, would have to have its own plan, and it was pointed out that the question of priorities might arise if one staff was doing the work for both units.

Mr. O'Donnell told the city delegation his department will be glad to help in any way it could.

Earlier yesterday, the state officials, together with James B. Woglom and George C. Wefing, of the Morris Knowles Inc., planning engineering firm, toured the city to get a picture of current problems.

Cites Possibilities

Mr. Wefling said the tour indicated the possibility of urban renewal for revitalizing the main business area and providing an industrial park complex, and that any plan should take the above possibilities into account.

For an Urban Renewal program, he said, Cumberland will have to have a Workable Program for the elimination of blighted areas, comprehensive community planning, plans for rehousing of families affected, financing and codes and ordinances, and a plan of action.

Mr. Woglom outlined the work a consulting firm such as he represents would do to come up with a master plan, and promised to present to the commission early in January a proposal for the planning work.

To Give Report

There will be no cost to the city, he said, for the preliminary report.

While here, the representatives of the planning firm were presented with all existing data, including the master plan made some years ago by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore.

This firm, Mr. Paye reported, has asked to meet with city officials in the interest of making a master plan.

Mr. Paye said a meeting with the Baltimore firm will be set during the next few weeks.

Street Commissioner John J. Long said he was "much interested" and that such a long-range plan should have been made many

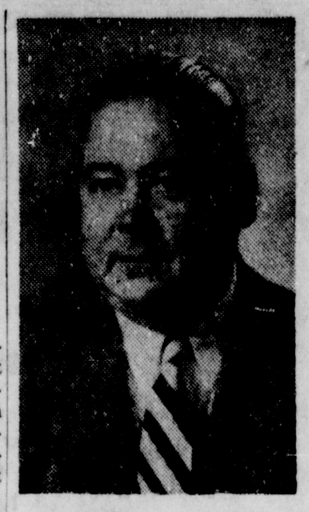
Discuss Planning Problems

Albert S. Paye, right, chairman of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, points out one of the city's planning problems to Street Commissioner John J. Long, left. George O. Hollar, commission member, and James J. O'Donnell, chairman of the State Planning Commission, during a meeting in City Hall last night. Mr. O'Donnell pledged full cooperation with the city in planning work. Development of a master plan for the city's future was discussed last night.



NELSON T. OFFUTT

Garrett County Man Heads Md. Heart Campaign

A prominent Maryland insurance executive, Nelson T. Offutt, will lead the 1961 Heart Fund Drive in Maryland. Mr. Offutt's acceptance of the post was announced by James W. Bishop, president of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association.

Mr. Offutt is a past-president of the Heart Association of Maryland, and is a native of and frequent visitor to Garrett County.

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Offutt pointed out that local Heart Fund contributions will make possible the support of heart research in Maryland, and aid scientists in clinics and university laboratories throughout the nation.

This year, the Heart Association is providing $130,000 for the support of research projects in Maryland laboratories.

Research, Mr. Offutt said, has top priority in the Heart Association's program, and in the past 12 years has been responsible for great progress in saving hearts through new methods of diagnosis, treatment and prevention. Additionally, he said, Heart Fund dollars support broad programs of public and professional education and community service "which bring the benefits of research back to all of us."

Mr. Offutt will direct the work of an estimated 30,000 volunteers in Maryland communities expected to take part in the state's 13th Heart Fund campaign.

The Heart Fund has grown spectacularly, according to Mr. Offutt, since the first Maryland campaign in 1949. "This growth is a reflection of increasing public confidence that heart and blood vessel diseases can be overcome," he said. "Although great scientific advances have given new hope that further controls and possible prevention of some heart disorders will be achieved within the present decade, deaths from cardiovascular diseases each year still exceed the number of deaths from all other causes combined."

Mr. Offutt, who served as president of the Maryland Heart unit in 1958-59, is an alumnus of the University of Virginia, and a member of the Elkridge and Maryland clubs. He is a member of the campaign advisory committee of the American Heart Association. He has been a member of the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland since 1953, and served as chairman of the association's finance committee from 1956 through 1958.

Mr. Offutt received the distinguished service medal of the American Heart Association and Heart Association of Maryland in 1959.

Speaker Gets Kiwanians In Outer Space

William Ellerbe Buford, head of the flight mechanics section of the Dyna-Soar program of The Martin Company in Baltimore, figuratively got members of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club into outer space yesterday with a somewhat baffling comparison of the ICBM and the space airplane.

Mr. Buford pointed out that intercontinental ballistic missiles such as the Titan, which Martin produces, are primarily weapons. The ultimate objective of an ICBM is to take an atomic warhead to the target.

However, with a space airplane such as the Dyna-Soar, the primary object is exploration possibly leading to eventual interplanetary travel. He did mention that it could be used as a weapon although that is not its main purpose. The Martin Company is developing the booster for the Dyna-Soar and is working in conjunction with the Boeing Aircraft Corporation.

Another contrast between the two outer space facilities is that safety is given much greater emphasis in the Dyna-Soar development because it is designed to carry a man and the designers certainly want to bring the space pioneer back to earth.

Mr Buford told the Kiwanians that the Dyna-Soar is really a glider as it has no engine for tnrust. It is equipped with a small engine for escape possibilities in case of trouble.

He would not give an answer when questioned as to when the Dyna-Soar might become operational.

Winter Takes Toehold In Garrett Co.

Highways Covered, Travel Dangerous

Winter weather began taking a toehold in Western Maryland yesterday, and, as usual, Garrett County bore the brunt of the wind, biting cold and snow.

Snow which began falling Wednesday continued throughout yesterday, piling to a depth of eight inches in the Oakland and Grantsville areas.

It was still snowing last night and continued flurries are expected today. The snow also is expected eastward into Allegany County today.

Highways are treacherous in Garrett County and parts of Allegany County. State Police recommended that motorists use chains or snow tires. Some freezing also is reported in the mountains.

Trucks, Equipment Out

The State Roads Commission had 35 men and 18 pieces equipment salting and cindering roads in Garrett County yesterday. A patrol truck and two crews worked throughout the night.

West of Guntertown in Garrett County, U.S. Route 40 was reported only about 30 per cent bare and U.S. 50 about 40 per cent bare. All of the county's secondary roads are almost completely covered with snow.

Big Savage Mountain had temperatures of 18 degrees with about six inches of snow. The snow measured only about 3½ inches east of Guntertown into Frostburg in Allegany County.

Highways in Allegany County are about 75 per cent clear, police said, although snow treads and chains are urged for the Frostburg area where streets became glazed with a thin covering of snow.

Cumberland Has Flurries

Cumberland, meanwhile, had only snow flurries with temperatures ranging from a low of 26 degrees to a high of 31. Some wind gusts up to 35 miles per hour were recorded in the Queen City.

Garrett County temperatures ranged from 17 to 22 degrees throughout the day. Readings elsewhere were in the high 20s and low 30s. Some snow was reported in Pennsylvania, but clearing was noted there last night.

West Virginia mountains were snow-covered and roads were dangerous along the slopes. The West Virginia lowlands reported snow flurries and high winds during the day with temperatures in the low 30s.

Two inches of snow fell in Elkins, W.Va., and from two to three inches were reported in Thomas, W. Va., and Deal, Pa.

Forecast for today is fair skies and slightly warmer with afternoon temperatures ranging from 30 degrees in Garrett County to the low 40s elsewhere.

Chamber Names Local Downtown Renewal Unit

C. William Gilchrist has accepted the chairmanship of the downtown renewal committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, according to C. M. Sanner, president.

The newly appointed committee, Mr. Gilchrist said, will develop a practical course of action which can show some immediate results. The over-all purpose of the committee is to make the downtown cleaner, better looking and easier to move about it.

"Our job," Mr. Gilchrist said yesterday, "is to examine the physical condition of the area, block by block, and develop a plan for improvement. We will have to determine what financing is necessary and what part the individual and government agencies can assume in making the necessary changes."

"Recent suggestions made by the Chamber for improvement of the appearance and upkeep of curbs, sidewalks and streets is the first step. Unless we can make everyone aware of the problem and the importance of doing this job, it will be too big a task. A few people cannot do it. It will take a lot of doing with many people helping."

In announcing the appointment R. C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber, said several local wags have suggested that the fastest way to get this project under way is with a good fire, but "we are convinced the job can be done just as effectively, if a little slower, by Mr. Gilchrist, his committee and many others who will be asked for their help."

Others on the committee are Irwin Pariser, co-chairman, former Judge George Henderson, Dr. William T. Fridinger, Charles L. George, Mayor J. Edwin Keech, John H. Mosner, Earl M. Nonnenmann, Albert S. Paye, Simon Rosenbaum, G. Louis Spoerl, E. A. Lindsay, Dr. Leo H. Ley, Hugh D. Shires and Morton Peskin.
